Fire Bombs Hurled At Montreal Mail

Three Buildings Attacked

MONTREAL (CP) — Three Molotov cocktails were hurled into postal substations Tuesday in violence apparently connected with a labor dispute simmering since Feb. 3.

There were no injuries.

Four bags of fourth-class mail were burned when one of the gasoline-filled bottles was tossed into a suburban Pointe Claire substation at about 8 p.m. while 30 employees were at work.

Two other Montreal substations were struck by the Molotov cocktails at about midnight.

Police were holding a suspect.

The incidents came in the midst of a dispute between mail truck drivers and the post office which has slowed mail delivery in the Montreal area for more than six weeks. Mail delivery Tuesday continued at least one day behind schedule as the drivers continued delaying tactics.

The drivers are protesting the expected loss of their jobs when the contract held by their employer, G. Lapalme Inc., expires March 31. The contract is to be split between five companies.

SAYS ANTI-UNION

The Confederation of National Trade Unions, with which the drivers' union is affiliated, has charged that splitting the contract is an attempt to break the union. It also argues that drivers, even if they sign on with the new trucking companies, will lose seniority.

H. Carl Goldenberg, a Montreal lawyer with long experience in labor disputes, was appointed last week by Prime Minister Trudeau to mediate the postal dispute.

Meanwhile, the Letter Carriers' Union of Canada announced today that it is asking members to stay home next Monday, Easter Monday, unless the post office changes its present position on work scheduling.

The union said its representatives have been meeting with post office authorities for more than 10 days without reaching agreement for the Easter Monday work program. The day is one of the statutory holidays set out in the union's last contract.

MLAs Hit 'High' Car Premiums

By BRUCE YEMEN

The Social Credit majority on the legislative insurance committee stepped cautiously on the toes of the automobile insurance industry Tuesday with a call for further inquiry into the cost of automobile insurance.

The New Democrat minority kicked the industry's shins with a call for a government-run automobile insurance scheme.

In a majority report tabled in the legislature the Socreds headed by committee chairman Herb Capozzi (SC—Vancouver Centre) recommended:

- A government automobile insurance board should be set up to investigate car insurance premiums in view of "possible reductions" that might be made;
- The industry should justify its price structure before the board and would require the board's approval for any further price changes;
- The board should study "the cost and ramifications of various proposals" in which the government's compulsory insurance might be taken out of the industry's hands.

The implied threat of "perform or else" in that recommendation was not spelled out but it is an apparent reference to a section of the current insurance act which would permit the government to take over the automobile insurance sales.

DISMAYED

The committee also said it was "dismayed" to learn how little the insurance industry is doing to exert pressure on automobile makers to build safer cars and to encourage defensive driving courses with reduced premiums for graduates of the training.

In another area, it recommended against a proposed ban on law suits for vehicle property damage in excess of $250. The proposal is already part of the government's insurance legislation passed last year but has never been proclaimed.

The ban was regarded initially as a means by which savings in car insurance could be made and drivers could be made more responsible because they would have to insure themselves over the $250 limit.

The report said these advantages might well be gained but expressed concern that ill-feeling among drivers could increase if access to courts were limited.

BENEFIT CUT

On another issue, the committee recommended that the government's compulsory automatic no-fault accident benefits coverage for injuries should not apply to passengers on public-passenger-vehicles.

But the death benefit coverage under the plan, passed last year by the legislature and currently in effect, should continue to apply.

The recommendation follows concern expressed by bus companies that spurious passenger injury claims could be a major problem under the plan which makes automatic payments of 50 a week for housewives and higher for employed persons.

The report of the committee was issued after six weeks of hearings. Included among the Socred members were Education Minister Donald Brothers and Minister Without Portfolio Grace McCarthy. NDP members were Alex Macdonald (NDP — Vancouver East), Bill Hartley (NDP—Yale-Lillooet) and Dennis Cocke (NDP—New Westminster).

The sole Liberal member, Garde Gardom (Vancouver—Point Grey), issued his own report opposing a government-run scheme.

BANK OF AMERICA CUTS INTEREST RATE

Times News Services

NEW YORK — The Bank of America, world's largest commercial bank, today reduced its prime interest rate to 8 per cent from 8½ per cent, following the lead of Irving Trust Co. and triggering a major stock market gain on the United States exchanges.

The Dow Jones index on Wall Street reacted wildly, soaring over 16 points to 790.13 at the close. See also Page 6.

Irving Trust, twelfth largest U.S. commercial bank announced its reduction this morning. The prime rate is that which banks charge their largest, most credit-worthy business clients. Most other business rates are scaled upward from the prime rate.

The prime lending rate for Canadian chartered banks has been 8½ per cent since last summer.

Bombers Face Death Penalty

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Nixon asked Congress today to increase penalties — even to the death penalty—and to extend federal jurisdiction to deal with the rash of bombings by "potential murderers."

The president proposed extending and strengthening laws involving the transportation and use of explosives in the wake of what he called an alarming increase in criminal bombings and threats in recent months.

Schools and public buildings have had to be evacuated, property has been destroyed and lives lost, Nixon said.

"Clearly many of these bombings have been the work of political fanatics, many of them young criminals posturing as romantic revolutionaries. They must be dealt with as the potential murderers they are."

HEADS FOR CONGRESS

Nixon issued the statement in connection with his request for strengthened laws and the justice department was to send the legislation to Capital Hill today.

Present law under certain circumstances make it a federal crime to transport explosives across state lines.

Nixon proposed:

- Making it a federal crime to use explosives to damage or destroy any building, vehicles or property owned by the federal government or involving any business engaged in interstate commerce or any federal property or property of private businesses engaged in interstate commerce.
- Possession, without written authorization, for any explosive in a federal building or one leased to the federal government would be a federal crime.
- Incendiary devices would be included in the category of "explosives" to bring such devices under anti-bombing provisions of the law.
- The individual engaged in transport or use of explosives in violation of these provisions would be subject to the death penalty if a fatality occurs.

Airlines Grounded; Mail Strike Ends

Times News Services

Air traffic controllers crippled airline service around the United States today with a stay-at-home "sick and tired" slowdown and the federal government decided to go to court to force them back to work.

With airline service severely curtailed as the heavy-traffic Easter weekend was about to begin, it was learned that transportation secretary John A. Volpe — the controllers' boss — directed that a court injunction be filed to halt what he regards as an illegal strike.

It was the second time in a week that federal employees defied warnings against a strike and took to the streets.

Striking mailmen in New York voted to accept wage hike agreement between postal union leaders and the government and agreed to return to work immediately.

The eight-day-old strike which originated in New York also ended there following a back-to-work movement by strikers in a dozen other states. Some 13,500 regular sailors, marines and national guardsmen assigned to New York Post Offices were expected to be withdrawn by the end of the day.

A SLIPPERY COURTSHIP is enjoyed by Haida and the white killer whale as they meet today for the first time at Sealand.. Experts are not certain the white one is a girl but they are encouraged by Haida's reaction. (Robin Clarke Photo)

It's a Nose-to-Nose Affair For Haida, White Playmate

By PAT DUFOUR

When it's a matter of whale sex it takes a whale to know the difference.

Haida, the star killer whale at Sealand of the Pacific in Oak Bay seems sure the white killer whale that joined him Tuesday is the future bride he's been promised.

He's just about convinced the experts.

A Sealand official reported today:

NUZZLING UP

"He spends most of the time chasing her and nuzzling up. He won't leave her alone but ignores the other one, who just swims around alone. He probably knows more than we do."

Sealand president Bob Wright and a crew of experts brought the white whale and another to Sealand Tuesday from their pens at Pedder Bay.

FINE WHALE PAD

It was the D-Day that Wright had been waiting for since Sealand captured the five-whale pod near Race Rocks March 1.

First came the "dry run" in which the white killer whale's fifteen-foot-four-inch companion was netted, hauled aboard the 60-foot seiner May S and taken the 17 miles to Oak Bay Marina.

Within half an hour of arriving a huge crane had lifted him from the deck of the fish boat and into the pool. May S steamed back to Pedder Bay.

Then came the time for nerves as we drove back to Pedder Bay for the whale that the world has been waiting to see.

Wright, obviously taut, talked with Dr. Roberta Hartman, veterinarian from the marine aquarium in Vancouver. Dr. Alan Hoey, Sealand's veterinarian, remained silent for the most part.

SUPERVISE TRANSFER

Also in the car was Bill Cameron and his son John. They had flown down from Pender Harbor to supervise the transfer.

For Bill, a commercial fisherman, the catching of the white whale would be almost old hat because he has captured 21 whales of his own.

And, as he quietly warned: "You have to keep cool, if there's one member on the team that gets excited you're in trouble."

By the time we reached May S everything was in readiness. Divers stood by. Few spoke except Cameron who issued orders in quiet but authoritative tones.

BIG BULL

In one pen swam Charlie Chin, the large bull in the pod.

The arena of testing was the other. Int it swam the white whale and two large cows who seemed to know that they were to lose her. They swam protectively around the small white one.

The nets were spread. There was one anxious second when it seemed that the white one would join her elders as they dove to the other side. She didn't—the net held and the careful process began of placing her in the special sling that would hold her until she reached Sealand.

BLOOD SAMPLES

To those that watched—as well as those that worked—it seemed that time stood sill. Actually, it was a bare 20 minutes' lapse from the time she was netted and secured on the stern of the seiner.

First, blood samples were taken, to be rushed by car to

10 of 48 Drug Suspects Appear in Court Here

Ten persons appeared in Victoria court this morning charged with trafficking in various illicit drugs, including heroin. It was the result of a four-month undercover operation by RCMP.

The ten represent the first of a total of 48 warrants issued on the Island Tuesday, all involving trafficking in either heoin, hashish, marijuana, LSD or mescaline. In the Victoria area, 26 warrants for adults have been issued and four for juveniles.

Sub-Inspector H. W. Hall, acting officer in charge of the Victoria RCMP subdivision, said Tuesday afternoon the roundup was the result of two young members of the force working in an undercover capacity for the past four months.

Thirty-two persons were in custody this morning leaving 16 warrants outstanding.

He added that it was the first time heroin trafficking

Three on Mainland Win in Sweepstakes

TIMES NEWS SEVRICES

Two Vancouver area women — an old-age pensioner recovering from a broken hip and the wife of a hospitalized mill hand — each won $130,000 Irish Sweepstakes first prizes today.

Only other British Columbian to share in the big money also was a Vancouver woman. Mrs. Lewis Botto, who picked up $52,000 second prize with a ticket on Prince de Galles.

The horse winning the race was New Chapter and its victory sent first prizes to six Canadians, four in Ontario as well as 70-year-old Mrs. Mona Kerhoven of Vancouver and Mrs. Douglas Warren of Pitt Meadows.

The winners included Salange Laurin, a 49-year-old spinster who has worked in the laundry room of the Chataeu Laurier hotel in Ottawa for 28 years. She said she had no special plans for the money.

Other Ontario winners named by an unofficial source in Montreal, were: Mary Sullivan, Woodstock, Ont., Paul Johns, Toronto, and Mrs. Wilfred Rousselle, R.R. II. Ont.

Ticket holders who also won $52,000 were: Mike Cughman, Hamilton; West Tait, Regina, and Iris Torfason, Thunder Bay, Ont.

Those with tickets worth $26,000 on third-place Brookway were: J. B. McDowell, Kenora; Mrs. J. Schoales, Prescott, Ont.; D. H. Curtis, Calgary; Joe Popoff, Saskatoon; M. Campbell, Winnipeg; and Ron Gaudet, Lakewood.

Mrs. Kerkhoven, said she has been in bed for the past three months with a broken hip.

"I'm so shaken, don't ask me any more questions. Don't talk to me any more. I don't want to say anything more," she said.

She said her ticket was a gift from a friend who will share in her prize.

Mrs. Warren, the mother of four, said her husband, who is employed by a forest products mill in Hammond, 35 miles east of here, is due to be released from hospital today.

"We'll have to wait until he comes home to figure out what we're going to do."

One of her first projects, Mrs. Warren said, will be to buy a car for her oldest daughter.

Mrs. Botto had this reaction to her win: "I'm surprised, very much surprised. Quite happy."

Her husand works for a hardware store, and is due to retire in a year. They have 11 grandchildren.

had been uncovered on the island and agents indicated the use of the drug is on the increase.

The names and addresses are as stated in police records.

John M. Caird, about 40, of 23 Pandora, appeared charged with trafficking in heroin Feb. 10 and was remanded to April 1 for election. Bail was set at $7,500, the highest figure of the ten because of the nature of the offence, Judge William Ostler said.

Two more warrants for heroin trafficking are to appear in Nanaimo.

John Spink, 23, of 17 Boyd, was charged with trafficking in marijuana Feb. 4 and was remanded to March 31 for election. Bail was set at $1,500.

Walter E. Hamilton, 26, of 1250 Bay, was charged with trafficking in marijuana and was remanded to March 31 for election. Bail was set at $2,500.

Robin M. Storkey, 19, of 3315 Henderson, trafficking in hashish Dec. 5, 1969 and remanded to March 31 for election. Bail was set at $1,000.

David K. Brauner, 18, of 615 Seaforth, trafficking in LSD and was remanded to March 31 for election. Bail at $750.

John Reym, 26, of Campbell River, trafficking in LSD Feb. 20 and was remanded to March 31 for election. Bail at $1,000.

Frederick T. Stoba, 18, of 1827 Ruby, trafficking in marijuana Feb. 7 and, remanded to March 31 for election. Bail at $2,500.

Anna Kosyra, 18, of 1250 Bay, trafficking in marijuana Jan. 2, remanded to March 31 for election. Bail at $1,000.

Michael Coutinho, 20, of 2524 Cedar Hill Road, trafficking in LSD Nov. 20 and trafficking in hashish Nov. 27, remanded to April 1 for election.

He was already facing a charge of trafficking in hashish March 13 and bail for all the offences was set at $5,000.

Harely Hughes, 18, of Comox, pleaded guilty to trafficking in hashish Jan. 15 and was remanded to April 3 for pre-sentence report.

Lee Daniel Kobierski, 19, of 15 Quincy and Carol Lucille Dasso, 23, of 17 Boyd appeared Tuesday afternoon and both were remanded to March 31 for election.

Kobierski was charged with trafficking in hashish and bail was set at $1,500 while Dasso was charged with trafficking in marijuana. Bail at $1,000.

The Weather and You

By CARL RIBLET JR.

If you live in an area where floods often appear, you are one of those who may be affected more than usual by weather cycles, because floods do seem to appear in cycles. That's why scientists would like to know more about ancient weather.

Records were not kept back in the early days of this civilization, or at least nobody has been able to find weather records of 300 years ago. So the scientists have to look at the trees to attempt to learn whether there is danger this year or next year or 10 years from now of a "once-in-a-hundred-years" flood.

The long-ago periods of good and bad weather can be traced in the tree rings. The scientists study the tree rings and then tie in their findings to modern weather history over the past 100 years. Thus they are able with some degree of accuracy to learn what years are likely to be flood years.

Western Highwaymen

Delegates from the highways departments of the four western provinces were welcomed to Victoria Tuesday by Highways Minister Wesley Black and Mayor Courtney Haddock.

More than 160 delegates and their wives are attending the 23rd annual group conference of the Western Association of Canadian Highway Officials, which started Tuesday at the Empress Hotel.

At the conference they will discuss highways administration, construction, equipment, safety and bridge erection.

Black assured them that they would find nothing wrong with British Columbia's hospitality.

"As a matter of fact," he said, "you stubble-jumpers from the prairies might even learn something from the B.C. highways department."

SOLUTION ASKED

Haddock expressed the hope that they might come up with the solution to increased congestion in the downtown area without hurting retail business.

Guest speaker at the conference's opening was Ian S. Ross, of consulting engineering firm of Swan and Wooster which planned the Roberts Bank superport.

He spoke of a tremendous need for the development of harbor and port facilities in Canada because of the general increase in shipping and in particular the use of "supertankers" and other vessels in excess of 200,000 tons.

Ross described development of the Roberts Bank and said it is vital if Canada is to compete with the U.S., Australia and Japan for expanding markets in the Pacific.

Purchasing Managers

Purchasing managers from throughout the Pacific northwestern region will attend their 30th annual conference and products show in the Empress Hotel April 10 and 11.

Among highlights of the program will be a panel discussion on industry and Canada's white paper tax proposals, with a paper by accountant Roy E. Burrell, of Vancouver, and a speech on the Impact of Labor Negotiations, by M. A. Pierotti, of Burrard Dry Dock Ltd., Vancouver.

General conference chairman will be Frank Dunn, purchasing manager for Andrew Sheret Ltd., of Victoria.

Between 350 and 400 agents are expected, representing the B.C. branch of Purchasing Management Association of Canada, the National Association of Purchasing Managers, and Pacific Northwest Public Purchasing Association.

Other speakers will include John Dickinson, president of PMAC and Harold Bloom, president of NAPM: W. A. Small, managing director of PMAC, and panelists, A. M. Twigg, West Vancouver; H. W. Eister, Tacoma; P. Elsing, Eastern Washington State College, and Wayne Rodman, Portland.

Realtor Fined

KAMLOOPS (CP) — Gordon Van, of Chase, has been fined $2,500 after pleading guilty to five charges of failing to report a total of $105,021.16 in income between 1962 and 1965.

In default of the fine, the realtor was sentenced to three months on each charge, to be served concurrently.

. . . WHITE WHALE

the Royal Jubilee Hospital for testing. The findings would be ready almost as soon as the fish boat's invaluable cargo had arrived at her destination.

The two veterinarians worked over her, administering antibotics and examining her carefully.

A bucket-brigade kept the whale doused during the two-hour run. Her whimperings eased as the anti-stress injections took effect.

From the time she came aboard, every breath the whale took was carefully recorded.

Seland's animal trainer Graeme Ellis talked to her. She calmed again. He would stand by her every minute of her first night at Sealand.

At 6:30 p.m. May S nudged in alongside Sealand where a crowd of onlookers were gathered to witness the final act.

Then it was that Wright took over command.

His biggest fear was that the white whale would head for the net in the centre of the pen that separated Haida from the newcomers.

During her time at Pedder Bay the white whale has shown no fear of nets. Would she become entangled in this one and harm herself?

The sling inched over the centre of the pool. Three divers stood at the ready by its side, two men atop the structure. Two other divers were on the alert, one at each side of the pool.

FREED FROM NET

The white whale dove—she swam—and seconds later headed, rostrom (head) first for the dividing net. Divers freed her from it.

Twice more she headed for the net before she settled down to play with the other member of her pod.

As Hoey said, "Just like a brother and sister who have been parted for a while."

Then the centre net was taken away and Haida was able to join in the fun.

Haida may still have to ask the experts for some assistance with his new playmate.

While the white whale was aboard May S a tape measure recorded her length as 12 feet 8 inches.

By taking the square root of her length, multiplying it by her girth and dividing it by 1276, Dr. Hoey was able to estimate her weight as 1,521 pounds.

. . . CARS

In a minority report issued outside the legislature by the three New Democrat committee members, the possibility of significant savings in insurance premiums without a publicly operated insurance plan was ruled out.

AGREED ONCE

The New Democrats agreed on one point with the Socreds who also said there could be no "significant" savings until safer cars and safer drivers are created.

But the Socreds listed four ways in which some savings might be made:

- Use of investment income earned by premiums paid in advance to benefit policy-holders instead of shareholders, for a total premium reduction of four or five per cent;
- Lowering the estimated disability period during which automatic injury payments must be made could cut about 10 per cent from the cost of the accident benefits coverage, which was estimated at $22 by the insurance industry.
- Decrease the portion of the insurance premium spent on administrative expenses from 33 cents to 31 cents for car insurance generally. It could be further decreased to about 25 cents for the compulsory $50,000 liability policy which the government currently requires.
- Nab the 5 to 10 per cent of drivers currently uncovered by the compulsory policy by requiring proof of insurance before purchasing licence plates. This would cut the cost of the compulsory package by a further 5 to 10 per cent.

NO TOTAL

The committee's report didn't total the "possible" savings into one figure.

It also noted that while there appears to be a "certain conformity" in automobile insurance rates there is "a variance as a result of competition."

The industry has been criticized by New Democrats who charge price-fixing, particularly in the $22 price charged by many companies for the accident benefits coverage.

In their minority report, the three New Democrats said the present system of private automobile insurance is "wasteful, costly and inefficient."

"The primary responsibility of this committee was to determine whether automobile insurance premiums are commensurate with the risks being assumed. Our answer to that question is an unequivocal 'No'," the New Democrats said.

"The committee has dealt with the small change of premium reductions, but we believe that significant savings to the people of the province can't be achieved without a public plan of automobile accident compensation."

GARDOM

In his report, Gardom said the government could serve better in a "directional regulatory capacity as opposed to total participation" in car insurance.

The committee was initially expected to study whether the law suit limitation should go into effect but an outcry over the $22 cost of the accident benefits scheme led to the increased scope, covering cost of insurance.

The automobile insurance board recommended by the committee was provided for in the legislation passed last year but, like the law suit limitation, was not proclaimed when compulsory insurance began Jan. 1, this year. The board would have the power to enter the car insurance business if the government so desired.

Industry spokesmen generally opposed the law suit limitation as a theoretically good idea which might indeed encourage drivers to be more careful but which could leave unfortunate drivers who get rammed with no hope of recovering damages unless they carry expensive collision coverage.

Radar Bases Again Attacked

From Reuters-AP

Israeli jet aircraft attacked Egyptian radar stations and artillery and anti-aircraft batteries in the Suez canal area twice today, shooting down four Egyptian MiG-21s which tried to intercept them, the Israeli command announced.

The four Egyptian interceptors were shot down in a series of dogfights when they tangled with the Israeli raiders which had attacked targets in the central and south sectors of the canal, a spokesman said.

Autorama 70 Has Lots of Va-roommm!

Organizers of the 13th annual Victoria Autorama readily admit the show isn't as big as other shows in the Pacific Northwest.

But what Autorama 70 lacks in size is made up in quality of displays and entertainment, say members of the sponsoring Victoria Quartermilers Club.

It opens at the Esquimalt Sports Centre at 6 p.m. Thursday, then runs from 10 a.m. to 11 p.m. Friday and Saturday.

Custom cars from B.C., Alberta, Washington, Oregon and California will be displayed.

1970 MODELS

Five local dealers will exhibit their 1970 wares in a separate display in the nearby curling rink.

Featured out-of-town dragsters are two machines from Los Angeles, Roland Leong's "Hawaiian" Dodge Charger, winner of the 1970 Winter Nationals, and Chuck Poole's "Chuckwagon."

Also from Los Angeles will be July Playmate of the Month Nancy McNeil, who will present awards to winning exhibits and draw the winning ticket in a car raffle Saturday night.

Singer Eleanor Collins and a five-piece band will perform nightly at 8 and 10 p.m.

Schools Open to Oldsters To Avoid Taxpayer Revolt

The Greater Victoria School Board could be faced with its first referendum defeats if it doesn't find a way to reach elderly ratepayers, the board's new community information officer told a Lions Club meeting Tuesday.

Bill Stavdal said recent defeats of referendums in Nanaimo, West Vancouver and North Peace River occurred because boards were "out of touch" with ratepayers.

Stavdal said the same thing could happen in a large district like Greater Victoria which has a school population of 32,000.

One of the big problems faced by school boards in the Capital Region, he said, is that a growing number of ratepayers are in the retired category and come from some other parts of the country.

In Victoria the incidence of retired people is twice the national rate.

As a group they tend to oppose school construction referendums because they have nothing to gain by approving them.

At the same time, for parents with young families — those with the most at stake in education decisions — it's becoming increasingly difficult to raise money to buy their own home.

So most of them rent the place they live in. In effect, they're disenfranchised because they don't qualify as voters on education money bylaws.

Part of the solution, Stavdal said, is to involve the elderly by offering evening courses and activities that reflect their interests.

EVALUATION

Encouraging community use of school facilities is another way, he said, and the board's decision two years ago to slash rental rates on classrooms and gyms has resulted in some schools operating at capacity during evenings now.

Some Lions Club members wanted to know what is being done about a system of teacher performance evaluation.

Teachers currently are rated by the department of education on a system that combines years of experience with university education.

As one questioner said, members of other professions are evaluated on the basis of the number of clients they have. Couldn't it be the same in the schools?

Another Lion said some teachers still say the best thing about their job is the months of July and August.

Stavdal replied leadership of the B.C. Teachers' Federation and the Greater Victoria Teachers' Association would probably agree members should be evaluated according to teaching ability — something that isn't necessarily measured by years of experience or university degrees.

He said rank-and-file — "the ones who don't come out to the meetings" — would oppose a move to evaluation by performance.

The issue is due to come up for discussion at next week's annual BCTF meeting in Vancouver.

Land Limit May Apply To Cordova

Saanich municipal planning committee decided Tuesday night to let full council decide whether a recommendation that the five-acre subdivision minimum be extended into Cordova Bay.

Also passed on to council is a request from M. C. Grant, 4866 Lochside, to subdivide a 4.06-acre property.

During discussion, committee chairman Ald. Alan Newberry said the medical health officer is prepared to say Cordova Bay is a potential pollution hazard.

There already are pollution problems, said Newberry, but he couldn't understand why these are not checked out by the medical health people.

Ald. William Campbell said the five-acre minimum should not apply in Cordova Bay. It was one of the few non-sewered areas where land percolates for septic tanks.

He preferred this to sewering and disposal at sea, but Ald. Edith Gunning pointed out council has made no decision on a Cordova Bay sewage outfall and she had strong reservations.

Ald. Leslie Passmore said it is not reasonable to open up land outside the to-be-sewered area which will provide enough land for 20 years building.

Student Prank Halts Queen's Motorcade

AUCKLAND, New Zealand (UPI)—A youth was arrested today after Queen Elizabeth's motorcade was stopped by a chain across the road outside Auckland University.

The Queen and her husband, Prince Philip, were on their way to Auckland Airport when police leading the royal convoy ran into the chain.

Police quickly hauled the chain away and the convoy was stopped for a few seconds but not before a pamphlet was thrown into the Queen's car.

Students said that as a prank some engineering students from the university had intended to halt a car taking Prince Charles and Princess Anne to Hamilton where the prince will be presented with an honorary degree.

"They were running the chain with a no parking sign hung on it across the road when they discovered to their horror they had halted the wrong convoy," one of the students said.

"It was all meant in fun and no harm intended. The police were very quick and efficient and it was a pity they had to take it further," the student said.

The arrested youth was later charged with disorderly behaviour.

'Landlords Had Hint Pegged Rents Coming'

By BRUCE YEMEN and VIC PARSONS

Rent increase notices were "falling like the winter snow" in January following hints that the government was going to bring in legislation affording protection to tenants, opposition MLAs said in the legislature Tuesday.

The NDP and Liberals were trying to convince the government to make a freeze on rent increases retroactive to Jan. 22 when the throne speech was read.

An amendment to the Landlord and Tenant Act introduced by the government prohibits the raising of rent without three months' written notice, and prevents rent increases during the first year of a tenancy agreement.

AMENDMENT DEFEATED

Dr. Scott Wallace (SC — Oak Bay) voted with the opposition for an amendment to the bill moved by Ernest Hall (NDP — Surrey) that would make the freeze retroactive to Jan. 22. The amendment was defeated 34 to 17, but the bill was passed through committee stage.

Attorney-General Leslie Peterson, to act against efforts by landlords to raise the rents after the bill was introduced, had made the rent freeze retroactive to Feb. 25, the day that the legislation was introduced into the house. The opposition, however, contended this move was not enough.

To be fair, said NDP leader Dave Barrett, the freeze should be made retroactive to the date the throne speech was read in the legislature. "Somebody had some knowledge that rental rates were pegged under the bill," he charged.

'LEAK'

A specific charge that a "leak" had occurred was made by Gordon Dowding (NDP — Burnaby-Edmonds) who said a man named James Clayton from Vancouver Centre constituency gave details of the bill to a meeting in Burnaby between 7 p.m. and 8 p.m. on Feb. 25.

The bill was introduced at 8 p.m. Feb. 25 in the legislature.

"It strikes me as a serious enough matter that you should consider changing the date," Dowding told Attorney-General Peterson.

Wallace said he had received many letters making similar complaints from people in Oak Bay whose rent went up after the throne speech but before the bill was introduced.

Barry Clark (L — North Vancouver-Seymour) said there are landlords in Vancouver issuing termination notices to tenants who will not agree to rent increases. This is a straight violation of the act, Clark said.

Peterson said that landlords could hardly have anticipated the bill from the remarks made in the throne speech. He added that to make the freeze retroactive to a time before the legislation was brought into the house would be an arbitrary action.

If it is arbitrary to go back to Feb. 25 it would be no more arbitrary to make the freeze retroactive to Jan. 22, Wallace said in announcing his support for the amendment.

The throne speech told MLAs they would be called upon "to consider amendments in legislation to protect further the rights of individuals in relation to rental housing."

Being Mayor Can Be Rough, Says Haddock

Mayor Courtney Haddock admitted to Kiwanis Club members Tuesday that he has had some rough moments in his first few months in office, but he also showed them that he has mastered the art of political talk.

Referring to the recent uproar over Police Chief Jack Gregory's 30-day ban on C-FAX radio station's news staff, Haddock said he found it "distasteful."

Then he added: "It was the best thing to do, although it did appear on the surface as though there was injustice."

And furthermore Gregory wasn't "endangering anybody's democratic rights" by imposing the ban.

(The ban was lifted last week after Haddock and Gregory met Attorney-General Leslie Peterson.)

CYCLICAL CRISIS

Another "unexpected crisis" which confronted Haddock — who was "absolutely green on this job when I first ook office" — occurred Saturday when about 150 young people parked their bicycles in every available parking spot on Douglas Street.

The incident was organized by a pair of University of Victoria students as a protest against the pollution caused by automobile exhaust. Haddock said there was concern as to how the businessmen in the area would react.

HARD STAND

"What do you do?", he asked. "It could have been a very touchy thing if we had taken a hard stand. Luckily, it was a miserable day and there wasn't that much activity downtown."

He also talked on the downtown parking problem itself and complained of a lack of communication at City Hall.

"Everybody thinks they have a new idea," he said. "What we need is co-ordinated activity before we can come up with solutions."

Signs of Improvement

IN CALLING FOR A NEW LOOK at the city sign bylaw, Alderman Pollen is in effect reactivating unfinished business. He deserves every support possible in seeking tougher regulations which would give more protection to the city's beauty than the existing sign bylaw does.

It is ten years since the present regulations were established, through the efforts of the city planner at that time, Mr. Rod Clack. But the original bylaw designed by the planning department ran into one of the most powerful lobbies in this community, the sign industry, and the city council of the time permitted a sorry watering-down of the original provisions through four or five revisions.

The resulting restrictions on billboards and store-front signs were an improvement on the previous chaos, but they still leave much to be desired and the current controversy over the city's Douglas Street approach indicates how the large signs have encroached on what was supposed to be an attractive tree-lined avenue leading to the city's front door.

It is anything but that, as any casual observer well knows. It has become little more than a replica of thousands of city entrances throughout this continent. The longer the trend is permitted the more difficult it will be to restore a semblance of the original concept of what Douglas Street should be like. Billboards are the worst offenders, but many smaller signs conflict and confuse the reader and the net effect of many displays is a loss both for the owner and the passerby.

If Victoria is to enhance its reputation as a garden city, a community which appreciates and makes the most of its invaluable natural setting, then one of the most effective forward steps it could take would be to impose stricter controls on all forms of commercial sign advertising so that an attractive environment becomes the main goal and the distractions are reduced to secondary importance.

A decade ago, in presenting one draft of his sign bylaw, Mr. Clack said it was "an attempt to reverse the trend of mediocrity so apparent in the average North American city, and largely due to wanton sign usage, which unfortunately is also engulfing Victoria. There exists an opportunity for the city, instead of the sign industry, largely to determine the future appearance of our urban environment through progressive sign legislation." Those words have a very pertinent application today, as they did then.

A tougher sign bylaw will call out the toughest of lobbies. But the city council should not shirk its responsibilities. Who else can make the laws to improve the city? If that is Mr. Pollen's intent, he should be given council's full backing.

Wheat as a White Elephant

THERE IS GROWING APPREhension in Ottawa and on the Prairies that the government's offer of $100 millions in subsidies to reduce Canada's wheat acreage will be drowned out by the roar of tractors pulling seeders full of wheat seed. The weekly grain letter from a Winnipeg investment firm cites three reasons.

Many farmers are afraid of serious erosion problems if they leave the land fallow for two years in a row. Perennial forage seeds needed to convert land to grass and qualify for the program's $10-an-acre payment are in short supply, and agriculturists say forage crops cannot be adapted to huge areas normally sown to wheat and other grains. Thirdly, a farmer's inclination is to plant something, and many will despite the fact that wheat deliveries will be limited to farmers taking part in the government plan.

According to some experts, these and other factors could result in a cut of only 40 per cent in acreage seeded to wheat rather than the 90 per cent cut the government was hoping for. There are, however, some bright spots. A Dominion Bureau of Statistics survey showed that farmers intended to plant only 18.2 million acres of wheat in late February as compared with 24.6 million acres last year. Perhaps the farmers' intuitive wisdom about wheat markets will have more effect than government incentives.

If the government's program proves ineffective, farmers will have no one to blame but themselves. The long-term international wheat market still has a gloomy horizon. While there are hints of a possible 37-million bushel sale to Egypt and Syria, this would put only a small dent in last year's huge surplus. On the other hand, the new Canada Grains Act which will lead to a protein-grading system for wheat could eliminate one factor that may have been discouraging Canadian wheat sales. The United States and Australia both guarantee protein content in their wheat and sales have improved since grading was instituted two years ago.

Grading and similar measures are still only housekeeping. In the forseeable future, the bread basket of the world will have to hold other commodities, not only for farmers, but for the whole Prairie economy. Agriculture has been displaced as the number one Prairie industry in at least one province, but if farmers elsewhere ignore the signposts and continue to grow wheat, they and the whole country may be faced with losses caused by a permanent glut.

A Historic German Meeting

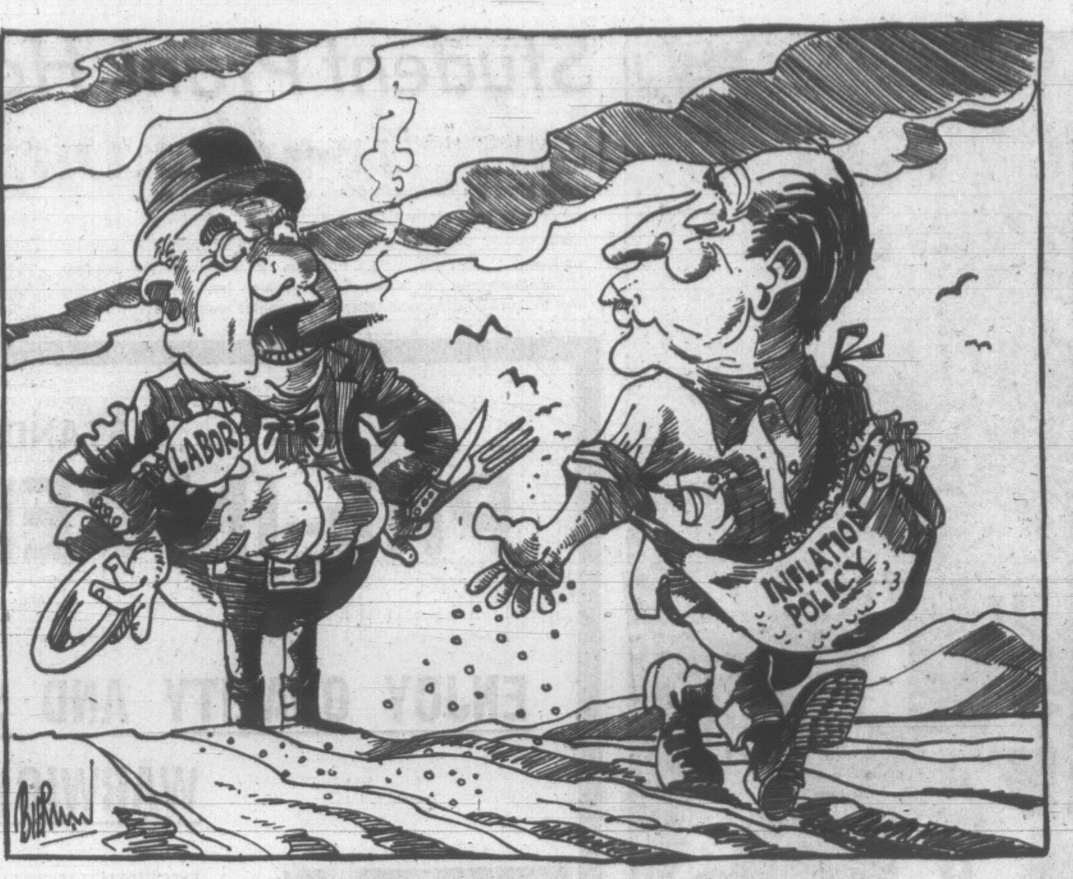
WEST GERMANY'S TRIcolor fluttered briefly in the small East German town of Erfurt recently marking the beginning of a new era in European politics. By the simple act of crossing into East Germany, Willy Brandt served notice to both Moscow and Washington that the political lines separating East and West Europe are suddenly more flexible. Chancellor Brandt's warm reception by the East German populace, despite an official Communist attempt to play down the meeting, indicates a deep and long-suffering pan-German sentiment that overides ideology.

Even this cautious meeting between Chancellor Brandt and East German Premier Willi Stoph kindles long memories in Washington and Moscow that become uneasy at the prospect of eventual German fusion, no matter how remote. In their respective economic blocs the two Germanys can extend economic hegemony over Europe. A political union would affect the world balance of power.

Any such detente, let alone reunification, is long-range speculation. But Moscow no doubt realizes, especially after Brandt's reception, that German blood is thicker than Communist rhetoric. After Walter Ulbricht leaves the scene this could become manifest. Young Germans view the cold war as an irrelevant nuisance, and East Germany's attempts to portray West Germany as a neo-Nazi Sodom never sank in.

The United States hopes an eventual detente would produce a solution to the Berlin issue, which Nikita Khrushchev aptly referred to as a bone in the throat of the East. Warming relations between the two Germanys will also bring added pressures in Congress for the United States to withdraw or cut its forces in Germany. Chancellor Brandt argues that any American withdrawal now would weaken the West's bargaining position.

The two German leaders have agreed to meet again in West Germany on May 21, and while nothing but tentative and delicate political manoeuvres can be expected from either side, the German populace on both sides of the wall must be impatient after 25 years of separation.



"... never mind the planting ... let's eat the seeds ..."

Advance Against Litter

The section of the new Litter Act providing for mandatory refunds on beer and pop containers originated as a proposal put forth by the Federation of British Columbia Naturalists about a year and a half ago. This proposal has had wide support from all over the province, and we are very concerned to see uninformed and erroneous criticism being made of it in the Legislature.

The member for Surrey, Mr. Hall, said a similar law in Vermont had been rescinded after two years. It was indeed rescinded but the law was very different because it did not cover cans. Not unnaturally Vermont became covered with cans, and repeal followed. This could not happen in this case.

Mr. Capozzi of Vancouver believes drinks will cost more, but he seems to forget deposits and refunds will remain exactly as they are now for all returnable bottles. He also worries that more drinks will be sold in bottles. Where has Mr. Capozzi been? Bottles still outsell cans 10 to 1 in the beer field and are not far behind this ratio in the soft drink field, so cans only hold a minor share of the present market. So what if the returnable bottle takes back this minor share—the real problem was the non-returnable bottle and this will now disappear. Once the backlog of containers that have not paid a deposit is cleaned up we confidently expect that the bottle deposit figure will be raised to five cents, a level that will beat this source of hard litter completely.

Mr. Kiernan deserves commendation for introducing this legislation and he is entirely right in saying it represents a new philosophy in litter control. We look forward to its extension in the future by the introduction of a special tax upon the producers of paper and plastic packaging, graded according to the actual amount of littering produced by such products. While we believe that the ultimate responsibility for cleanliness in the outdoors lies with the individual we also believe the packaging industry should not be free to tempt the individual without limit or recourse. —Federation of British Columbia Naturalists, per Elton A. Anderson, 2nd vice-president.

The Butterfield Ode

Some years ago The Daily Province ran a poem by J. Butterfield, entitled "Spring" and for some years thereafter printed the odd verse from this poem about this time of year.

One verse, of which I have a copy, runs as follows:

Er—Spring!
You perfectly priceless old thing;
I'm frightfully bucked at the signs that one sees,
The jolly old sap in the topping old trees,
The priceless old lilac, and that sort of rot,
It jolly well cheers a chap up, does it not?

Could anyone let me know where I might be able to get a copy of the entire poem? — P. E. Russell, 29-2780 Spencer.

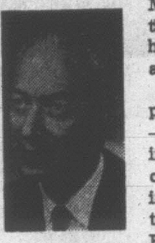
By MAURICE WESTERN

Smooth Tariff Ride on Imported Tires

THE government, by its latest arrangement with the Michelin Rubber Company of France, has apparently taken another long step towards its novel goal of the personalized customs tariff. We do not know very much about it and would probably know less if questions had not been posed in the House by two opposition members, George Hees and Max Saltsman. It is apparent, however, from the answers of the ministers of finance and industry, that the arrangement exists.



Western

We are also given to understand that it is a good thing although it may well turn out that the less we know of the details the better, in the government's view, it will be for the public interest.

The tariff is a tax imposed by law on imports and it was once a rule, with perhaps minor exceptions, that it applied equally to all taxpayers. It might be low or it might be high or it might be prohibitive; it might be for revenue or it might be for protection or it might be in the schedule merely because some bureaucrat insisted, squirrel-like, on saving it until such time as it could be used in a bargaining session. But whether rational, irrational or completely insane, it did not distinguish between Mr. Smith and Mr. Jones.

As time went on various changes were made; having to do, for example, with end use; in the cautious fashion that had traditionally distinguished the department of national revenue.

But still there was rough equality in law which was only seriously eroded when the government in recent times came to understand that it knows, better than any individual, what is good for each and every one of us. Then began the movement towards the personalized and secret tariff.

Sheep and Goats

A major reform came with Mr. Drury's famous automobile agreement. As ministers are fond of reminding us this had various economic advantages. But it did effect a clear separation between the sheep and the goats; the ordinary consumer-taxpayers who imported at their peril and the privileged manufacturers who, if they qualified by certain rules, were forgiven the duties.

Some who failed to qualify were forgiven anyway; an order-in-council being passed to afford retroactive sanctification for the departments of industry and national revenue.

At this stage the tariff might have been described as semi-personalized. Although the automobile manufacturers were set apart, they remained equals within the group — with some only a little more equal (about $80 millions worth) than the others.

The government has now taken a second step. It is anxious to attract industry to under-developed areas, this being the primary mission of Mr. Marchand's department. Legislation has been passed by Parliament which permits the government to encourage industrial development by a variety of incentives and generous grants. Much public money is being spent for this purpose.

Supplementing Hand-Outs

It appears, however, that hand-outs of this sort were inadequate to meet the case of Michelin, which is establishing in Nova Scotia. To meet this particular situation a duty-free arrangement was worked out permitting the company, according to Mr. Hees, to import an unlimited quantity of automobile and truck tires.

The understanding in the industry is that this will have a life of three years, enabling the company to become well established in the North American market.

Many Canadians would welcome duty-free tires. Some companies might welcome them on Mr. Drury's across-the-board-for-manufacturers basis. But a new principle has been established.

In the words of Jean-Luc Pepin: "We study each of these cases on its merits. This is what we did in the Michelin case. I think the decision was a good one." Mr. Pepin further explained: "I think there is a case of specialization involved here. I understand that Michelin tires are not produced by others in Canada."

As every consumer knows, every producer claims that his tires are special — see any advertisement any time. But if there is in this case the difference claimed, why was not a separate item inscribed in the customs tariff? It could then have been announced by Mr. Benson in his budget and approved in the regular way by the House of Commons. The privilege of free entry would have been open to anybody as and when they qualified.

Secret Deals

No doubt the deal involves economic advantages as the ministers argue. In the absence of details, who can appraise it? But we are now in the position that the government makes secret deals with individual firms about tariff concessions. The principle could be extended throughout the system. What is good for Mr. Smith is no longer good for Mr. Jones. What a man or a company pays depends on who he is and what sort of pact he has been able to make with the government.

At times in the past firms have been caught in price-fixing activities made possible by the protective tariff. The Restrictive Trade Practices Commission has occasionally recommended that the government should use its undoubted powers, under the relevant act, to remove the protection in the consumer interest.

Never has such a recommendation been accepted and one of the standard excuses always has been that government could not distinguish between innocent sheep and guilty goats but would have to punish the whole industry.

It now appears that in the case of the Michelin sheep, and doubtless of other favored sheep in future this rule is out. What was never done for consumers will be eagerly done for chosen industrialists. We are now to have the personalized tariff to complement the personalized income tax.

If this impression is wrong, the government is at fault since it does not choose to take us into its confidence but yields information only through carefully rationed answers to questions it cannot evade in parliament. Mr. Pepin should recall the automobile experience and reveal all the facts now, if only to save on whitewash later.

FROM NEW YORK

By JAMES RESTON

Misused Power Supplanting Reason

THE idea is growing in America today that nothing succeeds but power. Reason, common sense, and compromise are ineffective, according to this theory, but defiance works.

Reston

And the new thing and the most disturbing thing, is that most people seem to feel that this theory is not only wrong and dangerous but that they are helpless to do anything about it.

The most powerful communities in the nation now seem most powerless when confronted by the defiance of the minority and the helplessness of the law and the majority. And the defiance of the minority is now spreading to government employees.

Last week, the municipal employees of San Francisco tied up the city for the first time in history. This week the Federal employees have paralyzed the postal services of New York City, and their strike is spreading into neighboring states, against the clear prohibition of the law.

The postal employees in New York have a legitimate grievance. They are asked to survive in this spectacularly expensive city on the same low wages that are tolerable for mail carriers in the small towns of the nation, and they have clearly decided that they can not only break the law but get away with it and be rewarded in the process.

One letter-carrier in New York expressed the defiant mood of the moment. "Everybody else strikes and gets a big pay increase," he told Damon Stetson of The New York Times. "The teachers, sanitation men and transit workers all struck in violation of the law and got big increases. Why shouldn't we? We've been nice guys too long."

More Serious

No doubt New York will survive for a few days without mail, and considering all the junk mail, even rejoice, but surviving without law, without penalties even for Federal employees who defy the law, is more serious.

"Government implies the power of making laws," said Alexander Hamilton in the Federalist Papers. "It is essential to the idea of a law that it be attended with a sanction; or in other words, a penalty or punishment for disobedience. If there is no penalty annexed to disobedience, the resolution or commands which pretend to be laws will, in fact, amount to nothing more than advice or recommendation."

This is about where we are today in American cities, and even with the Federal employees. They think there is no remedy for their grievances except defiance, and no penalty for punishment for defiance, which raises some interesting questions.

If government employees defy the law of the government, why shouldn't anybody else? If they are rewarded and not punished by their defiance, why not the militant students, the militant blacks, the radicals of the right and the left, Lester Maddox, Rap Brown, and all the other extremists?

Power is the thing today. Everybody is using it. Not only the municipal workers in San Francisco and the postal workers in New York, but the Mayor of New York, and the Governor of New York, both Republicans, against the President of the United States, also a Republican, and against each other.

Fighting Among Selves

Mayor Lindsay and Governor Rockefeller are fighting over the budget of the state, and both are fighting with President Nixon over policies and priorities.

Like the postal workers, they are concentrating on their own interests. They have given up on reason and decided to rely on power.

The result is obvious: The Mayor is fighting with the Governor over the budget, the Governor is fighting with the Mayor over priorities; both are condemning the President for not making more money available to the state and city; the mail carriers are striking against both the Mayor and the Governor, and they are confused and frustrated in the struggle.

Individually, they are reasonable men, who talk common sense and common objectives. But as representatives of state power, city power, or union power they separate and destroy their common objectives.

It is a troubling situation. Everybody is relying on power but fearing that power will divide and defeat them all in the end.

Looking Back

From the Times of March 25, 1910:

Washington, D.C. — That a trade war with Canada will be averted and the minimum tariff be declared effective for Canadian imports is the general belief here today, following conferences between Minister of Finance Fielding and Minister of Railways Graham of Canada with the State Department and with President Taft.

The Reminder of Belsen—It Could Happen Again

By COLMAN McCARTHY

A quiet and heroic anniversary will be marked in the next few months by a small group of quiet and heroic human beings—the handful of Jews who 25 years ago this spring walked, stumbled or crawled out of the German concentration camps.

They are the returnees from hell who emerged from the most massive, planned and effective killing operation in the history of the world; men had been group-murdered before by hate, but never had the killing been the result of nationalized hate.

The survivors come from places whose names, 25 years after, are still on the map and still in the nightmares: Auschwitz, Dachau, Maidanek, Buchenwald, Ravensbruck, Treblinka, Dora, Mauthausen, Belsen, Hohnstein, Belzec, Sachsenhausen and nearly a thousand others.

'Either Well or Dead'

Commander Koch, who ran one of the more "efficient" extermination camps, and the husband of Ilse Koch, had a typical slogan: "There are no sick men in my camp. They are either well or dead."

In a brilliant book, "A Sign for Cain: An Exploration of Human Violence," (Macmillan, 1966), psychiatrist Fredric Wertham writes:

"We are apt to think of concentration camps as enclosures with a few buildings surrounded by barbed-wire fences and located in isolated places. In reality, there were barracks, many buildings, big industrial installations, factories, railway stations with regular railway services, ramps, roads, connections with nearby towns and villages, big warehouses for products from the corpses and the victims' belongings, installations for torture and killing, research institutes, distribution centres, gas ovens, crematory furnaces, human bone-milling plants, gardens for the officials and so on.

"All this in the aggregate covered large territories and involved wide communications. These ramifications alone show the absurdity of the claim and belief that the population knew nothing about them. Thousands of people in the camps and in the population had working contacts with them. These camps were going concerns."

Six million is the round number history has settled on for the dead. The survivors were no more than a few hundred thousand, if that, many left the camps only to die pitiably a few days later, proof that torture is a terminal illness that no massive dose of freedom can cure.

Some, like novelist Elie Wiesel, have become watchmen of the unspeakable, letting their published words serve as outposts of reminder. A few survivors have spent the years since 1945 in mental hospitals, wondering in their silence whether it is better to lose your life or lose your mind.

Many survivors came to America, taking up life again as shopkeepers, teachers, artists, perhaps merchants, like the tormented character in "The Pawnbroker."

Occasionally, a death camp survivor is met or seen by chance. Not long ago, in a crowded New York subway, an old man clutched an overhead strap-hanger. Branded onto his wrist was a number, and the Jewish star. A group of teenagers, sandwiched behind the old man, were much taken with what they called "that weird tattoo." They laughed and joked, asking each other what kind of cool swinger the old man really was.

Hitler Promised Relief

Historians have had a field day examining the reasons behind Germany's siege of madness. They largely agree that the German people wanted relief from the social and economic misery following the defeat of World War I, and that Hitler, promising this relief, was a natural drawing card.

He is seen as a demonic monster now, but in the early 1930s he gained power on a platform of very reasonable goals: a greater Germany, a state that would "promote the industry and livelihood of all citizens." Old age pensions were promised, as well as state education for gifted children, land reform, etc.

The ominous suggestion of racism, a stifled press and suppression of left-wing dissent were often phrased in inoffensive language, with hardly anyone imagining they would be backed up by action anyway.

Once the death camps were established, a lucrative industry sprang up, with honorable corporations contracted to make the crematories, gas chambers, chemicals and so on, for the killing and disposing of bodies.

These were the board-room murderers, far from the chimneys that carried aloft the smoke of human corpses or the big boilers where Jews were made into soap; but they were not far from the progress reports, charts and graphs sent to industrialists by Himmler and the SS. In fact, the use of Jews as slave labor conveniently furthered the double purpose of Hitler's politics and Germany's economy.

Because all this happened only a generation ago, many sociologists and journalists have easily gone back for the facts.

"What happened to the firms who used slave labor?" asks Wertham. "Many of them, or their successors, are doing fine. Their shares are sound financially, even if not morally. Some of the prominent men and concerns involved in these sources of labor today hold more concentrated economic power than ever."

Among the better known firms that used slave labor from the death camps are Volkswagen Works, Krupp, Siemens, Argu-Works, Continental Rubber and Bavarian Motor Works.

Adds Wertham: "Some commercial undertakings involved in slave labor are now closely connected with American capital, so that this period merges into our own economic system."

One alumnus of the slave labor camps is Victor E. Frankl, formerly No. 119104 of Auschwitz. One of Europe's most respected psychiatrists, he has formed his own school of therapy. It is based on a central theme of existentialism: to survive the suffering of life, one must find meaning in the suffering.

Frankl wrote a small classic, "Man's Search for Meaning" in which he described daily life in his concentration camp and said that often the men who survived were those who had a strong, unwavering reason to survive: "He who has a strong enough why can endure almost any kind of how."

The question arises: Why drag out again the gore and cruelty of the concentration camps? They were just a fluke of history.

Not Fluke of History

The question would be unanswerable except for one fact: first, the Nazi madness was not a fluke of history. Mass killing is a part of nearly every civilized country's history: The Crusades, the Inquisition, to name the ones carried in the history books; but also the 15 million murdered in the colonization of South America, the 1.5 million Armenians massacred by Turkey in 1915, the Amritsar massacre in India, the near-annihilation of the American Indians by the pioneers and the U.S. army, the Hereros in Southwest Africa.

The engines of genocide may have been idling since 1945, but it is foolish to think they are not fit and ready to run on a moment's notice.

Kierans 'Efficiency' Has Sundered Cabinet

By DOUGLAS FISHER

For several weeks — up until March 17 — we seemed to have had a cabinet crisis. The public, through the press, did not become aware of it until two weekends ago.

Now that it is over, some newspapermen have been marking out the anatomy of the crisis, spurred by partisan and some self-generated speculation that Eric Kierans, the key to the crisis, has a short life prospect as a cabinet minister.

Did Kierans offer to resign over the problems of the Montreal mail truck drivers? Or did several of his colleagues, led by Jean Marchand, insist to Trudeau that they would resign unless a different approach was taken in the sticky Montreal case?

Obscured Issue

I don't know the answers to these questions. Probably no one does outside the cabinet. But it is now possible to see what the crisis was all about and to draw some conclusions about Kierans' inadequacies as the minister responsible for the post office.

The violence of the truck drivers and the major foulup in mail delivery in and out of Montreal which their tactics have caused have obscured the issue. Kierans, with his repeated declamations of a new, efficient dispensation in the post office, welcome to almost everyone, has also hidden the issue.

Some 450 drivers are involved. The contractor they work for who delivers the Royal Mail in Montreal lost the contract. On April 1, the job is to be done by new contractors whose tenders won the contracts. The men belong to a CNTU local, they are mostly French-Canadians. Their experience on the job ranges from some 30 to several years. Naturally, they feel they have some rights in the work of moving mail in Montreal.

On the one side, there is the business principle which Kierans prizes. The new contracts spelled out nothing about job rights from the previous contract; they make no requirement regarding unions, only specifying that the contractors observe the federal labor laws (labor standards, minimum wages, etc.)

Therefore, the assumption of the new contractors was that they could hire new men, almost certainly at non-union rates and without the fringe benefits of a union contract. They would not have taken such costs of organized labor into account in their tenders.

This is simple enough if 450 men and their futures were not at stake. This is the other side. In the cabinet are ministers like Marchand, Mackasey and Munro, all of whom have close links with organized labor, each of whom has given approval to the themes of the Freedman Report, one of which is that men build up a right to a job and thorough consideration, even if technological change ends their work. In this case, the jobs go on.

Is there a duty or obligation on anyone to see that the men have the right to succession; that is, to take over the work under their new contractors; and does their union have any rights?

Obviously, the union and the men had to fight for their existence. Obviously, ministers such as Marchand must support them. And in doing so, the business arguments—that the contractors are at arms-length with the government agency, the post office — won't square with their view-point's ethic.

Device to Exploit

Emotion enters into it if you have a labor background because "contracted services" in both the private and public sectors is an old device to exploit the cheapest wages in the labor market and to keep out unions or to destroy those in existence.

It is my conviction that Kierans, encouraged by his senior officials, believed that much of the long history of difficulty in the Montreal mail situation was created by militant trade unionism. They were determined to bust what unions they could, including the roughest by far, the CNTU local embracing the mail drivers.

These then were the ingredients of the crisis. They drew in Marchand and some others who insisted on the principle of a moral duty to the workers in relation to job security. Kierans got the message, apparently, during several weeks of cabinet argument and he undertook to meet at long last the demands of the men by admitting the obligation and offering the prospect of jobs for a few and severance pay for all (a sum of $305,000 was mentioned).

Jobs are more intrinsic to workers than severance pay and the response was bad. Kierans compounded the confusion by a number of rash public statements.

There seems to have been "either the jobs are guaranteed or else . . ." from Marchand and friends. Trudeau solved it by throwing his friend, Carl Goldenberg, in as mediator.

This has saved Kierans' face. It isn't clear what it has done for his contestants in the cabinet. If there is a loser it may be Labor Minister Mackasey. After all, he had gained a temporary truce. He was working on a settlement, assisted by his deserved reputation as a labor crisis solver. At the end, he and his officials were derricked in favor of an outsider.

'Architecture Must Touch the Heart'

By ANTHONY LEWIS

LONDON — In many ways architecture is the most important of the arts. Each of us may be moved most deeply by a particular form of creative inspiration, one by music and another by painting.

But architecture is inescapable. More than we know, it determines our state of mind. Bad design can offend the sensitive almost physically, and even the man who thinks he does not notice may be degraded by the vulgarity and emptiness of his setting.

One of the great contemporary engineer-designers, Ove Arup, speculated the other night on the sources and meaning of architecture. He was speaking to the Royal Society.

Architecture, he said, is in part a matter of mundane, practical considerations — of competence. "It is a way of building."

Perhaps Arup would accept for design a translation of Noel Coward's recipe for successful acting: "Speak clearly and do not bump into people."

But as there is to acting, there is more to architecture. "It must touch the heart," Arup said. "It must give us a shock of delight."

●

The sense of fulfilment that we draw from a good building comes from a combination of workmanship and spirituality. Buildings, Arup pointed out, may unconsciously, even accidentally, express the emotions that inspired them.

Architecture may appear to us as "forceful, bombastic, exuberant, or modest, restrained, controlled, serene or exciting. And this spiritual quality, which can neither be defined nor created according to a formula or recipe, but which can contribute so much to our happiness, this quality is the result of personal involvement, of enthusiasm."

Arup was being a bit idealistic in that passage, or maybe he was saying that much of the building in our society does not qualify as architecture. For the emotions that an honest man would find if he tried to anthropomorphize the structures around us would mostly be greed or pomposity or totalitarian soullessness. We visit Venice, Bath, Williamsburg. But who would think of finding esthetic pleasure in a city or town of the Twentieth Century?

The basic responsibility for the landscape of our cities lies with those who plan and finance them. The attitude of "clients and government departments," Arup said, "of lawyers and administrators," shows their failure to understand that "design is a creative activity."

The Doges of Venice were not necessarily less avaricious than the city councillors and real estate promotors of today, or less intent on symbolic structural displays of their power. But they had something that the creators of our monuments lack — educated taste, possibly, or a unified vision of life.

●

Just as scientific knowledge has outpaced moral understanding in modern life, so our material ability to build buildings has outgrown our sense of urban order, or sense of the beauty that the eye desires in any structure.

Until we learn to demand that fulfilling beauty, we cannot call ourselves — in the fundamental sense of the word — civilized.

Clothing the Mind and the Man

By ART STOTT

When UBC's Dr. David Suzuki, one of Canada's top geneticists, spoke to the University Extension Association here a couple of years ago, he opened a lot of eyes to the miracles and hazards of developments in his field. This was an exceedingly competent young man, conventional in appearance, with such a mastery of his subject that he could convincingly predict the ability of science to change man, physically, mentally, morally — to alter the character of the individual by suitable use of specific genes and the elimination of others.

Stott

On Monday evening Dr. David Suzuki opened more eyes wider in his appearance before the same assocation, to which he delivered a characteristically excellent lecture. The Suzuki externals had changed. He stood in a pair of square-toed, square-heeled and buckled yellow boots, above which rose the legs of red trousers, a paisley print shirt predominantly blue and purple, over a black turtle-neck sweater and under a beige jacket. His spectacles were round and metal-rimmed, his hair long. His diction had been slightly modified. A spectacular discovery on blood cells had "blown his mind."

* * *

In friendly discussion after the lecture, he was asked, politely, why he had chosen to wear casual clothes for the occasion. They weren't casual, he replied. They were his dress-up clothes and he wore them because he liked them.

It may not be courteous to discuss a person's costume. It is discussed here to suggest a point. Many of us in the association are not accustomed to such dress at our meetings. We tend to accept the conventional, as we define conventional, and we are startled by departures from it.

Maybe it's time we were startled right out of our conventional reactions and attitudes, because this isn't the conventional world in which we grew up, or in which we were young. Perhaps the visual impact should jostle us out of the mental preconceptions we have been wearing — and which were very comfortable to us — because today reveals different mantles of thought and behavior.

* * *

That was the impression with which I left the meeting.

David Suzuki is a scientist of such ability that he can, and does, claim top grants for research in the forefront of his field. His capacity to convey knowledge to others brought him runner-up honors in the first Master Teacher Award granted in British Columbia. Beyond that he is intensely human, deeply concerned — and in spite of it all, optimistic.

As I understood his talk Monday evening, he places high priority on the task of informing people of the double cutting edge of science, one side for immense good, the other for irremediable harm.

He is anti-Establishment. Whether or not he'd accept the premise that every school of thought creates its own Establishment, I don't know.

At all events, he is more conscious than most — and with better information to support his point of view — of the dangers in applying modern science for the short-term benefits it undoubtedly can produce. He projects the DDT experience to indicate science's potential for long-range injury. DDT did a highly efficient job of killing harmful pests. It also inflicted grave injury by killing beneficial life. And it led to the development of bug strains highly resistant to DDT — the kind of bugs that ate up DDT like a child eats candy and calls for more.

He talked about the Pill, looking beyond the currently controversial effect it may have on the individual using it to the possible ecological effect it may have on marine life near sewer outfalls when the human waste of Pill users is discharged into the sea. Nobody, he suggested, had thought the thing through to that point.

He discounts the argument of pure science that it is concerned only with pushing back the borders of knowledge and he says the researcher has to look further, to see what use, good or bad, will be made of his research. In one area of bacteriology, for instance, he notes that scientists have produced a poison that can be wedded to the most common component of human life in a way to assure its spread all over the world, to wipe out not only a designated "enemy", but also the people who use it. Why, he asks?

We ought to find out what it's going to do before we produce a "miracle" of this type.

* * *

He stays with his research because of his belief in its almost unlimited power for good. And he offers a suggestion for a leading role Canada might play — a role to which he thinks this nation particularly adapted. His proposal is for the assembly of scientists and others in all fields to concentrate together on their individual studies to assure good results from what is loosely called "progress" — and to ensure that the harm inherent in so much scientific development is eradicated, or stopped before it begins.

Altogether an eye-opening talk by an eye-opening personality.

MARKET SUMMARIES

New York Zips Ahead

Sparked by a reduction in prime interest rates by several United States financial institutions prices on North American stock markets scored major advances in heavey trading today.

By noon at New York the Dow Jones industrial index had soared 20.33 points to 794.09. It finished the day at 790.13, up 16.37 points.

A reduction by Irving Trust Co. of New York in its lending rate to eight per cent from 8½ touched off a round of similiar cuts by others including the Bank of America.

Markets at Toronto, Montreal and Vancouver responded to the spectacular rise on Wall Street.

AT TORONTO, in industrials, Levy rose 3 to 17, Seaway 2⅞ to 12¾, GMC 2¾ to 80½, Chrysler 2⅝ to 32 and Inco 1 to 49¼.

Electrohome dropped 1⅝ to 28, Du Pont 1⅛ to 22 and Canadian Imperial Bank ⅛ to 21½.

Pine Point gained 1¼ to 33⅛ and Denison 1⅛ to 38½. Endako slipped ¾ to 12¾.

Central-Del Rio advanced ⅝ to 12½ and Scurry ¾ to 28⅝.

AT NEW YORK the advance ranged through major groups with motors, drugs, and savings and loans particularly strong.

Prices among the most-active issues included Fairchild Camera, up 2⅜ to 75⅞; Westinghouse Electric, up 1¾ to 67; RCA, up ¾ to 31⅛; Litton Industries, off ½ to 24⅞; National Steel, up ¾ to 40⅝; and Telex, up ½ to 126½.

AT MONTREAL the stock market followed Wall Street upward in heavy trading today.

Canadian International Power gained 2½ to 33, Canadian Pacific Railway 1¼ to 66½, Velcro Industries 1 to 27 and Industrial Acceptance ⅜ to 14⅝.

In senior mines and oils, Denison was up 1¼ to 38½, Falconbridge 1 to 177½ and Hudson Bay Mining and Smelting ¾ to 85, all in extremely light trading. Rio Algom advanced ⅝ to 20

Commodore Business Machines, on the Canadian Stock Exchange, moved ahead ¾ to 6⅞ and Seaway Multi Corp. 1⅜ to 12½.

AT LONDON, the New York stock rally and some encouraging company news sent stock prices upward here today.

EMI, Beechams and Rank had gains of up to 3s, while smaller rises were seen in ICI, Bats and Unilever.

Dollar stocks were generally firm.

In Canadians, Dome, Gulf, Canadian Husky, Hiram Walker, Canadian Pacific, Consolidated Bathurst and Power Corp. advanced. Syracuse and Hudson's Bay Oil and Gas moved lower against the trend. Banks were quiet.

AT VANCOUVER, prices were high and trading moderate today on the stock exchange. Estimated volume to 11:30 a.m. was 1,428,720 shares.

Leading industrial was Driver Development, down .05 at .90, on a turnover of 11,300 shares. Northwest Life Financial slipped .05 to $4.50 and Captain International rose .25 to $5.25.

United Bata Resources, off .05 at $2.85, led the oils on a volume of 27,600. Canarctic rose .06 to .96 while Plains Petroleum slipped .02 to .40.

Leading mine on a trade of 105,000 shares was Kopan Development, up .01½ at .21. Casino Silver climbed .70 to $3.35 and Brenmac gained .05 to .87.

TODAY'S GRAIN PRICES

WINNIPEG (CP) — Trading was generally light in all commodities with some aggressive buying in rapeseed and flax at the close of the Winnipeg Grain Exchange today.

Rapeseed and flax saw some exporter buying but the volume was down.

There was moderate buying in oats and barley for eastern feeders and rye drew some miller and shipper buying.

Confirmation was received overnight of the sale of 1,800,000 bushels of No. 3 Northern to Bulgaria. Export loadings of Canadian wheat included 896,000 bushels to China and 28,000 to Peru.

Lakehead prices for Class Two and IGA wheat were unchanged.

CHICAGO (AP) — Grain futures closed on an irregular tone on the Board of Trade today after trading in a very narrow price range.

Soybeans, which had lost more than a cent in early dealings, rallied late in the session. Soybean oil bulled ahead some 40 points. Meal futures fell back around $1.25. Trade in the major pits was light, in a typical pre-holiday session.

There was little outside incentive for any wide movement of grain futures prices. The weather influenced some early buying of wheat. Rye futures were irregular in slow trade. Commercial buying and short covering was a factor in a one-cent advance in oats.

Compulsion May Be Necessary

TORONTO (CP) — Senator Maurice Lamontagne says he is afraid "compulsion will have to be used" in some measure to help curb Canada's inflation.

The Liberal senator said "it would be wonderful if voluntary controls could work effectively."

"Unfortunately, I do not think that they will, at least in the long run. How could we expect self-restraint to work in a situation of collective irresponsibility?

"I am afraid compulsion will have to be used in some form and in some areas to curb the power of bigness in business and in labor unions."

Speaking to the annual shareholders meeting of Canadian Corporate Management Co. Ltd., Senator Lamontagne said Canada should "concentrate on the direct approach to combat structural inflation."

"In order to achieve this goal under present circumstances, we should have easier and cheaper money, abandon the idea of consumer credit restrictions and eliminate the surplus contemplated in the recent budget, through selective tax cuts."

Mood of Caution Among Consumers

WASHINGTON (CP) — American embassy experts in Ottawa have forecast a slower growth this year of Canada's gross national product, but they predict "exceptionally broad" export possibilities for American goods.

"Government measures to fight inflation," states a semi-annual economic-trends report from the U.S. embassy, "are expected to reduce the growth of Canada's GNP to about seven per cent, compared with 9.3 per cent in 1969."

The report said surveys of consumer attitudes in Canada reveal a mood of caution in 1970, especially regarding purchase of large items such as homes, automobiles and major appliances with extended payments and high interest costs.

"Total consumer expenditures are expected to rise about seven per cent this year, down from the 9.4 per cent increase in 1969," the report says.

"Given the traditional leading U.S. position on virtually all categories of Canadian imports, U.S. export possibilities are exceptionally broad."

IN GREAT DEMAND

The report, printed in a commerce department publication here, says Canadian demands for air and water pollution controls has made such equipment No. 1 among new areas of rising demand.

Other fields considered among the top prospects for U.S. exports include devices to control noise, advanced office equipment and extensive developments in petroleum exploration, production and transportation.

The report sees Ontario, Alberta and British Columbia as the most important markets for exports and the provinces least affected by the slowdown in national growth.

It also notes that Japan is moving up among Canada's four major suppliers and could replace the United Kingdom in the second slot, but still is far behind the U.S.

Canadian imports from the U.S. and the U..K in 1969 were up 14 per cent, the report states, but those from Japan rose 40 per cent, mostly in automobiles.

The report also discusses the issue of foreign ownership.

WELCOMES POSITION

"The federal and provincial governments," it states, "maintain their positions that foreign investment is essential for Canadian economic growth and such investment which follows Canadian guidelines on 'good corporate citizenship' is welcomed.

"There is nonetheless a continuing concern in Canada over the extent of foreign ownership."

The report says the Canadian government has tackled inflation on three fronts.

Tight monetary policy has resulted in the highest interest rates in Canada's history, a tough federal fiscal policy is expected to produce a budgetary surplus next year and a commission has been established that has extracted commitments from business firms to retain price increases.

Despite this and a predicted higher unemployment rate, the report adds, imports will continue to rise in 1970, but by less than the 15-per-cent gain in 1969, while exports may record about the same nine-per-cent rate of increase they did last year.

Nader's 'Raiders' Level New Blast

WASHINGTON (WP) Who needs the Interstate Commerce Commission?

That question, to paraphrase the current advertising campaign of one ICC-regulated industry, was asked in a massive study of the agency by Ralph Nader's "Raiders."

Given its present status as "an elephant's graveyard for political hacks," according to the seven young law students who prepared the study, the answer to the question is that the ICC should be quietly phased out of existence.

Given both the question and the answer, a good number of people who work for the nation's oldest regulatory agency — and not a small number of those regulated by it — have asked in return: who needs Ralph Nader?

Nader has been dismissed with similar challenges before — by members of the Federal Trade Commission (FTC), officers of General Motors, and others tired of his continual probing, court suits and speech-making on an enormous variety of subjects.

Few people, however, can deny the impact of consumerism on the U.S. scene since Nader went after Detroit's seeming lack of concern about automobile safety. The day (only three years ago) when a peotential car-buyer could be told by the showroom salesman that seat-belts "aren't really that important," is gone forever, thanks in large measure to Nader and his colleagues.

Nothing demonstrated the Nader impact better that what happened at the ICC beween the day it was announced that the agency would be scrutinized by a group of young law students, and last Monday morning when the students went to Capitol Hill to release their report.

KEY ACTIONS

By then, the ICC already had taken key actions in a number of areas to ease problems cited by the students. While some ICC staff members contend these developments represented routine conclusion of commission activities, the flurry of activity may have blunted the public impact of the Nader report.

The Nader team study, for example, called for a broad overhaul of ICC regulation of the home-moving industry — less than two weeks after the agency announced tough new regulations that duplicate in some respects the recommendations of the Nader associates. Robert Fellmeth, a Harvard law school student who headed the ICC study, conceded he was "moderately pleased" by ICC's action on home-moving, although a major complaint by the students — that the ICC doesn't investigate home-moving tariffs — wasn't dealt with in the new regulations.

Similarly, the students's criticisms of rail rate procedures came on the heels of an agency decision to conduct a full investigation of all railroad charges, and attacks on the agency's do-nothing policy about persistent boxcar shortage followed several orders by the ICC to combat the problem.

On the subject of racism, the Nader team charged the ICC's systematic exclusion of any new competitors for existing carriers had the additional effect of virtually eliminating the development of minority-owned business. Several past examples were cited. A month before the Nader study was made public, however, ICC backed a plan for a black-owned charter bus company in Harlem over the vigorous objections of the nation's leading bus firms.

U.S. Affiliates Plan Vigorous Expansion

WASHINGTON (WP) — Overseas affiliates of U.S. companies plan to boost their plant and equipment spending a whopping 20 per cent in 1970, the commerce department reported Tuesday.

The biggest increase would come in western Europe, where the U.S. government's program to curb capital outflows is most stringent. (Limits are placed on corporate dollar outflows to assist the precarious U.S. balance of payments.)

Unless those curbs over foreign investment abroad are loosened, a major part of the projected expansion must be financed in Europe's already-strained capital markets.

Commerce Secretary Maurice Stans said recently there was no likelihood of easing the curbs "before sometime late this year." Even then, it could only happen after the balance of payments showed substantial improvement, he said.

U.S. affiliates in Canada also plan a vigorous expansion in their capital spending this year, forecasting a 26 per cent gain. This follows a 1969 increase of 10 per cent, according to commerce department data.

Prominent B.C. Engineer Dies

VANCOUVER (CP) — William George Swan, who founded the Vancouver engineering firm of Swan Wooster Engineering Co. Ltd. and worked on some of the province's major bridges, died Tuesday at the age of 85.

Born Sept. 27, 1884 at Kincardine, Ont., and educated at the University of Toronto, Mr. Swan came to B.C. in 1910 to pursue a career that spanned more than five decades.

Among bridges he worked on were the Lions Gate Bridge from Vancouver to the north shore and the Patullo Bridge in nearby New Westminster.

Burns Foods

Burns Foods Ltd. board of directors have voted to subdivide the common shares of the company into three common shares.

The directors also decided to increase the authorized capital of the company by creating 750,000 first preferred shares with a par value of $20 a share, issuable in series.

Shareholder approval will be sought at the annual meeting in Toronto April 20.

BrenMac

An adit being driven by Bren Mac Mines Ltd. at its Washington state Cascade Mountain property 45 miles east of Everett has struck a copper-molybdenum breccia zone.

The company reports its consultant urges continued diamond drilling and drifting to outline the extent of the ore.

Six diamond drill locations have been set up and crosscuts developed.

Van Der Hout

Last year's earnings rose 135 per cent from 1968, reports Van Der Hout Associates Ltd., Toronto-based maker and distributor of auto parts.

Per share earnings of 54 cents compared with 23 cents in the previous year, based on totals of $451,304 and $182,418, the 1969 figure including extraordinary items worth $32,400.

Gabriel of Canada Ltd. earnings were included for the first time (owned 49 per cent by Van Der Hout) and 1968 results were adjusted to allow for this.

DuPont

Du Pont of Canada Ltd. reports net income of $16.3 million or $2.05 a share for the year ended Dec. 31, 1969, up from $12 million or $1.51 in 1968.

Net income included a gain of $2.78 million from the sale of assets of Agusta Natural Gas Ltd., a wholly-owned subsidiary.

Du Pont's total sales in 1969 were a record $228.28 million compared with $207.7 million in 1968.

Cadillac

Cadillac Development Corp. Ltd. reports net earnings for 1969 totalled $2.47 million, or 24 cents a share, against $1.6 million equal to 16.5 cents a share in 1968. The increase is equal to 45 per cent, or 54 per cent including capital gain.

Total assets exceeded $197 million, up $26 million.

Control of Seaway Acquired by Levy

TORONTO (CP) — M. A. Levy said today Levy family interests have acquired control of Seaway Multi-Corp Ltd. of Toronto.

His statement came after a surge of buying in Seaway stock on the Toronto Stock Exchange Tuesday which pushed the common stock up $2.12. It closed at $9.87 after hitting a 1970 high of $12.

Mr. Levy's statement said the family has "acquired a controlling position in the outstanding common stock" of Seaway. He did not elaborate but said he expected "election of a board . . . to implement policies of the family to forward the interests of the shareholders, at the next general meeting of the company."

Argus Inc. of Chicago said last week it planned to offer $7.50 a share for control of Seaway.

Seaway bought control of Levy Industries early last year for about $28,000,000, through a share purchase from the Levy family. Almost from the start there was a split on the Seaway board between management and representatives of the Levy family.

Benjamin Levy resigned recently as a Seaway director and criticized management. Seaway last week issued writs against members of the Levy family alleging fraudulent misrepresentation in the sale of Levy Industries to Seaway. Levy Industries also launched an action against the same defendants.

Hope-Based Firm Gets New Project

Award of a $1.7 million heavy construction contract at Rupert Inlet gives Emil Anderson Construction Co. Ltd. major projects at both ends of Vancouver Island.

Rupert Inlet, at the north end of the Island, is site of Utah Construction and Mining Co.'s $70 million Island Copper Mine, due to be brought into production in 1972, for which Anderson has the clearing and mill site preparation contract.

HYDRO JOB

The Hope-based company is already engaged in a major undertaking at the south end of the Island, the general contract for B.C. Hydro's Jordan River generating station expansion.

Utah has awarded more than $4 million in contracts for its mining venture, in which Fluor Utah is primary contractor for design and mill construction, and which is sub-contracting $3.69 million worth of work.

Utah Construction has awarded $430,000 worth of work directly.

Western Catering Ltd. has a $1 million order for supplying and servicing camp facilities; Fabtec Structures Ltd. has one worth $557,750 for supplying and installing camp buildings; Nanaimo Bulldozing will clear a townsite for $196,000; Permasteel Engineering Ltd. will supply office and warehouse buildings for $150,600; Port Hardy Bulldozing will prepare a dock site for $140,000; Columbia Construction Co. Ltd. will clear the camp site for $75,000, and N. L. Creelman will build a barge dock grid for $20,000.

ARCHITECTS

Island Tug and Barge Ltd. and Johnston Terminals Ltd. have contracts for barge and marshalling yard service; Columbia has a second contract for $122,000 to build a mill access road, and A. and B. Construction Ltd. will build five homes at Port Hardy for $112,000.

Architects McCarter, Nairne and Partners have designed the townsite, to cost $3.7 million initially, which will be integrated with Port Hardy.

A variety of housing styles is planned, including townhouses, duplexes, detached houses and apartments, first of which is expected to be built soon.

D. B. Furlong

The Canadian Petroleum Association announces the appointment of Mr. D. B. Furlong as Managing Director and Chief Executive Officer reporting to the Board of Governors. A former senior executive in the oil industry, Mr. Furlong for the last five years has been general manager of the Saskatchewan Power Corporation, the Crown-owned gas and electric utility. He is also a former chairman of the Board of Governors of the Canadian Petroleum Association and of its Saskatchewan Division Board of Directors. Earlier oil industry posts included eleven years with the Anglo Iranian Oil Company in Iran and six years as president and general manager of Producers Pipelines Ltd. and Westspur Pipe Line Company in Regina. Mr. Furlong's appointment comes at a time when Canada's oil and gas producing industry is moving rapidly from a western Canada orientation into the northern and offshore areas of the country. The Canadian Petroleum Association, whose members represent 97% of all oil and gas production in Canada, have offices at Calgary, Victoria, Regina and Ottawa.

Ottawa, U.S. Facing Head-On Clash Over Auto Pact

By CARL MOLLINS

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada is manoeuvring to avoid a head on collision with the United States over the terms of their trade in automobiles.

Intermittent talks have been under way since last fall about the future of the five-year-old auto trade pact, which governs cross-border commerce in motor vehicles and the parts used in their manufacture.

Negotiations were prompted by U.S. authorities, who have declared their determination to have Canadian protective features of the trade arrangement dismantled. There's political push, too, behind the move, generated by conviction that the agreement has worked lopsidedly in Canada's favor.

The Canadian side is just as insistent that the safeguard measures must stay.

WORK TO RESHUFFLE

But the Canadian government, which regards the trade pact as an industrial bonanza, also wants to avoid a crash that would wreck the agreement. Either side can abrogate it with a year's notice.

Canadian negotiators thus would be happy if the sporadic talks sputtered along indefinitely and inconclusively.

Failing that unlikely outcome, they will work for a reshuffling of features that would leave the protective measures basically untouched.

At issue are so-called transitional arrangements set up to safeguard the Canadian side of the industry from being swamped as trade barriers were partly removed. The free trade features of the agreement have applied only at the manufacturer level—not to the auto retail trade.

Declared objectives of the pact signed Jan. 16, 1965, were threefold:

—To build a continental market with specialized, large-scale production of automotive products in both Canada and the U.S.

OBJECTIVES HAZY

—To free U.C.-Canada vehicle trade from tariffs and other inhibiting factors while aiming to let both countries share the total continental market "on a fair and equitable basis."

—To develop conditions under which trade, production and investment would be governed by market forces.

The objectives are hazy enough to permit myriad interpretations.

For example, the fact that Canadian factories now assemble more complete cars, trucks and buses for the North American market than the number of vehicles Canadians buy might be seen as more than "fair and equitable" for Canada.

But looking at the dollar value of the components, materials and labor that go into the vehicles, Canada is on the short end—producing the equivalent of eight American-style vehicles for every 10 bought in Canada.

Five years ago the picture was different. Canada was clearly getting the worst of the trade deal, so trade-pact arrangements were designed to redress the imbalance.

Canada Would Be Happy If Talks Sputtered Along

The pact permitted a measure of duty-free trade in cars, trucks, buses and parts for use in original assembly, but not replacement parts.

In the U.S., the right to duty-free imports of complete vehicles is available to anybody, although there would be little sense in an American motorist buying his car in Canada, because Canadian prices are higher.

In Canada, only vehicle manufacturers have the right to import U.S.-made vehicles duty-free.

VALUE MUST GROW

Some safeguards were written into the definition of a Canadian manufacturer who would get duty-free privileges.

In effect, they require the Canadian to assemble at least as many vehicles as he sells of that type in Canada.

Further, through a combination of the pact and an arrangement between the Canadiar government and the manufacturers, the value of Canadian content in labor and materials included in the total production must grow along with sales.

Result of the safeguards in the first place was an expansion and modernization of Canadian factories—mainly subsidiaries of the U.S. manufacturers—which has involved an estimated $1,000,000,000 of investment in facilities and employment.

The Canadian industry was transformed. Instead of Canadian factories assembling a whole range of American cars from largely-imported components, cost-cutting specialization set in.

Canadian factories now are building vehicles or components for the whole North American market in bigger, more-efficient production runs. Similarly, American factories concentrate on other models and products both for the U.S. and to fill gaps in Canadian output.

Growth in Canada was spectacular. In five years, production of motor vehicles in Canada grew by about 85 per cent while sales went up by about 25 per cent in terms of units.

On the U.S. side of the border, worries grew that Canada was getting a disproportionate share of growth in employment, investment, production and trade.

U.S. fears were reinforced by concern about an unbalanced outflow of funds and the deterioration of the North American automobile business late last year.

While two-way trade in automotive products grew from a pre-pact value of about $800,000,000 to more than $5,000,000,000 in five years, Canada's deficit was halved from the 1964 gap of more than $600,000,000.

Further, Canada seemed set to suffer least from reductions in output caused by the slump in the North American automotive market. The newest, most efficient plants are in Canada and car-assembly factories here concentrate on cheaper models most likely to be popular when spending is restricted.

SUPPORT ENTRENCHED

In Canada, support for the auto pact arrangements thus has become deeply entrenched in politically potent industrial and labor organizations.

To U.S. arguments that it is time to relax Canadian restrictions against imports—thereby loosening Canadian-content safeguards—Canada responds that its "fair and equitable" share of the continental market has not been established because impediments to truly free trade remain.

The main impediment is the fact that corporate decisions on the allocation of investment and production rest with the U.S. parents of the automotive companies.

Those decisions are subject to political influence from the most powerful partner in the trade pact, Canada says. Even the current negotiations amount to a form of political pressure on the big car makers—they are likely to tread warily now in deciding which side of the border should have new investment, production or employment.

STATISTICS DISAGREE

The closed-door negotiations have been stalled because U.S. and Canadian auto-trade statistics disagreed. That problem was virtually resolved at a Washington meeting in February—opening the way for argument on the central issues.

Main factors favoring Canada—a counterweight to U.S. political pressures—include the knowledge that the big U.S. car makers would hesitate to throw away benefits still to be reaped on their heavy Ontario investments to make a political point. The companies make a profit on either side of the border.

Indications are that the U.S. manufacturers look favorably on Canada for expansion as production costs narrow towards U.S. costs, mainly because they regard Canadian labor as more stable.

On the other hand, Canadian officials have their backs up against what they regard as a political reality that would prevent them from balking to the point of seeing the auto pact collapse and Canada retreating into automotive nationalism.

That reality, as they see it, is that Canadian voters want U.S.-style cars in all their chromium variety.

They seek a compromise settlement that would let each side claim victory.

A compromise could involve reducing Canadian tariffs on vehicles and components imported by Canadians other than manufacturers.

Such a move would have the effect of reducing the gap between higher Canadian retail prices and those in the United States. It would also tend to stimulate more-competitive efficiency in Canadian plants.

At the same time, Canada would want to retain at least a variation of present safeguards guaranteeing continued growth of the Canadian industry, perhaps through an arrangement whereby the international companies agree to allocate a specified share of total investment in the Canadian part of their business.

Teen-Ager Jailed Assaulting Pair

An 18-year-old youth was sentenced to one month in jail by Judge William Ostler Tuesday for two counts of common assault.

Robert J. Juneau, 18, of 1029 Tolmie, approached two youths in Centennial Square March 12 about 10:15 p.m. and tried to sell a wristwatch to one of them.

When the youth refused to buy the watch Juneau struck him, knocking him to the ground, and then turned and hit the second youth.

Crown prosecutor Peter Birkett noted the accused had an "unfortunate history for violence" and added the attacks on the two were "unprovoked."

Ostler pointed out Juneau would have to learn to think before hitting and sentenced him to a month on each charge, to be served concurrently.

Peter S. Jones, 25, of 682 Alpha, was fined $500 for assaulting a police officer.

He struck the officer investigating a domestic dispute he was involved in March 15 about 5:10 a.m. at the scene of the dispute and later at the police station.

Crown prosecutor Birkett said he felt that liquor, separation from family and Jones' deteriorating relationship with inlaws contributed to the incident.

He added that Jones had no previous record.

Ostler noted the accused's conduct throughout was "disgraceful" but took into account the fact that he was a hard worker with no convictions.

★ ★ ★

Noel Bruneau, 20, of 1131 Pandora, received a suspended sentence and was placed on probation for one year for two counts of theft, one over $50, the other under.

He pleaded guilty earlier to taking three lawn chairs, valued at $22, from a home on Nanaimo Street and several items including a radio and tape recorder worth a total of $78 from another home on the same street.

Police discovered the stolen items during a search of an auto March 15 about 2 a.m.

Esther F. Miller, 37, of 1017 Costin, was fined $250 for driving an auto without insurance.

Jack Mair, 56, of 550 Johnson, waived preliminary hearing and was committed for trial for possession over $50.

Bail was set at $4,000.

Electricians Accept Wage Boost

VANCOUVER (CP) — About 1,300 electrical workers employed in the construction industry in British Columbia Tuesday voted to accept a new wage contract.

The men voted by a margin of 65 per cent to accept the two-year agreement, which provides an average 20 per cent wage increase.

The pact will bring journeymans' rates to $6.80 an hour by the end of the contract. The agreement is the first to be reached in the construction industry this year.

The electricians bargained with the Construction Labor Relations Association, which represents employers in the industry.

Health Act Change Out

By VIC PARSONS

— A surprising withdrawal by Premier Bennett of a government amendment to the Health Act followed a concerted attack by opposition MLAs on the bill in the legislature Tuesday night.

NDP and Liberal members particularly objected to provisions that would have given the cabinet power to authorize a charge for public health tests and inspections previously provided free.

Another section would have given cabinet the power to authorize the assumption of the powers of union boards of health by a regional district.

After opposition MLAs termed the bill "backward" and "reactionary" and questioned why the cabinet would want these powers, Bennett rose and said it was "not the intention of the government to proceed with the bill."

REGRESSIVE STEP

NDP leader Dave Barrett, speaking after the bill had been withdrawn, said that B.C. was usually ahead of other jurisdictions in health services, but "for the first time the government had taken a regressive step."

He expressed fear of a "threatening" pattern in recent government legislation, referring to an amendment to the Hospitals Act which "attacked unnamed hospital boards" by giving the cabinet power to appoint a public administrator over hospitals.

Now, said Barrett, the government was attacking unnamed union boards of health. This was hardly the way to govern.

WARNS OF INCREASE

The other concept, Barrett said, of introducing a fee for service, "threatened the fabric" of prenatal, family planning, cancer smear, and venereal disease programs, and would hurt those income groups least able to pay.

Earlier, Gordon Dowding (NDP — Burnaby-Edmonds) said it is hard enough to get the public interested in health tests and sanitation checks without deterring them with fees.

He warned the legislation could cause an increase in disease, and ill health, including tuberculosis and venereal disease.

REGRET NONE

The imposition of levies on tests and inspections, Allan Williams (L — West Vancouver-Howe Sound) said, would be one thing that the government would come to regret.

He added he could not accept empowering the government to levy a fee for tests on diseases such as German measles, which can cause deafness and mental retardation in the offspring of affected pregnant mothers.

Williams charged that Health Minister Ralph Loffmark was "lacking in candor" when he explained the purpose of the bill.

PROBLEMS

Loffmark had problems with the Capital Regional District over the provision of health services, Williams suggested, and he needed to solve the problems quickly. The minister had no idea of how to solve the problems permanently, Williams added.

The premier then tried to withdraw the bill, but since it had been introduced the only way debate could be halted on the act was through adjournment of discussion. After Barrett spoke, the debate was adjourned on second reading by Municipal Affairs Minister Dan Campbell.

Wallace Backs Change In Child Act

Dr. Scott Wallace (SC — Oak Bay) Tuesday night voted with the opposition for an amendment to the Protection of Children Act proposed by NDP leader Dave Barrett.

It was the second time during the day that Wallace, who said when the session began that he would decide issues for himself when voting, had supported opposition motions. He also voted Tuesday for an amendment to the Landlord and Tenant Act proposed by the NDP.

The amendment by Barrett, supported by the NDP, Liberals and Wallace, asked that no child be committed to a training school without a psychological and physical examination.

The amendment also asked that no child be transferred to an adult penal institution without referral of his case to the original court of committal, adequate notice to parents or guardians, or without legal counsel.

Welfare Minister Phil Gaglardi rejected the amendment, saying that medical and psychological examinations were available.

Barrett, a social worker, replied it was not true that children going to court had mandatory examinations.

Barret's motion was defeated by a vote of 33 to 18.

Missile Tested

CAPE KENNEDY, Fla. (AP) — The U.S. Navy Tuesday sucessfully launched a multiple-warhead Poseidon rocket from the missile-firing ship Observation Island. The two-stage Poseidon was ejected from a tube on the stern deck of the ship and streaked toward a target area several hundred miles down the Atlantic test range.

Anti-Litter Act Gets Approval

The provincial government's Litter Act received third and final reading in the legislature Tuesday with MLAs still expressing doubts about the practicality of mandatory two cent refunds on drink containers.

Herb Capozzi (SC—Vancouver Centre) said Conservation Minister Ken Kiernan appears to show a "lack of understanding" for problems of corner-store operators who may be required to give refunds on bottles and cans purchased at supermarkets.

He was also afraid that rather than give refunds on useless cans, manufacturers will revert to total bottle use, thus increasing broken glass hazards.

The minister said there is some difficulty in defining whether some containers are plastic, glass or something in-between, and this was why plastic containers had been included under the act. He pointed out that the government can exempt specified types of containers.

AUTO EXHAUST

Kiernan said interested industrial concerns could make known their views to the government by May 1, and that he did not expect it would be possible to proclaim the anti-litter act before June.

Attorney-General Leslie Peterson charged Alex Macdonald (NDP—Vancouver East) with using "scare tactics" when he compared B.C.'s pollution from auto exhaust with that of Los Angeles.

Macdonald made the comment while expressing support at second reading for a bill that gives the government power to make anti-pollution devices mandatory on new cars.

New Democrats voted against a Labor Relations Act amendment which would enable employers' organizations to be certified as bargaining agent for a group of employers.

Opposition Leader Dave Barrett asked that the bill be pulled back and submitted to a legislative committee for study next year. Labor and management groups should have a chance to express views on the bill, he said.

18 From City at Y Conference

Eighteen teen-agers aged 15-17 will leave for Regina Thursday to take part in the Western Canadian intermediate leaders conference, sponsored by the YM-YWCA.

The three-day conference will include inter-club competitions, communications workshop and training in leadership skills.

Y instructor Lewis Darby, who will accompany the group to Regina, said intermediate leaders head Y youth classes and sometimes work in summer camps.

The Victoria group will include 12 girls and six boys. About 200 are expected to attend the conference.

Mice Halt TV

MELBOURNE (AP) — The invasion of mice which has plagued northern Victoria state reached into television Tuesday night when a station at Bendigo, 100 miles north of Melbourne, went off the air for 45 minutes. Mice got into the high voltage cables of a transmitter and caused a short circuit, blacking out the main circuit and switchboard.

Rarest Stamp In World Sold

NEW YORK (UPI) — The world's rarest stamp, printed in British Guiana in 1856, went Tuesday night to a syndicate of Pennsylvania businessmen who bid $280,000 for it to set a world philatelic auction record.

"It won't just sit in the bank," Irwin Wineberg, senior parner of Irwin Wineberg Rarities, Ltd., of Wilkes Barre, Pa. "We will look at it periodically."

Cold hard facts about soft clean heat

Start with a basic fact. Everyone wants a warm, comfortable home. No cold spots. No uncertainty as to fuel supply. No breakdowns.

Electric Heat gives you all that. Constant, even heat throughout the entire house. Plus individual temperature control. Each room is as warm or as cool as you like it to be.

Then add the advantages of totally clean, completely silent heat. Add the space you gain because no furnace is required, no cumbersome tank. Add the time you save cleaning grimy walls, consider never having to order heating fuel again.

Beginning to make sense? Find out about Electric Heat. Call your B.C. Hydro office.

Without charge or obligation you can have a recommendation of the type and size of electric heating best suited to your home and an honest estimate of what it would cost.

The fact is, more than 24,000 B.C. homeowners now enjoy Electric Heat.

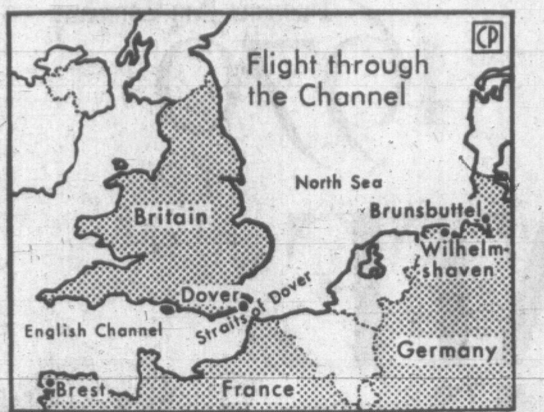
War Book Claims British Navy Whitewashed Bungle

By HAROLD MORRISON

LONDON (CP) — British war leaders were amazed at the audacity of the German navy in attempting to sneak a battleship flotilla up the English Channel and through the Straits of Dover, right under the very nose of Britain's combined air and sea power.

No enemy had dared such a feat since the Spanish Armada of 1588. But where the Spaniards failed, the Germans much to their own surprise—succeeded in 1942, infuriating Prime Minister Winston Churchill and raising a fresh hue and cry about British air and sea efficiency.

"The unpalatable truth which Churchill dared not reveal to the angry and disturbed British public was that some of his service chiefs had proved themselves tragically incompetent," says John Potter in his new book, Fiasco.



With painstaking research, the book provides a minute-by-minute account of the Feb. 12, 1942, breakout by German battle-cruisers which had been virtually bottled up in the French port of Brest.

The 32,000-ton sister ships, Scharnhorst and Gneisenau, had put in at Brest for minor repairs after playing havoc with shipping in the Atlantic. They later were joined by the 10,000-ton cruiser Prinz Eugen. But occupied France soon tipped off Britain and though the ships were disguised, raiding British bombers were getting close to the mark.

Hitler stormed. There was no point, he told his navy chiefs, in keeping these big ships in a French harbor where they would be the constant prey of British bombers. And he was against sending them back out in the Atlantic. He feared that when the Allied offensive came it would be aimed at Norway—and there was where the ships should be, as additional defence against the attack.

His own grand admiral questioned the wisdom of making a break. It would mean sailing up the Channel to German home waters initially. The battle-cruisers could not hope to slip through the Straits of Dover without arousing British suspicions, bringing the weight of British air and sea power on their decks.

But Hitler persisted. His points: German intelligence judged that Britain was not too strong in the Channel. The German ships would be well protected by sea and air cover. There was a good chance of success.

SEA LORD RELUCTANT

That success, suggests Potter, a former Fleet Street journalist, was virtually assured by a combination of British incompetence accompanied by the reluctance of First Sea Lord Sir Dudley Pound to risk his big ships after the Japanese had sunk the Repulse and the Prince of Wales.

"On no account," he said, "will heavy ships be brought south where they will be exposed to enemy air attack, torpedo-boat attack and risk being damaged by our own and enemy minefields."

The German flotilla, moving from Brest under the cover of darkness, sailed for more than 10 hours and covered about 300 miles before it was detected. When British reconnaissance planes finally spotted the German sea force, they had to return to base to make a report because they were under general routine orders to maintain radio silence in the air.

British planners had a contingency plan for dealing with such a breakout—but the plan was locked up and the intelligence officer who had the key was on 24 hours' leave. When air power was finally organized to support motor torpedo boat attackers, a tragedy of unusual dimensions developed.

ATTACK SUICIDAL

A squadron of obsolete torpedo-carrying Swordfish biplanes, ordered into the attack as the Germans neared the Straits of Dover, failed to get essential fighter cover and was virtually torn apart by the German fighters, destroyers and battleships.

Potter says the commander-in-chief at Dover, Vice-Admiral Bertram Ramsay, had pleaded with Pound not to send these airmen on such a suicidal mission. Pound replied: "The navy will attack the enemy whenever and wherever he is to be found."

Five Spitfire squadrons had been ordered to protect the biplanes. Four of these squadrons did not arrive. It was part of the general mix-up and lack of air-sea co-ordination which, Potter says, the navy tried to cover up in its official reports later.

Hundreds of planes were ordered to converge on the German ships moving through and beyond the Straits of Dover—but many of the pilots were sent into the air without being told what the targets were.

CALLS IT WHITEWASH

Many of the squadrons never found any targets. Some, including Canadian squadrons, got into the fight and showed valor. Canadians were among those receiving decorations for their bravery.

But it was a vain effort. British minefields also caused some damage but all three German capital ships reached German ports at Wilhelmshaven and Brunsbuttel.

Potter says a British tribunal investigating the event was a whitewash, though some officers were later sacked or secretly posted away.

But the Channel battle was not a total British defeat. Bomber Command finished off the Gneusenau, found two weeks later in a Kiel drydock. Just about the same time a British torpedo ripped the stern of the Prinz Eugen, approaching Trondheim in Norway.

The Scharnhorst was polished off by two British cruisers in Arctic waters in December, 1943.

RCMP Asked To Stand By At Deporting

CHILLIWACK (CP) — A civilian radio operator testified Tuesday that an immigration department official asked for RCMP to stand by while immigration staff prepared to turn over three men to American authorities.

Edward Arthur Dunkerley told a special federal inquiry that while working at the RCMP's Abbotsford-Sumas detachment Jan. 25, he received a telephone call from a man identifying himself at K. A. Smith of Canadian immigration.

He quoted Smith as saying immigration men were about to turn the three over.

He said Smith told him the three could be escorted to within a few feet of the Canada-U.S. border and perhaps could cause trouble.

Dunkerley said he then called an RCMP car in the area.

Earlier another radio operator, RCMP special constable Pete Ediger of Chilliwack, denied that he ever told U.S. army deserter John Kreeger that Kreeger faced deportation from Canada.

Kreeger, 22, of Vallejo, Calif., told the hearing Monday that Ediger told him of a "servicemen's agreement" with the U.S. under which the Californian would have to be deported.

The inquiry is investigating the return to the U.S. Jan. 25 of Kreeger and two companions he described as absent without leave from the U.S. army. The others are Charles Leonard, 18, of Chico, Calif., and Earl Hockette, 21, of Santa Cruz, Calif.

Kreeger testified Monday before County Judge E. J. C. Stewart that a man he took for an RCMP NCO told him he would be deported.

The three were escorted to the U.S. border at Huntingdon B.C., 40 miles east of Vancouver, where a U.S. navy shore patrol paddy wagon was waiting on the Washington side.

Kreeger and his companions escaped from the wagon when it stopped at Mt. Vernon, Wash. He managed to return to Canada but Leonard and Hockette were picked up again in the U.S.

Russ Carrier Joins Twin

NAPLES, Italy (AP) — The Soviet Union's helicopter carrier Leningrad passed through the Turkish straits Tuesday and for the first time joined her twin vessel, the Moskva, in a new buildup in the Mediterranean.

The 18,000-ton Leningrad, which was built mainly for anti-submarine warfare, was escorted by two destroyers. The three ships brought the total of Soviet ships in the Mediterranean to between 61 and 63, the highest since last September when the total was about 75.

Artificial Nests

MADRID (Reuters) — Spanish forestry workers have built about 100,000 artificial bird nests in trees thoughout the forests and mountains of 14 provinces in an attempt to encourage the breeding of various species of insect-eating birds.

Housing Flourish Pushes Onward

New construction starts in Greater Victoria last month rose 54.3 per cent over February 1969, continuing the gains registered in January when the capital city led the province.

Central Mortgage and Housing Corp. statistics show 145 unit starts, up 51 from February last year, and bringing the total this year to 670 units, or 132.6 per cent higher than the 288 starts in the first two months of 1969.

New dwelling construction for the rest of the province generally was off, in Vancouver by 38 per cent, which was in contrast to the 1969 situation registering a 123.2 per cent gain.

COMPLETIONS

The provincial decline was 35.2 per cent, from 1,814 units a year ago to 1,177 units last month, CMHC reported.

Largely due to Victoria, the January totals showed a provincial gain in housing starts.

Victoria completions in February were up 59.3 per cent to 559 units, reflecting record starts in the latter part of last year. Current inventory of new units under construction is 2,329 for a 111.2 per cent gain.

Both Vancouver and Victoria areas have larger inventories of unoccupied dwellings, for Victoria the largest figure since December, 1966.

There were a total 502 units unoccupied here in February, compared with 435 a year ago, of which 340 were rental units, an increase of 60.

GIANT TRUCK TRACTORS bound for Africa were hoisted aboard freighter Floridaland at Ogden Point this morning. Heavy haul units are worth $30,000 each and were built in Burnaby by Kenworth of Canada. Six of them are being delivered to Lusaka via Durban. Tractor swinging from cables here weighs almost nine tons. (Irving Strickland Photo)

NDP Pair Walks Out On Public Accounts Meet

Two New Democrats walked out of a public accounts committee meeting today charging an "incredible" breach of the rules by chairman George Mussallem (SC—Dewdney).

Opposition Leader Dave Barrett and Gordon Dowding (NDP—Burnaby - Edmonds) said the meeting was begun in secret without a motion being made — a violation of parliamentary rules.

"What is involved here," said Barrett, "is the adoption of an attitude by this committee reflecting the government's attitude that they can do what they want with rules . . . and that the system of scrutiny of how the public's money is being spent is being subverted."

Dowding said Mussallem admitted he had broken the rules and that he asked for the committee to approve his ruling anyway.

Mussallem said later that he had asked to be "excused" for any error he might have made and said a motion to go in camera was subsequently made.

The meeting ended at 10:20 without considering a request from Liberal Leader Pat McGeer that Liquor Control Board accounts be subjected to closer scrutiny by the committee.

Mussallem said the only reason that the matter wasn't dealt with was that McGeer failed to show.

He denied he had decided in advance to rule McGeer's motion out of order and said McGeer could have asked that the meeting be open for his request if he had been there.

The committee apparently went on to decide that it had found the public accounts of the government "in order".

City Hall Miffed As Report Urges Service Fee Cut

Victoria city officials remained unimpressed this morning with a $3,000 report recommending the city slash service charges to other municipalities.

Ald. Leslie Passmore, Saanich, was particularly unimpressed with an error in addition on Page 4 of the five-page statement prepared for the Greater Victoria Intermunicipal Committee by Thorne, Gunn, Helliwell and Christensen, chartered accountants.

Listed under the "library" sub-title the figures are recorded: assessed value of land $7,756 and debt charges $18,912 for a total of $26,768.

"It doesn't add up," noted Passmore.

The total should be $26,668.

But if the $100 error in addition perturbed Passmore, the proposed reduction of service charges by 50 per cent worried city officials more.

City treasurer James Bramley said he was still a little lost as to what the report was trying to say.

He said he would have preferred the report, ordered last year after other municipalities indicated disenchantment with Victoria's service charges, to be more specific.

And he told the committee that having paid $3,000 for the report "you should find out from the firm that prepared it what other suggestions they might have."

The firm had no specific suggestions as to how service charges could be reduced. It merely states that most of them could be cut by 50 per cent.

The city accounting staff handles bookkeeping, payroll, purchasing and billing services for all municipalities involved in intermunicipal cost-sharing formulas.

'Fair Recovery' Listed

The accounting firm lists what it terms "a fair recovery of Victoria's average cost of providing administrative services," which would cut the service charge bill from $76,106 to $32,000.

Listing the various areas of saving, the firm states that charges for services to the library should be $14,600 as compared with the $33,688 charged last year.

The prosecutor's office, $2,600 as compared with $7,119 in 1969, the provincial court $5,500 as against the latest annual charge of $11,725.

Jail charges last year totalled $5,878 when $2,000 would have been a closer to the mark, the report states.

But while listing what it feels would be fair charges the report gives no indication as to where the saving could be made.

William Hooson, assistant to the city manager, said he was concerned that while the report arbitrarily slashes costs by 50 per cent "it gives no basis for the reduction."

It is only in recent years that service charges for the various agencies overlapping municipal boundaries have been assessed on a district basis.

For more than 20 years prior to that Victoria picked up the entire cost of operation for the library.

The Intermunicipal Committee agreed that more information was required before it could make a decision.

It tabled the report pending further information from the authors.

Engineers Protest High Wire

The Vancouver Island branch of the Engineering Institute of Canada urged today that B.C. Hydro reconsider its planned high-voltage overhead transmission line in suburban Victoria.

Branch chairman P. W. E. Campbell said the 75-foot-high steel poles along four miles of Interurban Road and Burnside Road in Saanich and the city "will create an accumulation of standards and conductors much higher than surrounding homes and other poles.

"The additional clutter caused will dominate the view for many blocks each side of the alignment."

'BEAUTY SPOT'

"With the awakened public demand for high-quality environment it seems peculiar that, today, an overhead transmission line had been chosen to cross a potential beauty spot and a residential area," he said.

"If, however, the costs of burying the whole line are truly prohibitive, then placing underground that part which passes through the residential section would at least cut down the disruption of local values, in every sense."

Meanwhile, 450 signatures have been gathered on petitions opposing the 132,000-volt overhead line.

LIBRARY BOARD WON'T MEET LABOR

'We Will Not Be Dictated To'

The Greater Victoria Library Board Tuesday flatly rejected a request from the Victoria Labor Council for a meeting to discuss proposed library changes.

It also refused a similar request from the Friends of the Greater Victoria Library Society.

"I have said publicly that we will not be dictated to by associations," said board chairman Arthur Cuthbert, and Esquimalt alderman. He did not feel it was any business of the labor council to discuss changes proposed in a management consultants' study of library operations.

APPALLED

The board decided to proceed quickly with the changes.

Labor council president Jack Groves said he was appalled at the stand taken by the board and would seek meetings with Mayor Courtney Haddock to discuss the situation.

"We are going to complain bitterly about this," he said. "And if we get no response we may hold public meetings."

Other citizens in letters to the board protested the proposed changes, especially with regard to children's books being merged with the general circulation.

One letter was signed by 56 students from S. J. Willis Junior Secondary and another by 35 persons unhappy about the changes.

OFFENDED

Some board members were offended because people challenged their decisions to make the changes.

"What we need is a new building — that is the answer," said one board member. "We can't do anything about that. It's up to council."

Ald. Alan Newberry refused to concede that the changes, such as placing young people's books with adults, would result in a lessened service.

Brian Tobin said citizens had a perfect right to express their views and to criticize the proposed library changes.

"It shows they are interested," he said. "I would say there would be something the matter if there was no interest shown in the proposed changes."

FORUM TONIGHT

A Victoria Bar Association panel of four lawyers will answer questions from the stage of the McPherson Playhouse starting at 8:30 tonight.

Written questions from the audience will be answered by lawyers T. P. O'Grady, Alan Patterson, Edward Pollard and Donald Farquar.

Lloyd McKenzie, QC, will be moderator.

This fifth annual legal forum is sponsored by the Times and CJVI.

Reserve tickets have all been taken, but seats not taken are available to the general public.

Chamber Turned Down In Tourist Fund Bid

The Greater Victoria Intermunicipal Committee Tuesday recommended a $27,000 grant to the YW-YMCA in lieu of taxes.

But it emphatically rejected a request from the Victoria Chamber of Commerce for "$2,500 for the promotion of the area."

Mayor Courtney Haddock was the lone defender of the C of C grant saying "we may be destroying a good thing here for a small amount."

In the past Haddock has urged that a full study be made of tourist grants to ascertain whether there is overlap in various promotion programs.

GALLERY SHORT

In total the committee agreed to recommend to individual councils the sharing of grants totalling $136,000 to 19 district organizations.

The $27,000 to the YMCA was the largest individual grant.

Victoria Art Gallery was granted $12,000, some $6,000 short of the $18,000 it claims it must raise if it is to stay in operation.

In 1969 the gallery showed a deficit of $8,700. In the past losses have been met from reserve funds but these have been depleted.

The first grant recommended was for $10,600 but Esquimalt Mayor Art Young suggested an increase to an even $12,000.

REJECT SIDE

On the reject side of the grant file were: the Victoria Horticultural Society; the Capital Region Safety Council; the Canadian Paraplegic Association; the John Howard Society; the Greater Victoria Counselling Centre; the Victoria Minor Hockey Association; the Navy League of Canada; the Martime Museum and the Big Brothers of B.C.

On the receiving end if individual councils agree with committee recommendations, will be: Goodwill Enterprises, $15,000; the VON, $15,474; Queen Alexandra Solarium, $8,553; Cool-Aid $6,500 for two projects; Victoria Symphony Society, $7,783; Bastion Theatre, $9,645; Victoria Boys' Club, $8,300; Boy Scouts, $725; Girl Guides, $453.

The Sara Spencer Foundation, $3,774; St. Vincent de Paul Society, $300; Canadian Red Cross, $2,500; Greater Victoria Community Action Group, $200; Greater Victoria Association for the Retarded, $1,800; G. R. Pearkes Clinic, $12,000 and St. John Ambulance, $3,000.

BURN-IN IGNORES CHIEF'S WARNING

Burning of Hydro bills on the lawn of the Legislative Buildings at 2 p.m. today appeared likely to go ahead despite a warning from Fire Chief Eric Simmons.

Elaine Olszewski, vice-president of the Victoria Low Income Group which planned to protest the April 1 hike in bus fares and Hydro rates, said Simmons phoned her to explain the law.

"But I told him we were going ahead with it anyway," Mrs. Olszewski said.

"I said if I found I was going to be put in jail I would have to take the consequences—it is this important that we get our point across."

The chief said he would not issue a fire permit to the demonstrators and said normally anyone who contravened the fire bylaw would be summonsed to appear in court.

A FEW WEEKS AGO, I told you about the plight of some of this area's cerebral palsy victims. A few are in the late teens. Others are young adults. All are confined to wheelchairs in their parents' homes.

These extreme cases are beyond clinical help. But their days could be made less lonely and monotonous than they are, and I'm glad to report that a committee of interested Victorians is working to make their lot easier.

What's contemplated is a day-care centre to which they can be transported. They will have the company of others who share their situation — an easement to them, and no less so to their parents.

One of the chief obstacles to the plan was lack of quarters suitable to their needs. An offer from the Boy's Club of Victoria through executive director Bob Boettger has solved that problem.

"As far as we're concerned," Boettger says, "our community-supported building is available to them for a centre. There will be no problem in getting the wheelchairs in and out, and they'll have the use of our facilities until 3 p.m. each afternoon."

Committee chairman Mrs. Genevieve Ali of Greater Victoria Community Council tells me that a bus specially equipped to handle wheelchairs will be available.

That leaves one problem remaining — to find volunteers whose work would include reading aloud and playing records for young people who can't help themselves. If interested, call Mrs. Ali, days, at 386-8364.

A VICTORIAN IN GOOD standing ran into an all-too-familiar series of irritations the other day. He lost no time in running them through his typewriter.

"Here," he announces, "is a brief report on the frustrations of a Saanich resident who was foolish enough to heed the urgings of Victoria merchants to "Shop Downtown."

"He made the mistake of choosing a Wednesday afternoon, in blissful ignorance of the fact that shopping "Downtown" on Wednesdays has its limitations."

He had four stores on his shopping list. Three rebuffed his attempt to spend in them by signs indicating they were closed for the afternoon.

The fourth displayed no sign, "but the doors were locked, the implication apparently being, 'go away. You ought to know that we don't condescend to do business on Wednesday'."

The baulked spender from Saanich finishes up with a query that city centre merchants might do well to ponder:

"Why shop downtown when you can get better service elsewhere?"

WE HAVE AMONG US A rueful fellow whose wife decided several weeks ago that she had smoked her last cigarette. She swore off, and, much harder, made her good resolution stick.

Her husband admired her fortitude. Finally he decided that if she could make the break, so could he. Without fuss or fanfare, he smoked a final butt clear down to his finger nails, then set himself to sweat out the withdrawal. As an aid and a reminder in times of stress, he lettered this exhortation to himself on the palm of his left hand:

"JOAN DID IT!"

All went well for most of a week. When trying situations developed at work or in the home, he would cast a quick glance at his palm and find his will bolstered by that three-word message.

He was renewing the magic words one morning when his wife happened to look over his shoulder. He explained. She considered. Then she said, "If you were murdered or something, how would that 'Joan did it!' look to the police?"

Shaken, he scrubbed the words away. The next of life's little crises caught him with empty palm — and a cigarette machine all too handy!

IN REMINISCENT MOOD, The Mutual Life Assurance Company of Canada recalls some of its early policies in a hundredth anniversary review.

Those policies, the company notes, "were all beautifully handwritten by expert penmen.

"They contained restrictive clauses: permission was required from the company to travel beyond certain defined boundaries, and a permit was required for 'seafaring, river or lake navigation'."

Policy holders of 1870 were further warned that they would do well to steer clear of death by duelling, or at the hands of justice.

Let either occur, and the beneficiaries needn't expect a nickel.

Seals Stay Point Away In Playoff-Spot Battle

SPORTS

Editor: Doug Peden

Bill WALKER

It seems inconceivable, but the National Hockey League playoff fight may be boiled down to one simple question: Can Boston win on the road in the east?

With only six points separating the top five teams in the most unbelievable race in history, it is no delusion that the leaders may be in the biggest danger of all.

Boston Bruins lead by one point over Chicago going into tonight's game at New York, and the fact that the Bruins haven't won a game in the NHL east on the road all season long, must put them squarely to the test. And there is nothing fanciful about this possibility because, of the Bruins' final six games, four are away from home.

On the other hand, as coach Billy Reay of the Black Hawks implied a week ago, the Bruins may be the power of all the eastern clubs.

Certainly they have been hovering around the top all season, and now are enjoying their new surroundings — first place.

And then they have Bobby Orr.

Here is a guy who puts out all the time, not just one game in three, which is the usual credit given to an average star. Here is the first defenceman in history to win the NHL scoring title. It was thought at the beginning that he would tail off, as others had done in similar circumstances, that the league "would catch up with him", as the saying goes, and that he would be great, but not completely "Super". Not yet. However, this was a bad case of misplaced values. The fellow can do everything. He's already done it, and holds the league record for assists, too.

●

Meanwhile, Coach Harry Sinden of the Bruins isn't about to get lighthearted over the chances of finishing first. He put it all in perspective the other night on the radio when he said: "Two games can turn it all around."

However, neither did he appear to be unduly worried. He suggested that the club had improved tremendously in the past month, particularly on defence. This had been a Bruin weakness, he readily admitted, but now he felt the team had tightened up considerably.

In a Toronto interview, Billy Reay of the Hawks put it differently, but with the same Bruin flavor.

"The goalkeeping may have been questionable but when it's good, it's great," Reay said, referring to Ed Johnston's recent back-to-back shutouts. Then he implied that to him Gerry Cheevrs had played the better of the two against the Hawks, and that he couldn't understand the inconsistency of these two fine players.

There are other reasons why the Bruins are in first place even though they terrified only the west while piling up their points.

They do have a tremendous home record, having lost only three games, have the best power-play lineup in hockey, and the highest scoring and most explosive team in the league, east or west.

●

Besides Orr, and Phil Esposito, which constitutes the most feared one-two punch in the league, the Bruins also have two others in the top ten. Johnny McKenzie and Johnny Bucyk are two veterans who are enjoying fine seasons. The lineup is deep in firepower, ever made the more awesome by the presence of Orr. With him the attack is that much more formidable. Which is probably why Sinden is not particularly unhappy with the results, and feels that first place rightfully belongs to the Bruins for the first time since 1940-41.

The unbelievers will state the Bruins were every bit as good last year, but blew it all when they had an excellent chance at the Stanley Cup. And by the same token they have yet to prove themselves under pressure this year.

There is ample cause for this disrespect, because that loss last week to Minnsota cut deeply into the Bruin pride. It was a margin they desperately needed, and still may wish they had. For in those other three playoff games on the road, after tonight, the Bruins face Detroit, Montreal and Toronto.

These chores are not simple ones. Detroit and Montreal have designs on first place as well; and if not first place, then a playoff position of significance. In Toronto, the Bruins haven't won in three seasons.

At home they will get to show off their playoff potential against the same Red Wings, and the Maple Leafs. They will need to.

This is not to suggest that there is a suspicion of a major letdown coming for the Bruins. Rather there is the thought only that until the Boston goaltending becomes consistent, the Bruins won't really be at their best.

Which they will have to be in the next six games, starting tonight. For that matter so will New York. The Rangers, to survive, must keep that Boston record intact. Stay tuned.

Play to Tie With Stars; Plante Shuts Out Kings

By The Canadian Press

Minnesota North Stars and Oakland Seals stayed on the treadmill Tuesday in their battle for the fourth and final playoff berth in the West Division of the National Hockey League.

The teams battled to a 2-2 tie that left the North Stars a single point ahead of the Seals with six games remaining for each club in the regular 76-game schedule.

In the only other game of the night, veteran goaltender Jacques Plante registered the 73rd shutout of his career and the fifth of the season as St. Louis Blues downed Los Angeles Kings 4-0.

The game meant little to either club. St. Louis leads the West Division with 80 points, 22 ahead of second-place Philadelphia Flyers and Los Angeles trails the division with 32 points, 19 less than Oakland Seals.

Tonight, regular action continues in both divisions with Toronto Maple Leafs playing the Canadiens at Montreal, Boston Bruins at New York against the Rangers, Philadelphia Flyers visiting Oakland, and the North Stars at Pittsburgh against the Penguins.

GOALIE CAUGHT OUT

Mike Laughton ruined the North Stars chances of increasing their points lead when he beat an out-of-position Cesare Maniago at 11:12 of the final period before the crowd of 14,871 at Minneapolis.

Maniago had come out of the net to stop Gary Jarrett and the shot bounced off the goal post and onto Laughton's stick.

The defeat was the sixth in a row for the Kings and dropped Los Angeles within one game of the NHL record of 51 losses in a season, which was established by Chicago Black Hawks during the 1953-54 season.

The Kings now have lost 50 games and have five remaining.

TWO TALLY TWICE

Gary Sabourin and Norm Dennis scored two goals each, with Plante also getting an assist on the first Dennis goal during a power play early in the second period.

Dennis scored his second goal of the night on a 45-foot slap shot.

Wayne Rutledge and Denis DeJordy shared the Los Angeles goaltending duties before a hometown crowd of 6,850.

Tonight's East Division games are a must for three of the clubs with the fourth—the Maple Leafs—in a position to play the role of spoiler.

A victory for the Leafs would keep the Canadiens from increasing their two-point lead on New York in the battle for the final playoff spot. A victory for Montreal would move them into third spot, two ahead of the idle Detroit Red Wings.

Boston is also hoping to increase its first-place lead over Chicago Black Hawks, who trail the Bruins by a single point and are idle until Thursday.

The Rangers need the victory to keep pace with the Canadiens.

LIONS ELATED

COST IS $700,000

Artificial Turf Approved

VANCOUVER (CP) — City council Tuesday approved installation of artificial turf at Empire Stadium — in time for British Columbia Lions' first home game of the year.

"I'm elated," said Lions' general manager Denny Veitch after council authorized the job, expected to cost about $700,000. It will be the first such installation in Canada.

Surfacing of the field, and laying of an artificial surface on an athletic track ringing the field, is to begin immediately, with completion scheduled for June 30. The Western Football conference Lions play their first game here against Edmonton Eskimos on July 6.

Veitch called it the greatest step forward in Canadian pro football in years: "Artificial turf will reduce injuries by at least 25 per cent," he said. "And it will improve the standard of viewing performance by 100 per cent."

Total cost will be about $200,000 less than anticipated. There was no immediate word on which artificial playing surface will be used, Tartan or Astroturf. Work is to start immediately on laying the subsurface, nine inches of crushed limestone, topped with three inches of asphalt. That will be followed by porous matting ⅝ of an inch thick, and the playing surface.

Russia Leads Hockey As Czechs Tie Swedes

STOCKHOLM (CP) — Russia has taken a one-point lead over Sweden in the world hockey championships with only three games to play, and is strongly favored to gain another victory today.

The powerful Russians downed East Germany 7-1 Tuesday while Sweden, which had been tied with the world champions for the lead, fought to a 2-2 standoff with Czechoslovakia. Finland beat Poland 4-0 in the other match.

The champions today meet last-place Poland, which has yet to win a game

After seven games for each team, the Soviet Union leads with 12 points from six victories and a single loss. The Swedes, the only team to beat the Russians, have 11 points, the Czechs nine and Finland eight.

STERNER INJURED

Should the Swedes avenge their earlier defeat by the Finns when they met again Thursday and the Russians repeat last week's victory over Czechoslovakia on Friday—two results that are widely expected here—the championship will be decided in the last match of the tournament next Monday between Sweden and Russia.

Czechoslovakia dominated the play for much of Tuesday's crucial game with Sweden.

The game ended with three players in the penalty box and Swedish skipper Ulf Sterner—also penalized—being carried to the dressing room on a stretcher after a brief free-for-all in the last seconds.

In another development Tuesday, the International Ice Hockey Federation decided to ask Olympic authorities to let winter sports-governing bodies make up their own minds about who is an amateur and who is a professional.

The federation, meeting in Stockholm, approved a resolution which, if accepted by the International Olympic Committee in May, would almost certainly mean that Canadian professionals would be able to take part in the annual world hockey championships.

NEW ZEALANDERS WHIP CANADIAN RUGBY SIDE

TOKYO (Reuters) — British Columbia's representative rugby team touring Japan was overwhelmed 41-6 by the New More than half the New Zealanders' points were scored

It was the second defeat for the Canadians in four matches on their tour — they won the other two. They will play one more game before leaving for home.

More than half the New Zealanders' points were scored by Gerald Kember, who converted all his team's seven trys, including one he scored himself, and kicked two penalty goals for a personal total of 23 points. The Canadians scored a try and a dropped goal.

Totems Gain Edge In Playoff Fight

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Seattle Totems Tuesday gained a two-point toe-hold in their see-sawing battle against idle Phoenix for fourth place in the Western Hockey League, claiming a 4-1 victory over hosting Denver Spurs.

But tonight, while Seattle remains idle, the Roadrunners have a chance to get back in the running for the last playoff berth as they meet last-place Salt Lake City at home.

Seattle went to a 3-0 second-period lead before 2,281 Denver fans and added another in the third in reply to Denver's lone tally. The win closed its series with Denver, giving Seattle a 9-2-1 record over the Spurs.

In Tuesday's only other game, Salt Lake Golden Eagles edged visiting San Diego Gulls 4-3 before 8,200 fans.

Bob Courcey got two of Seattle's goals—the first and last of the game—while John Hanna and Chuck Homes scored singles. Denver's only goal was scored in the final period by Rick Sentes.

Salt Lake's victory didn't do much to alter the standings and losing San Diego still holds an eight-point lead in third place over Seattle.

Majors End Ball Testing

NEW YORK (AP) — Major league baseball is discontinuing for the balance of the spring training season its experiment with a five-per-cent more resilient baseball, commissioner Bowie Kuhn has announced.

The data collected now will be assessed and will be released when the results have been fully tabulated, Kuhn said.

Flood's Day To Come Soon

NEW YORK (AP) — Curt Flood, challenging baseball's reserve clause in a federal law suit, will have his day in court in the near future, possibly next month.

Judge Irvin Ben Cooper, who three weeks ago refused Flood's request for a temporary injunction against the reserve system, granted the outfielder's application for an early trial Tuesday.

Following arguments in Judge Cooper's chamber at Federal Court, he ruled in favor of Flood and adjourned the pretrial conference until next Tuesday, when he may set the trial date.

Cougars Miss Spots On First All-Stars

Although Victoria failed to place any players on the first all-star team of the B.C. Junior Hockey League, three of the Cougars were chosen for runner-up honors.

Goalkeeper Ed Forslund, defenceman Gerry Bond and left-winger Bruce Cowick were named to the second team by voting of the seven team coaches.

Vernon Essos, who edged Cougars for both league and playoff championships, placed two players on the all-star team — defenceman Bob Mayer, who also received most-valuable-player laurels, and left-winger Wayne Dye, the scoring champion.

NAMED TOP ROOKIE

John Senkpiel of Kamloops Rockets was chosen rookie-of-the-year and the all-star right-winger.

Goalkeeper Lionel Trudell of Vancouver Centennials, defenceman Dwayne Pentland of Penticton Broncos and centre Marv Ferg of Kamloops completed the all-star lineup.

Other players collecting second-team berths were defenceman Bob Salo of Vancouver as well as centre Don Manson and right-winger Lawrence Quechuck of Vernon.

Odie Lowe of Vernon was named coach-of-the-year and Ron Matthews of Vancouver was runner-up.

Red Wings Drub Essos

WEYBURN, Sask. — Cheered by approximately 1,500 hometown fans, Weyburn Red Wings rebounded from two losses in Vernon to crush Essos 9-1 Tuesday and earn their first victory in the best-of-seven Western quarter-final of the Memorial Cup competition.

B.C. Junior League-champion Vernon leads the series 2-1 after 12-4 and 3-2 victories.

Weyburn led 3-0 after the first period and 4-1 going into the final 20 minutes as John Price tagged the lone Vernon goal.

Next game will be played Thursday in Weyburn. Winner of this series advances to a Western Canada semi-final against the Alberta champions.

Access for Skiers

Sno-Birds Ski Club officials have announced that their Green Mountain facilities will be operating from Friday until April 5 for those with a long Easter holiday.

Access will be allowed only after 5 p.m. on working days due to logging operations in the area, but there will be unlimited access Friday, Saturday, Sunday and Monday, and on the following weekend.

A special package deal is available for the five days from March 29 to April 3. Further information is available by telephoning Betty Wambolt at 592-0737.

. . . TO LURE LANIER

Two Million Bid Wasn't Enough

NEW YORK (AP) — The president of the New York Nets of the American Basketball Association indicated Tuesday his club has lost Bob Lanier to Detroit Pistons, despite an offer by the Nets of more than $2,000,000.

"I've given up chasing him," said Roy Boe, whose Nets made the six-foot-11 St. Bonaventure All-American their first-round pick in the ABA college draft, just as did the Pistons in Monday's rival National Basketball Association draft.

"We can't go any greater than this package," Boe said.

Boe said his offer of more than $2,000,000 for five years, along with fringe benefits, and the cash outlay the first year are far greater than any offer ever made to an athlete in any sport.

Henry Cooper Regains Title

LONDON (AP) — Henry Cooper, 36, and out of boxing for more than a year, punched his way back to the British heavyweight boxing championship Tuesday night by outpointing defender Jack Bodell in a 15-round bout.

Cooper put Bodell down for counts of two in the ninth and eleventh rounds.

Cooper gave up his British title when the British Boxing Board of Control refused to recognize as a world title fight a bout with Jimmy Ellis of the United States last year.

CUP REPLAY IS DELAYED FOR ONE DAY

LONDON (Reuters) — The second English Football Association Cup semi-final replay between Leeds United and Manchester United, originally scheduled for Wednesday, will be staged Thursday, an FA spokesman said Tuesday.

The FA said the match, to be played in Bolton, was postponed a day to allow sufficient time for tickets to be printed. The winners will meet Chelsea in the final at Wembley April 11.

Leeds and Manchester United so far have played a total of three and one-half hours in their semi-final without producing a goal.

System Set For Breaking Deadlocks

MONTREAL (CP) — The National Hockey League has a three-level tie-breaking system ready to go into operation in the event of a deadlock in the standings at the end of the regular season.

A tie looms as a strong possibility in the league's East Division, where the top five contenders now are separated by only six points.

If two teams end up tied in the points column, an NHL spokesman said Tuesday, the team that has won the most games will come out on top.

If the teams are also tied in the wins column, the determining factor will be the number of goals scored by each team.

Failing that, the team with the fewest goals scored against it will be placed ahead.

And if they are still tied?

"Don't even ask," the spokesman said.

BOWLER OF WEEK

Back in winning groove after missing last season is Janet Broste, who topped women's fivepin division in 22nd week of annual Times' "Bowler-of-the-Week" contest. Janet returned to winners' circle for third time with 271-306-267—844 series rolled in Monday Classic League at Gibson's Bowladrome to earn weekly award and qualify for "Bowler-of-the-Year" rolloffs on May 10.

Unless Offer Is Matched Pilots Are on Their Way

SEATTLE (AP) — Unless someone comes up with an offer at least as good as one a Milwaukee group has made, the Seattle Pilots appear to be practically on their way to the Wisconsin city, a state official says.

William Dwyer, special assistant state attorney general, made the statement Tuesday as the first part of a federal bankruptcy hearing concerning the Pilots' plight ended.

Dwyer said Sidney Volinn, federal bankruptcy referee, would sign an order Wednesday, when the hearing was to resume, lifting all restraints on the sale of the American League team to the Milwaukee group.

Volinn decided on the action, Dwyer said, so he can judge the merits of the sale at a hearing March 30.

At noon Tuesday another hearing in King County Superior Court on sale injunctions sought by the state, Seattle and Alfred Schweppe, Seattle lawyer, was recessed pending the outcome of the hearing before Volinn.

Although various arguments have been presented to keep the Pilots in Seattle, no one has offered a financial plan to support it, Volinn said, whereas the Milwaukee group already has agreed to buy the club for $10,800,000.

WOULD SIGN APRIL 30

He said the deal could be closed April 30, and it would enable Pacific Northwest Sports, Inc., owner of the Pilots to pay creditors.

He stressed, however, that he was not, in effect, saying he will approve sale of the club to the Milwaukee group.

Volinn said his primary responsibility in the case is to Pacific Northwest Sports.

Alfred Schweppe, the Seattle lawyer whose court actions stopped the league from approving the franchise sale, said the league should be forced to fulfil its commitment to finance the team through the 1970 season.

"The solution is to make the American League honest," Schweppe said.

Earlier in the hearing, Max Soriano, secretary-treasurer of the Pilots, testified the club is losing $12,500 a day.

The club is in a "catastrophic" financial situation, Soriano said, and "it has been apparent for several months we would be unable to operate without the infusion of new monies."

Russian Goalie, Pele Lead All-Star Voting

LONDON (AP) — Brazil's famous inside-right Pele and Russia's goalkeeper Lev Yashin have topped the voting in a poll of 85 soccer writers from 35 countries to choose an all-star team from the past two decades.

Pele received 76 votes and Yashin, 69, in the poll conducted by World Sports, an international magazine published in Britain.

The magazine put up 44 international stars for the poll. All of them had been prominent players for their country in international matches since the World Cup finals of 1950.

'Frisco Offer 'Much Better'

VANCOUVER (CP) — San Francisco '49ers looked past University of British Columbia Thunderbirds' dismal won-lost record and signed running back Dave Corcoran.

The National Football League club will try Corcoran, 22, as a running back and linebacker.

Corcoran, 5-11 and 210 pounds, turned down an offer from B.C. Lions of the Western Football conference, who hold his Canadian rights, because he received a signing bonus and a "much better" contract from '49ers, UBC coach Frank Gnup said.

Larks Sign Prize

MONTREAL (CP) — Steve Smear, a six-foot-one defensive tackle from Penn State, has signed a three-year contract with Montreal Alouettes of the Eastern Football Conference. An all-American in college, he was a fourth-round draft choice of Baltimore Colts of the National League.

Strike Call Rejected

SARASOTA, Fla. (AP) — Marvin Miller, executive director of the Major League Baseball Players' Association, has accused the club owners of stalling in their negotiations of a new contract with the association. But he said he would not recommend strike action at this time.

Miller said the players on the 24 clubs would be asked to vote within the next 10 days on whether to accept or reject a contract proposal that already has been turned down unanimously by the player representatives.

Soccer Clubs Set For Totem Event

Sixteen Indian teams will vie for honors on two Hampton Park pitches this weekend in the eighth annual Totem Soccer Tournament.

A total of 22 games will be played over three days starting at 8:30 a.m. Friday.

The Totem Cup will be awarded to the championship team with the Russell Joseph Memorial Cup going to the team winning the consolation event, which is for first-round losers in the knockout competition.

Two teams from Vancouver, Chilliwack and Powell River; one team each from Mission City, Harrison Mills, Port Alberni, Cowichan, Ladysmith, Namaimo and Duncan as well as three from Victoria — Songhees Falcons, Saanich Peninsula and Institute of Adult Studies — will take part.

Eight matches are slated for Friday, 12 for Saturday and the two finals for Sunday afternoon.

FRIDAY

9:30 a.m.—Saanich Peninsula vs. Duncan (Game No. 1).

10 a.m.—Nanaimo Pats vs. Sliammon Braves of Powell River (Game No. 2).

Cong Fighting New War Of Raiding, Kidnapping

By ROBERT G. KAISER

TUYHOA, South Vietnam (WP) — The Vietcong have reappeared with a vengeance in Central Vietnam's Phuyen Province during the last six weeks.

The Communists' sudden revival has been simple, inexpensive and dramatic. Some Americans here think they may be experimenting with a new form of protracted war in Phuyen.

If that is the case, the experiment must be judged a great success — at least so far. Since early February the Communists have kidnapped nearly 400 civilians in Phuyen. Enemy troops have clobbered half a dozen government outposts this year.

As one official here put it, the people of Phuyen have suddenly been thrown back into the midst of the war, and are now more threatened by it than at any time since the 1968 Tet offensive.

●

"People in this area are very afraid — every night they are extremely worried," Dao Tan Ngoc, the village chief of Honthang village near here said the other day. In his village, 116 people have been abducted and 17 of them have not returned.

Yet to an outsider, the level of violence in Phuyen still appears quite low. The Communists have terrified the villagers at almost no cost to themselves.

The enemy's achievements in Phuyen are not enough to put the province under Communist control, but they do seem sufficient to discredit the government in the eyes of much of the rural population, and make normal life here impossible for thousands of people.

Perhaps most significant, the situation in Phuyen six months ago was rosy. As in dozens of provinces in South Vietnam, progress here during 1969 was impressive. Last fall, according to a senior American adviser, "there was great optimism on everybody's part."

Much of that optimism has lately given way to bitterness, and a few Americans here have become pessimists. Many more despair of bringing the war in Phuyen to a satisfactory conclusion in the foreseeable future.

Phuyen's recent troubles have brought a succession of high-level Vietnamese and American officials to the province to find out what has gone wrong. This out-of-the-way area is now a centre of official concern and attention.

●

Like any example in Vietnam, Phuyen is not typical. It includes slices of the fertile and populous coastal plain and of Central Vietnam's green mountains. The mountains provide a relatively invulnerable sanctuary for the Vietcong, and at many places they end just a few minutes' walk from heavily populated hamlets.

Phuyen is an old revolutionary centre. It was controlled by the Vietminh in the war against the French and has a strong Viet Cong political organization. The only central government Phuyen has ever respected was in Hue, 180 miles north of here. The province feels little connection with Saigon, about 270 miles to the southwest.

Yet the new kind of warfare the Communists seem to be trying here could be used — with alterations to meet local conditions — in many parts of South Vietnam.

●

To the Communists' potentially enormous advantage, they seem able to pursue these new tactics largely with North Vietnamese troops — that is, without depending on the indigenous local forces that are steadily disappearing all over South Vietnam.

In condensed form, this is the recent history of Phuyen province:

After years of bitter and bloody contest, the government's forces gained apparent control of most of Phuyen's populated regions during 1969, when some 60,000 war refugees moved back to their old villages.

The amount of land under cultivation at least doubled and may have tripled last year. A prosperity that is still clearly apparent improved the lives of many of Phuyen's 320,000 people.

The Vietcong did little to interrupt this progress. They were harassed in their mountain sanctuaries by Korean forces stationed in Phuyen, who conducted several successful mountain operations. Vietcong losses were heavy.

●

To maintain their strength, the Communists had to rely on North Vietnamese replacements, according to allied intelligence. Enemy strength is now estimated at about 1,500 to 1,800 men, 60 to 80 per cent of them North Vietnamese.

At the end of January, this force began to strike. It started with successful attacks against a government dispensary and two outposts. Carefully planned, selective attacks continued through February and the first half of March. (Two regional forces outposts were virtually overrun the other day.)

In early February the kidnappings began. Vietcong and uniformed North Vietnamese slipped into villages along the Tuyhoa Valley in Central Phuyen, knocking on doors in the night and rounding up dozens of citizens at a time.

The abductees were marched into the mountains, lectured for several days, and — in most cases — released. But perhaps 20 per cent of the nearly 400 people abducted have not yet returned home.

●

The lectures, apparently, were quite functional. People who had failed to pay Viet Cong taxes were warned that they would be wise to become generous. Relatives of government officials were told to tell their loved ones to give up fighting a useless war. Everyone was told that the Americans were withdrawing from Vietnam in defeat. Many of the abductees report that North Vietnamese who have an identifiable accent gave the lectures.

The people of Tuyhoa are protected by 44 regional force companies, 124 popular force platoons, a regiment of South Vietnamese soldiers and two battalions of Koreans. Yet the Communists have no trouble penetrating the security screen these forces are supposed to provide.

Apparently, government forces have not even spotted a single one of the many kidnapping parties that have entered so many of Phuyen's hamlets in recent weeks. This leads American advisers here to speculate that the local forces that are supposed to lay night ambushes and go on night patrols simply are not doing their job.

There is concrete evidence of this in some places. Many regional and popular force units spend their nights in mud forts, built on vulnerable hilltop locations. Each evening here in Tuyhoa, the province capital, one can see scores of soldiers riding and walking into the city. They are visible the next morning going back into the countryside — where they should have been all night.

●

Dozens of revolutionary development (RD) cadres can be seen in Tuyhoa, riding hondas and sporting pointed leather shoes under their black pyjamas — a uniform that is supposed to help them identify with the peasantry. The province chief has never accepted an American suggestion to put up roadblocks around the city to check travelling soldiers and RD cadre.

The Communists seem to have excellent intelligence sources, and know exactly which local forces units are vulnerable. Every attack this year has been successful.

Officials here are not agreed on how the situation could be brought back under control. It is assumed that better local force performance would make an enormous difference.

●

Some U.S. advisers want the Koreans to go back into the mountains to chase the enemy. But there is no agreement on whether these changes could prevent the Communists from conducting the new kind of war they seem to be fighting in Phuyen.

200 Missing In Boat Mishap

MANILA (Reuters) — Nearly 200 people were feared drowned Tuesday following the sinking of a motor boat in rough weather southeast of here.

Reports reaching here said the boat went down in the Kadaka-An River in Leyte province 350 miles from Manila.

Six bodies have so far been found but another 190 on the boat are missing, the reports said.

His Voice Helps Tear Down Wall of Hate, Suspicion

By R. J. ANDERSON

TORONTO (CP) — Most whites know nothing about Indians, says Indian Johnny Yesno, and Indians know little about each other.

He assesses himself: "I'm a broker of information."

Whites and Indians learn a little more about each other each Saturday through this honest broker, in a CBC radio program devoted to the problems of Canada's native peoples.

They're in the North—along with the Eskimos—on the prairies, in Ontario, on the British Columbia coast, the Maritimes. The Metis, the half-breeds, scattered across northern Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta, listen, too.

So do the whites, an estimated 100,000 of them, says Producer John Barbarash, who each week scours the country seeking Indian talent.

His vehicle is Indian Magazine. It's 50 minutes once a week on the CBC trans-Canada radio network.

SCHOOL WAS TOUGH

Host is Johnny Yesno, a 29-year-old Indian actor who won a best-actor award in the Wojeck television series in 1966 and stars in a soon-to-be-released Walt Disney movie.

Of Magazine, Yesno said in an interview:

"We expose bad situations when we find them and also inform Indians what rights they have and what resources are open to them."

"The majority of Ontario's 54,000 Indians are hidden away from the social conscience and they have been snowed so often that they have built up their own wall of hatred and suspicion."

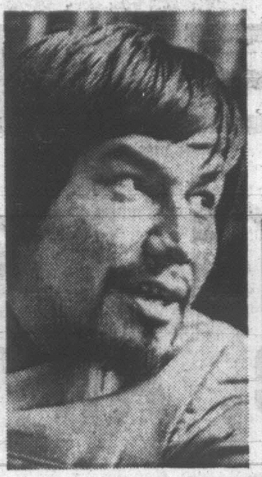
Yesno is an Ojibway, born on a reserve near Fort Hope, in northwestern Ontario about 300 miles west of Moose Factory on James Bay. He was sent to a government school in Sioux Lookout and didn't like it. At the age of 11, he ran away.

"Everyone ran away," he says. "The teachers didn't understand us and we didn't understand them."

EDUCATION THE KEY

His escapade didn't last long. He was picked up in Kenora, in the Lake of the Woods area 130 miles east of Winnipeg, and returned to school. He went on to finish high school in Sault Ste. Marie and got in two years of engineering at the University of Waterloo.

He came to Toronto in 1960, worked as a surveyor for a while, then turned to acting—only because he was "dared" by his friends to audition for the CBC and got a job.



YESNO
. . . information broker

Articulate, concerned about his people, and positive, Johnny Yesno is no Red Power advocate. He's "made it" himself and feels that any other Indian can do so also, Education is the key, he says. So is opportunity. Magazine points the way.

Yesno got the starring role in King of the Grizzlies—the title was changed from Autobiography of a Grizzly—because the producers "were looking for an honest-to-goodness Injun and someone saw a tape of the Wojeck show and they asked me."

Yesno, who has a wisp of a beard and a moustache, emphasizes that the title of the movie "refers to the bear, not to me."

The film took two years to shoot. As Yesno says:

"There was a lot of standing around and waiting while the bears decided what they were supposed to do. They have a strong union."

Pro-Military Rightists Plan March

WASHINGTON (WP) — Georgia Gov. Lester Maddox and other conservative notables will spearhead what is billed as a mass march and rally here April 4 to demand an immediate military victory in Vietnam.

Organizers, under the guidance of anti-communist radio commentator and preacher Carl McIntire, say they are preparing for up to 100,000, a total which would make it one of the few large scale public manifestations of the political right to be experienced by the nation's capital in recent years.

Plans call for a noon parade, complete with musical bands, along Pennsylvania Avenue and winding up at the Washington Monument grounds for a mass rally.

Speakers besides Maddox and McIntire will include a number of high ranking retired military officers and recently returned Vietnam war veterans.

WEIRD WAR ALL A GAME

MONTEREY, Calif. (AP) — Troops in weird battle garb snake through the valley's high grass, obeying commands they alone can hear.

On their heads are helmets topped with spike-like antennas, tuned to a distant master control. In their hands are rifles that fire not bullets but laser beams.

Suddenly, just ahead, soldiers in similar gear rise from the grass and charge.

Specialist 4 Michael Field, 26, comes up on one knee, firing again and again at the advancing force. As each short burst of lasered light strikes home, he sees an enemy fall.

Then, Field himself is knocked out of action. There is no shock, no pain, only a buzzing sound in his helmet that tells him he has been hit. He drops to the ground.

Far to the rear, a field commander in a van notes the casualty as it comes up on an electronic display, signals another automated soldier into the breach, and the skirmish goes on.

SERVES AS LAB

This is "a slice of a battlefield of the future," in the words of Col. Boyd Branson, commanding officers of the U.S. Army's Experimentation Command, a 4,000-man force created in 1962 under the Combat Development Command to field test concepts of what war will be like in the next decade or two.

His laboratory-battleground is the 175,000-acre Hunter Liggett Military Reservation centred some 70 miles south of Monterey in a secret, roadless wilderness of grassy valleys, scrub-covered hills and rocky peaks.

Here soldiers and scientists work together testing new weapons, equipment and tactics.

Currently under study is a battlefield instrumentation system which tells a commander at a distant post what every aircraft, ground vehicle and soldier is doing, second by second, and at the same time senses changing weather and lighting conditions.

PINPOINTS MATERIEL

—Helmets with antennas which automatically send a signal to a central computer each time a soldier finds a shot The antennas also can receive directives from the computer.

—Rifles which fire pencil straight beams of lasered light instead of bullets.

Simpsons-Sears has sold over a million Guardsman Tires! That's absolute proof of a winner. A tire has to be more than just good to sell that many—it has to be exceptional. The same tire building skills that made past Guardsman Tires so great have been continued in the WT-110. For quality, price and Guarantee, you can't buy better tires, anyplace.

Check these Important Features:

- Wide deep tread
- Rolled safety shoulder
- 4-Ply Nylon
- Premium tread rubber
- 'S' shaped tread slots
- 6-rib tread design
- Silencer safety buttons
- Low profile styling

GUARANTEED AGAINST ALL TIRE FAILURES PLUS, GUARANTEED TO WEAR FOR 25 MONTHS

4 PLY NYLON
6 RIB TREAD
WIDE TREAD ROLLED SHOULDER

FULL 4-PLY NYLON CARCASS: strongest, safest tire cord known. More strength, more protection against blowouts, against heat build-up and against ply separation.

6-RIB TREAD DESIGN: gives dependable traction, especially on wet pavement. More grooves to clear water from under the tire. Special 'S' shaped slots in tread wipe the road dry for safer traction.

WIDE TREAD PUTS MORE RUBBER ON THE ROAD: Guardsman's larger footprint gives positive braking, steering and starting traction. Wider, lower design gives a stable ride.

ROLLED SHOULDER: gives safer, quieter cornering. Actually extends the tread over shoulder onto sidewalls. Gives a biting edge for "nibbling" back onto pavement, or over railroad tracks.

Gifted Carpenter Carves Cedar Map

By ELIZABETH FORBES

Forbes

Two years ago it was just an idea in the minds of a few people. Today it's an accomplished fact which thousands (perhaps millions) will view and enjoy in the years ahead. And much of the credit for making it so goes to a tall, quiet-spoken man with the patience and determination to overcome all obstacles and to complete the ambitious task assigned to him.

I'm talking about a hand-carved contour relief map of British Columbia placed this week in front of the rain curtain in the main foyer of the provincial museum. And of David Murdoch, carpenter with the department of public works.

Story behind the effort also points to cartographers, geologists, air survey personnel and many others who gave enthusiastic co-operation whenever and wherever needed.

It all started back in 1968 when public works minister Chant came up with the idea that the new museum should have on view something in the nature of a relief map of the mountains, rivers and valleys of British Columbia.

★ ★ ★

Deputy minister Arnold Webb thought he had a man for the job right in the department's carpenter shop.

He was David Murdoch who had built two new desks for the legislature a short time before and in doing so had copied the measurements and design of the antique desks already on the floor. So expertly it was difficult to tell the old from the new.

The map idea was suggested to Murdoch. He liked it and in his quiet way said he thought it could be done.

Before he changed his mind he was given a special room in the carpenter shop, fitted out with the basic tools to start work, and told to "go to it."

It wasn't as easy as it sounds now. There was all sorts of ground work to do before the actual map started to take shape.

Murdoch talked to the geologists and the cartographers. He looked at hundreds of maps and about as many hundreds of pictures and color slides of the face of our province taken on air surveys. Finally he was ready to start.

It had been decided that the map would be created from laminated yellow cedar wood with an over-all size of 10 by 8 feet conforming to the exact curvature of the earth.

First step was to curve the cedar to match the curvature of the earth's surface. Next, the land area was glued to the first piece of cedar, and latitudes and longitudes were plotted. Each rectangular area so formed was then planed down to the altitude of the highest point within its bounds.

Contours, carefully prepared from maps and charts, were traced on, a rectangle at a time. The surface was then cut with a router on a moveable crane (designed by Murdoch) to the appropriate levels of the contours.

Then the final step of finishing the contours was done slowly and carefully by hand.

★ ★ ★

These simple facts are easy to write and to read. Behind them however, stands a quiet man with a high degree of artistic sense, who experimented, innovated and who worked steadily for two years to complete a project that in its way is definitely a work of art.

Frustrations? There were many of them!

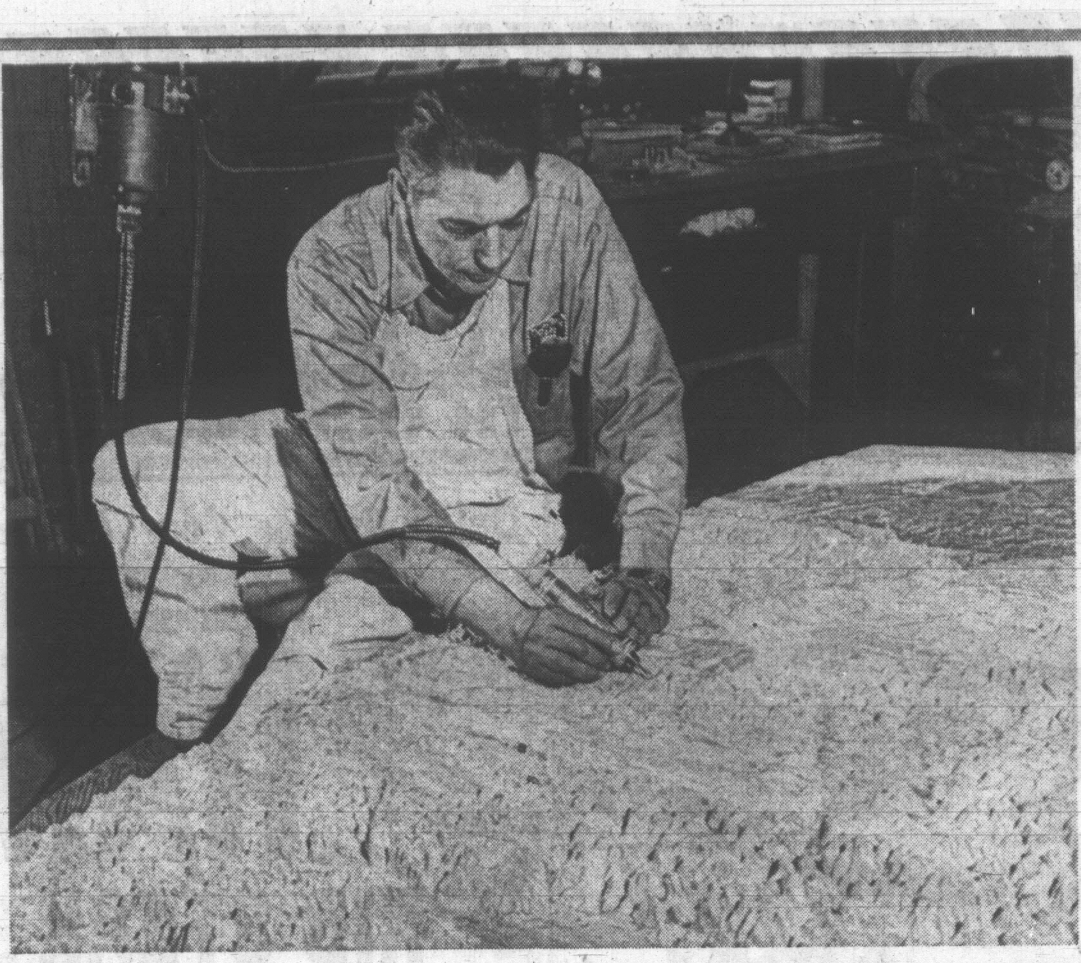
As David Murdoch said the other morning when the relief map was unveiled at a private showing "it's not easy to feel artistic, eight hours a day, five days a week for two years."

Standing with his family (mother, wife, two daughters and a son) he answered questions and faced cameras with the same quiet assurance he has shown in creating the map.

Asked what his next project would be, he looked surprised. Almost startled. As far as he was concerned it would be back to his regular bench in the carpenter shop.

Not so with deputy minister Arnold Webb however. He said: "Dave has a terrific talent. We've uncovered it and we're not going to lose sight of it now.

"After he has a rest, we'll find other projects for his carving tools. You can be certain of that."



AT WORK on the authentic contour relief map of British Columbia he carved from red cedar wood is David Murdoch department of public works carpenter. Router he is using was adapted specially for the fine contour work. The map is on permanent display in the provincial museum foyer. Small pennants will be placed at various points on it to show location of principal cities and towns. (B.C. Government Photo)

Sensational New Hearing Aid Costs Less Than 10 Cents Per Year To Operate

Space age technology has come to the hearing aid industry. A new hearing aid has been developed that actually costs less than ten cents per year to operate. This is a far cry from the $25 to $70 a year the average hearing aid costs to run. Aid also automatically controls speech interfering noises and can be custom adjusted for correct hearing on the spot. THIS IS NO ELEPHANT JOKE!

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP) — "She uses her brushes with authority. She has bold strokes, powerful lines and a fantastic sense of color."

"And, says Little Carol's painting teacher, "She paints as well as any elephant in the country — and far better than most!"

The artist is an 1,800-pound Asiatic elephant from Thailand. After a year of painting instruction, she'll stage a one-elephant show Saturday at the San Diego Zoo.

At first, Little Carol painted with her bare trunk on butcher paper, using undiluted finger-paints. But the zoo has since been thinning the paints with water and Little Carol has learned to wield a brush to heavy poster board.

A sample of Little Carol's work — without disclosing her identity — was sent to judges of an art contest.

The judges agreed.

"The work is a bit primitive," they said, "but it shows a great originality."

Ratepayers Urged To Back Fire Hall

MAPLE BAY—Maple Bay ratepayers were urged Tuesday night to vote in favor of a new $50,000 fire hall when they go to the polls April 9.

Ald. Tom Burge told about 60 ratepayers at their annual general meeting the bylaw will be for $30,000, spread over 15 years at 7 per cent interest, with the balance from the municipality's general revenue fund repayable over five years.

"It will cost in repayment the first year 1.27 mills, which means the average taxpayer will pay $10 to $12 a year for 15 years, and conceivably this will drop," Burge said. "At that interest rate it is a real bargain we won't get again."

Burge, chairman of the municipal fire protection committee, said the present hall is inadequate, had no bathroom facilities and not enough space to house all three trucks.

"At present one truck is kept in a farm yard a half a mile from the fire hall as this is the only place we have available."

Burge said the new hall would have enough room for at least 20 years with no additions to the building. An area upstairs will be left unfinished and can be completed with volunteer labor at a later date.

"Under the present conditions it is impossible to carry out proper training or to keep department morale high."

Highest Insurance Rate

Burge said the Maple Bay Fire Protection District rated "G" on the insurance rate scale, the highest rate possible, and with increased protection the insurance costs could drop as much as 25 per cent.

He credited the low mill rate increase partly to the fact that the district proposes to increase its boundaries and an additional assessment of $731,850 annually would be realized.

Fire Chief Arthur "Buzz" Le Quesne outlined the proposed fire protection boundaries (with present boundaries in brackets):

Maple Bay Road to last farm on Aitken Road (no change), Genoa Bay Road to Octopus Point (last residence at Bird's Eye Cove), Herd Road to Lakes Road and Richards Trail to Westholme (Herd Road to Osborne Bay Road-Flett Road), Arbutus Avenue to Arbutus Point (Arbutus Avenue to Peggy Bay).

Burge said the present area will be called area "A" on the bylaw and the new proposed extension, area "B". Residents of both areas must vote 60 per cent in favor of the fire hall to pass the bylaw.

He said "every inch" of the municipality would then be covered with fire protection and the next major consideration would be to update some of the equipment although there were no bylaws planned in the immediate future for equipment purchases.

Ney Fears Logging At Ski Area

Mayor Frank Ney of Nanaimo fears Green Mountain may soon be logged by the company leasing it to Sno Birds Ski Club.

But a spokesman for Pacific Logging Co. said Tuesday the company has had "no discussions with regard to future plans" for the 4,800-foot mountain.

Green Mountain lies almost southwest of Nanaimo and is a 32-mile drive from that city.

Sno Birds obtained a 21-year lease in 1960 at $1 a year.

Since the club began development of the mountain in 1960 it has become the major skiing centre for southern Vancouver Island.

'EXCELLENT TERMS'

Sno Birds president Brian Findlay said the club is on "excellent terms" with Pacific Logging.

He said usable timber on the mountain is below the ski area and logging would not affect skiers' activities at higher levels.

The question will probably come up at a meeting of the club's board of directors tonight.

Ney, who also represents the Nanaimo riding in the legislature, said he has spoken with Recreation Minister Ken Kiernan and Resources Minister Ray Williston about the possibility of arranging a swap between the government and Pacific Logging.

SWAP CONTROVERSY

"I think Green Mountain should be made into a park, even if it means exchanging part of Strathcona Park," Ney said.

But the government is reluctant to get involved in the issue because of the controversy over earlier land swaps.

A skier himself, Ney said he first became concerned about the mountain when the company built an access road up the mountain earlier this year.

A parks branch spokesman said the department is conducting a survey of possible ski areas on southern Vancouver Island between Victoria and Green Mountain.

Library Extension Set at Salt Spring

GANGES —Salt Spring Island will go ahead with plans to extend its present library building despite losing out to Drummond Park at Fulford as a Centennial '71 project.

The members of the library board agreed the Drummond Park plan is worthwhile and deserving of the provincial centennial grant but their building is overcrowded and more room is needed for books.

The two-room library is run by a local board and is not affiliated with Vancouver Island Library Commission. It depends on local funds and volunteer librarians to maintain what has become a considerable community asset.

The womens' auxiliary to the Salt Spring Island branch of the Royal Canadian Legion will hold a spring tea in the legion hall to launch a drive for funds.

Convener Mrs. H. A. Butler-Cole said the tea will be held April 8 from 2 p.m. to 4 p.m.

MACKENZIE ACCLAIMED PRESIDENT

MAPLE BAY — Hall Mackenzie Tuesday night was acclaimed president of Maple Bay Ratepayers' Association to replace retiring Kurt Horn who stepped down after 2½ years.

Norm Bevan, a school teacher, was acclaimed vice-president and Mrs. Betty Amos was acclaimed secretary-treasurer.

Directors are: Tom Varty, John Roome, Cliff McKay and Gordon Goodlad.

Mrs. Molly Scott, a director last year, said she didn't know of her appointment but wanted to resign "because of ill health."

Sooke Girl Wins Speaking Title

Jane Waddell of Sooke 4-H Community Club won the Southern Vancouver Island 4-H Club speaking contest and will compete in the provincial finals in Duncan April 2.

Miss Waddell won with her topic "The 70s — An Era of Promise" in the elimination contest held in the pavilion of the research station at Saanichton.

Pam Jickling of Cowichan 4-H Sheep Club was second and Joan Lord of North Saanich 4-H Home Arts Club was third.

$250,000 REWARD

Anti-Smell Contest Spelled Out

Specifications concerning the $250,000 reward offered by the province for development of a method to eliminate pulp mill air pollution and odor were revealed Tuesday by Resources Minister Ray Williston.

The abatement specifications include a long list which sets out the maximum permissible concentrations of chemicals and particles in gaseous effluent from mills.

The reward was offered by the government recently to the first individual or company that comes up with a process eliminating air pollution from B.C. kraft pulp mills beginning on or before Jan. 1, 1973.

Judgment will be made by a committee which will include officials from the University of British Columbia, the B.C. Research Council, and from the pollution control staff of the water resources branch.

The specifications were drawn up in consultation with the chemical engineering department at UBC and the water resources service.

The winning device will have to abate pollution in all mills from the largest down to a minimum of 500 tons of kraft pulp per day.

The specifications state that the proposed process must be a permanent installation in an operating pulp mill and must be both economically feasible and practical for most mills. Royalties will be based on the evaluation of economic feasibility.

Methods employed by the plant to abate air pollution must actually reduce pollutant emission to the atmosphere, the specifications indicate, thus eliminating techniques that would involve dilution of effluent gases with added steam or air.

The process must also be in continuous, effective operation controlling the quality of gas emissions from the full-scale operation.

Total concentrations of gaseous sulphur compounds including hydrogen sulphide — one of the major odor-causing gases — must not be more than five volumes of gas in a million columes (five parts per million) of stack gas.

Similar concentrations will apply for the same gases at a point 12 inches above the centre of any vessel opening, filter, or sewer vent. Sulphur dioxide from any stack cannot exceed 200 parts per million, chlorine and chlorine dioxide — no more than 50 parts per million, and the concentration of solid particles in the gas stream passing to the atmosphere from the recovery stack shall not exceed 100 grains per 1,000 cubic feet of gas.

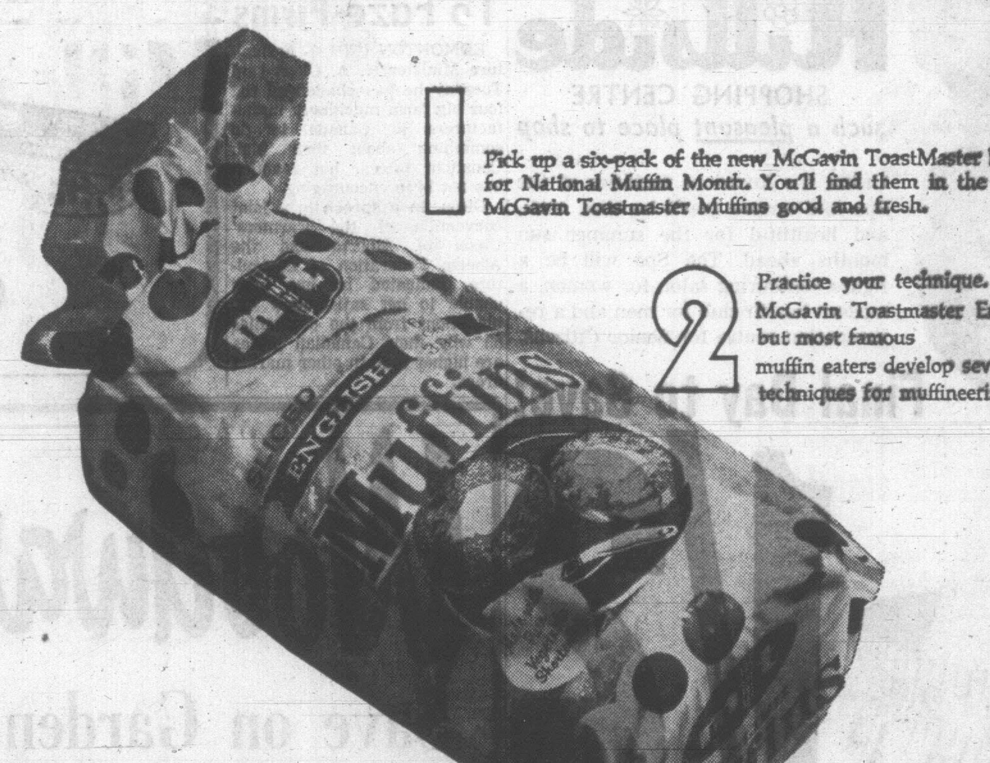
How to prepare for National Muffin Month.



1 Pick up a six-pack of the new McGavin ToastMaster English Muffins specially developed for National Muffin Month. You'll find them in the convenient plastic bag that keeps McGavin Toastmaster Muffins good and fresh.

2 Practice your technique. McGavin Toastmaster English Muffins come ready sliced, but most famous muffin eaters develop several techniques for muffineering.

The Piccadilly Pinch. Refined and dignified but watch for that delicious melted butter running down the wrist.

The Cut and Thrust. A relatively new technique developed in America in 1842.

The Double Grip. Though widely used by younger muffin buffs this technique is not officially recognized by Muffins International.

3 Variety is the Spice of Muffin Month. Since McGavin ToastMaster English Muffins are well known as the anytime snack, you'll want to start with at least four methods of muffineering.

BREAKFAST: Eggs Benedict. McGavin ToastMaster English Muffins topped with poached eggs and Hollandaise. Delicious!

LUNCH: Muffin Pizza. They're easy to make—the recipe is right on the McGavin ToastMaster muffin bag. Great for parties, too.

AFTER SCHOOL: Children's Special. McGavin ToastMaster English Muffin toasted and spread with peanut butter and jelly.

TEATIME: The Classic Muffin. Hot Toasted McGavin ToastMaster English Muffins dripping with melted butter and your favourite jam.

Check the tasty recipes on the McGavin ToastMaster Muffin bag. Remember that the English Muffin requires longer toasting than bread for best results.

Tax Plan Hit In Alberta Legislature

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The proposed federal white paper on tax reform invites the collapse of "our entire private system," government backbencher William Tomyn said in the Alberta legislature Tuesday.

"Benson's taxation scheme is a snare to trap and plunge the entire nation into socialistic materialism and totalitarian statism," said Mr. Tomyn (SC—Edmonton Norwood).

A. J. Hooke, Social Credit member for Rocky Mountain House, said the white paper's primary purpose is the "destruction of free enterprise and aimed to drive financial investment out of the country."

But government and Conservative opposition MLAs could not agree on the form of a motion objecting to the proposed reforms.

SAYS HURTS ECONOMY

Opposition Leader Peter Lougheed (PC—Calgary West) said his party agreed changes were necessary but the white paper as a whole is detrimental to economic expansion, particularly in resources development.

In a motion he asked the legislature to declare opposition to the white paper and request that Ottawa submit new tax proposals because much of the reform "is socialistic."

Then Mr. Tomyn introduced an amendment to the motion asking to endorse "the intention of the Alberta government to prepare and present to the federal government a comprehensive submission concerning the tax reform proposals."

In other legislatures:

Winnipeg — Manitoba's New Democratic Party government tabled spending estimates for 1970-71 totalling $448,043,500, an increase of nearly $50,000,000 over the current year. Biggest outlay, in the department of youth and education, was $160,692,000.

Regina—The Saskatchewan legislature urged unanimously that farmers be given payment for farm-stored grain. Farmers could be paid "a reasonable amount for protecting a valuable Canadian asset," said D. G. Maclennan (L—Last Mountain).

Manitoba House Ends Big Debate

WINNIPEG (CP) — The Throne Speech passed the Manitoba legislature Tuesday, bringing to an end eight days of sometimes heated debate, which included three votes of non-confidence in the New Democratic Party government.

The final hours of the debate were taken up by verbal battle between Larry Desjardins, the Liberal Democrat member for St. Boniface, and Harry Enns (PC—Lakeside).

Desjardins, a former Liberal who joined the NDP caucus after their upset victory over the former Progressive Conservative government last June, referred to the Conservatives as "gutless wonders."

Under noisy heckling, he said Enns, who held several portfolios in the previous administration was "the weakest cabinet minister in 11 years, of Conservative administration."

The Conservative's ideas on development, he said, were "to give away half of Northern Manitoba and flood the other half."

Earlier in the debate, Enns had criticized the NDP government's position on free enterprise, saying the government was quite willing to let free interprise take all the risks in developing a resource.

"Only when the free enterprise system makes a profit do the economists and professors crawl out of the woodwork to take it over," he said.

Olson Fails To Faze Firms

EDMONTON (CP) — Agriculture Minister H. A. Olson said Tuesday he has challenged the four big farm machinery manufacturers in Canada to do something about their high Canadian prices, but reaction has not been encouraging.

Olson, in a speech to a joint convention of the Farmers' Union of Alberta and the Alberta Federation of Agriculture, indicated he has been unable to get satisfactory explanations from the companies on why their Canadian prices are higher than in other market areas.

"Imperial Margarine's got flavour fit for a king."

They laughed when he bit into a three-tier sandwich spread with Imperial Margarine. They're not laughing now. They've seen the crown. They're spreading their own sandwiches with royal Imperial flavour. No other margarine can match it. Made with pure vegetable oils, it's available as Sof-Spread or Regular Imperial. The crown proves it—Imperial has flavour so good it makes you feel like a king.

Caucus Marches for Abortion Rights

Members of the Vancouver Women's Caucus staged a play on the steps of the legislative buildings today to outline what they thought about Canada's abortion laws.

The pantomime was short and direct — hospital abortion committees are unjust and unsympathetic.

The 13 women and one man from Vancouver, some of the women dressed in maternity smocks, hospital coats and faces painted stark white, spent this morning conducting their "guerrilla theatre" and marching around the legislature grounds.

Banners read We Are Furious Women, Abortion Is our Right, and The Just Society Kills Women.

The caucus was trying to force a meeting with Health Minister Ralph Loffmark to discuss therapeutic abortions, spokesmen said Tuesday.

Following the pantomime, caucus members went directly to Loffmark's office where they were told an open meeting would be held this afternoon at 1:30 p.m. to discuss their demands.

Spokesman Betsy Meadley said that "Loffmark is evading his responsibility as health minister . . . when he refuses to see that the women of British Columbia receive therapeutic abortions as is their right under Section 237 of the Criminal Code of Canada."

The British North America Act places health and welfare under the jurisdiction of the provinces, said Miss Meadley.

Another caucus representative, Dodie Weppler, said letters and telegrams had been sent to Loffmark requesting a meeting. A reply was received from one of the telegrams turning down the request.

The two women also attempted to make an appointment with Loffmark in person Tuesday but were told, by Loffmark, he would not have the time to see them, the women said.

A March 10 letter from the caucus to Loffmark asked "that additional facilities for birth control information, pregnancy testing, therapeutic abortion, maternity care, sterilization and vasectomy be set up in the same physical structures or the extentions of hospitals and-or clinics, and that these facilities be publicly funded and committee-controlled."

The women also said Attorney-General Leslie Peterson "should see that B.C. women have their legal rights."

The Vancouver group plans to distribute leaflets at the legislative buildings, Victoria hospitals and shopping centres.

The provincial action precedes a planned car caravan across Canada to end with Mother's Day demonstrations in Ottawa May 10.

CAC Names Speakers For Forum on Food

Focus on Food will be the subject of a second forum arranged by the Consumers Association of Canada.

Moderator of the panel at the meeting, to be held Wed. April 8 in the conference room of the Ewing Building, will be A. L. Cartier, co-ordinator of adult education, department of education.

Panelists will be Norma Morris, nutritionist; Lois Smith, consultant for the department of corporate and consumer affairs from Vancouver; E. L. Devlin, regional director, federal food and drug directorate, Vancouver, and H. S. Drew, manager, Woodward's.

The purpose of the forum will be to study facets of present day food marketing, purchasing, protection of standards, advertising and packaging.

Bright orange pants suit with a tunic top, and a variety of colored Orlon shirts is part of the non-uniform to be worn by stewardesses on CP Air trans-continental flights. Stewardesses, like Kathy Philp, back in her former home town to model the outfits at the Empress, are so enthusiastic about the non-uniforms and the individual look, some have asked to be transferred from overseas to domestic flights. (Irving Strickland Photo.)

NEW FLIGHT SERVICE

Just What the Busy Executive Ordered

Surveys and questionnaires come up with some astonishing facts, such as what the busy executive wants most when he travels by air across Canada.

CP Air made the survey and, in a demonstration in Victoria Tuesday of the results of their findings, Exhibit A was stewardess Kathy Philp.

Kathy, a former Victorian, modelled CP Air's new non-uniform, which will change with the seasons and changing styles.

Starting April 1, Kathy and her colleagues will be wearing vinyl maxi-coats, brass-buttoned and belted, over-pants suits with tunic vests and Orlon shirts.

Kathy, speaking for other stewardesses on the transcontinental executive flights, said the non-uniforms are extremely popular.

The maxi is the best thing yet for the tarmac at Winnipeg in mid-winter, and the bright orange pant-suit of wrinkle free wool is comfortable, convenient, and "much easier than a mini-skirt for a stewardess who has to do a lot of bending during the flight."

The non-uniform is just part of the new service provided for CP Air's passengers on the executive flight service.

Local sales representative Jim Mutch and CP public relations director Jim McKeachie from Vancouver explained some of the innovations which the survey indicated would be appreciated.

These include copies of the latest stock market quotations as well as executive toys, aimed to please the business men and women who make up 80 per cent of CP Air's regular season passengers.

For the really busy executive, who hasn't time to admire stewardesses or read Play Boy or play with instant insanity blocks between gourmet meals, the airline will provide hand-size cassette tape recorders to dictate letters and memos.

On arrival the conscientious executive will hand the cassette in to be transcribed and the notes will be sent to their destination.

Reading material will include more intellectual magazines and hard-cover books, "But what happens when you arrive at your destination half way through a book, I'm not sure," McKeachie said.

The new passenger pampering approach comes into effect April 27 when CP Air service is increased from five to seven transcontinental flights a day each way.

PORT MORESBY, New Guinea (AP) — The local government council has limited bride prices in New Guinea to $2,240, presumably because some grooms have complained of being overcharged. Where dollars are scarce, this can be paid in tinned food, mother of pearl, pigs and dogs' teeth.

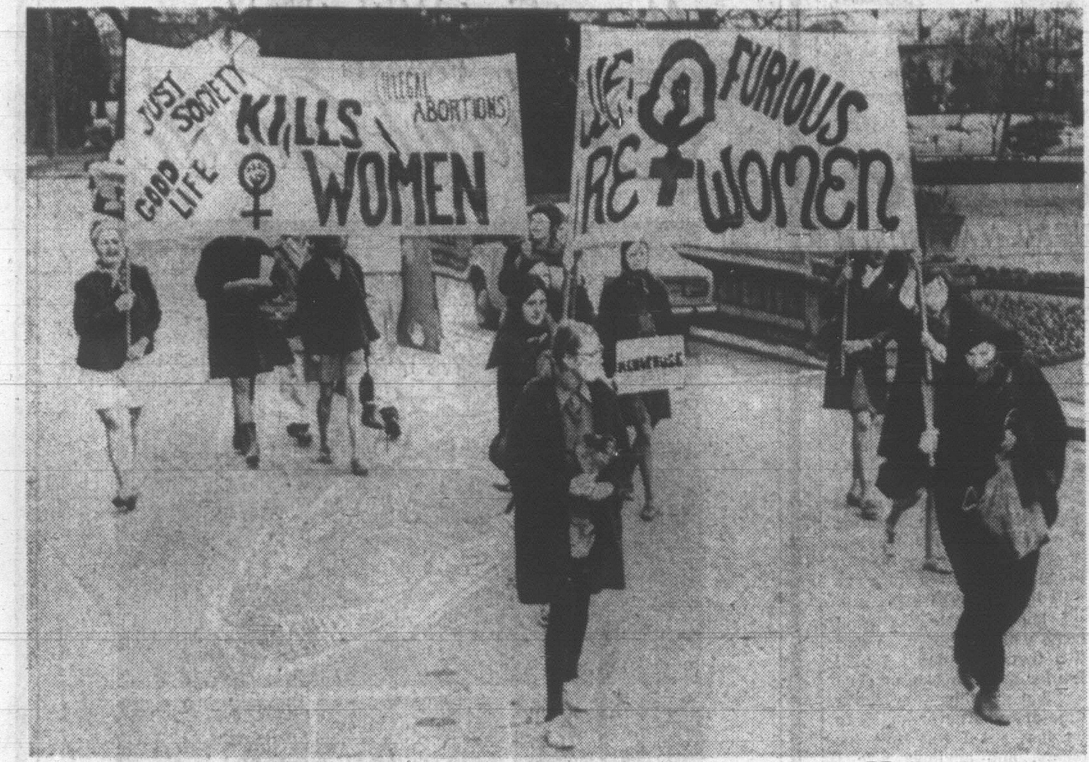
Caucus Marches for Abortion Rights



Vancouver Women's Caucus members parade in front of the legislative buildings this morning to protest what they term the province's evasion of responsibility on the matter of therapeutic abortions. (Irving Strickland Photo)

Members of the Vancouver Women's Caucus staged a play on the steps of the legislative buildings today to outline what they thought about Canada's abortion laws.

The pantomime was short and direct — hospital abortion committees are unjust and unsympathetic.

The 13 women and one man from Vancouver, some of the women dressed in maternity smocks, hospital coats and faces painted stark white, spent this morning conducting their "guerrilla theatre" and marching around the legislature grounds.

Banners read We Are Furious Women, Abortion Is our Right, and The Just Society Kills Women.

The caucus was trying to force a meeting with Health Minister Ralph Loffmark to discuss therapeutic abortions, spokesmen said Tuesday.

Following the pantomime, caucus members went directly to Loffmark's office where they were told an open meeting would be held this afternoon at 1:30 p.m. to discuss their demands.

Spokesman Betsy Meadley said that "Loffmark is evading his responsibility as health minister . . . when he refuses to see that the women of British Columbia receive therapeutic abortions as is their right under Section 237 of the Criminal Code of Canada."

The British North America Act places health and welfare under the jurisdiction of the provinces, said Miss Meadley.

Another caucus representative, Dodie Weppler, said letters and telegrams had been sent to Loffmark requesting a meeting. A reply was received from one of the telegrams turning down the request.

The two women also attempted to make an appointment with Loffmark in person Tuesday but were told, by Loffmark, he would not have the time to see them, the women said.

A March 10 letter from the caucus to Loffmark asked "that additional facilities for birth control information, pregnancy testing, therapeutic abortion, maternity care, sterilization and vasectomy be set up in the same physical structures or the extentions of hospitals and-or clinics, and that these facilities be publicly funded and committee-controlled."

The women also said Attorney-General Leslie Peterson "should see that B.C. women have their legal rights."

The Vancouver group plans to distribute leaflets at the legislative buildings, Victoria hospitals and shopping centres.

The provincial action precedes a planned car caravan across Canada to end with Mother's Day demonstrations in Ottawa May 10.

NEW FLIGHT SERVICE

Just What the Busy Executive Ordered

Bright orange pants suit with a tunic top, and a variety of colored Orlon shirts is part of the non-uniform to be worn by stewardesses on CP Air trans-continental flights. Stewardesses, like Kathy Philp, back in her former home town to model the outfits at the Empress, are so enthusiastic about the non-uniforms and the individual look, some have asked to be transferred from overseas to domestic flights. (Irving Strickland Photo.)

Surveys and questionnaires come up with some astonishing facts, such as what the busy executive wants most when he travels by air across Canada.

CP Air made the survey and, in a demonstration in Victoria Tuesday of the results of their findings, Exhibit A was stewardess Kathy Philp.

Kathy, a former Victorian, modelled CP Air's new non-uniform, which will change with the seasons and changing styles.

Starting April 1, Kathy and her colleagues will be wearing vinyl maxi-coats, brass-buttoned and belted, over-pants suits with tunic vests and Orlon shirts.

Kathy, speaking for other stewardesses on the trans-continental executive flights, said the non-uniforms are extremely popular.

The maxi is the best thing yet for the tarmac at Winnipeg in mid-winter, and the bright orange pant-suit of wrinkle free wool is comfortable, convenient, and "much easier than a mini-skirt for a stewardess who has to do a lot of bending during the flight."

The non-uniform is just part of the new service provided for CP Air's passengers on the executive flight service.

Local sales representative Jim Mutch and CP public relations director Jim McKeachie from Vancouver explained some of the innovations which the survey indicated would be appreciated.

These include copies of the latest stock market quotations as well as executive toys, aimed to please the business men and women who make up 80 per cent of CP Air's regular season passengers.

For the really busy executive, who hasn't time to admire stewardesses or read Play Boy or play with instant insanity blocks between gourmet meals, the airline will provide hand-size cassette tape recorders to dictate letters and memos.

On arrival the conscientious executive will hand the cassette in to be transcribed and the notes will be sent to their destination.

Reading material will include more intellectual magazines and hard-cover books, "But what happens when you arrive at your destination half way through a book, I'm not sure," McKeachie said.

The new passenger pampering approach comes into effect April 27 when CP Air service is increased from five to seven transcontinental flights a day each way.

Price Control

PORT MORESBY, New Guinea (AP) — The local government council has limited bride prices in New Guinea to $2,240, presumably because some grooms have complained of being overcharged. Where dollars are scarce, this can be paid in tinned food, mother of pearl, pigs and dogs' teeth.

CAC Names Speakers For Forum on Food

Focus on Food will be the subject of a second forum arranged by the Consumers Association of Canada.

Moderator of the panel at the meeting, to be held Wed. April 8 in the conference room of the Ewing Building, will be A. L. Cartier, co-ordinator of adult education, department of education.

Panelists will be Norma Morris, nutritionist; Lois Smith, consultant for the department of corporate and consumer affairs from Vancouver; E. L. Devlin, regional director, federal food and drug directorate, Vancouver, and H. S. Drew, manager, Woodward's.

The purpose of the forum will be to study facets of present day food marketing, purchasing, protection of standards, advertising and packaging.

CHEESE SCALLOPED HAM AND LIVELY CITRUS CREAM

Scallops of Canadian Cheese Decorate Easter Dinner Ham

Make the first Easter of the 1970s a memorable event for your family with Cheese Scalloped Ham and Light, Lively Citrus Cream Dessert.

All that is needed to decorate the Easter ham is a package of processed cheese slices. Cook the ham as usual, score the surface in a scallop pattern and insert the cheese. Then heat it slightly to make the cheese soft.

Scalloped potatoes, broccoli and salad could complete the main course.

For dessert, Light Lively Citrus Cream is just what is needed after a substantial meal. It can be made a day ahead.

CHEESE SCALLOPED HAM

1 (2½ to 3-lb.) cooked, boneless rolled ham
1 (8-oz.) pkg Canadian process cheese slices

Preheat oven to 325 deg. F. Remove rind and trim fat on ham. Place ham on rack in a shallow roasting pan. Bake in preheated oven 1 to 1¼ hours.

Meanwhile, cut cheese slices in four; cut each square diagonally to form triangles.

Remove ham from oven. With sharp knife, score ham in scalloped pattern ⅛-inch deep and 1-inch wide over top and sides of ham.

Slice ¾-inch under each scallop from cut side. Carefully lift each scallop and insert triangle of cheese. Return to oven and bake five to eight minutes or until cheese melts. Serves eight.

LIGHT LIVELY CITRUS CREAM

2 envelopes unflavored gelatine
¾ cup sugar
2 eggs, separated
2 cups water
⅔ cup lemon juice
4 tbsp. sugar
½ pint (1¼ cups) whipping cream
Few drops yellow food coloring

Combine gelatine and the ¾ cup sugar in saucepan. Beat egg yolks, stir in water. Add to gelatine mixture. Cook over low heat, stirring constantly, until gelatine is thoroughly dissolved. Remove from heat; stir in lemon juice.

Chill until mixture is partially set.

Meanwhile beat egg whites until frothy; gradually beat in the four tablespoons sugar and continue to beat until meringue forms stiff peaks. Whip cream until softly stiff.

Fold meringue and whipped cream into partially set gelatine mixture; tint with food coloring. Pour into a seven-cup mold which has been rinsed with cold water. Chill until firm.

Unmold and garnish with green grapes and lemon slices if desired. Serves eight.

DEAR ABBY . . .

De-Wheeled Wife

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: We live in a small town where everybody knows everybody else's business.

Well, my husband and I have two cars. He drives one and I drive the other. About a week ago he asked me if I would mind letting him use my car because his had to go into the shop. Well, of course I said I didn't mind, even though it meant my begging rides with my neighbors to haul my kids here and there, do my marketing, and so on.

It turned out that his car never did go into the shop as there was nothing wrong with it. Instead he let some redheaded divorcee who works for him use his car because hers had to go into the shop. How about that?

Everybody in town has seen this redhead driving my husband's car and I am plenty mad! My sister says I should go see this redhead and smash her nose in. What is your advice? — No Wheels.

DEAR NO: Don't take your sister's advice seriously or you could have an assault case on your hands. Ask your husband if the redhead is driving his car for business or pleasure. If it's pleasure—give him the business.

DEAR ABBY: I am 27 years old and I'm writing to you with a problem I am too ashamed to ask anybody about face to face.

I grew up on a farm. We had 16 cows who had to be milked morning and evening and I did all the milking. We didn't have mechanical milkers, so I milked those cows by hand myself.

Well, my problem is I have a forearm any man would be proud of, and I am a woman. Is there any way I can get those big muscles down? They aren't as firm as they used to be because I don't milk cows any more, but I would like to wear sleeveless dresses now and then. Thanks for any help you can give me. — Muscles.

DEAR MUSCLES: When a formerly muscular person stops exercising, flab replaces muscle. If I were you, I'd wear sleeves.

DEAR ABBY: Will you please remind your readers to look after parents when they're old, senile, half blind, crippled, and unable to lead a normal life? Old parents need all their children. It's not always easy to cope with aging parents, but we weren't easy to cope with when they were raising us either. We owe it to them. I just wish someone had reminded me of these things when Mamma was still alive. It's too late now, and I haven't had a decent night's sleep since she died three months ago.

I knew she had a good home with my sister, so that was that. Why didn't I take her for a few weeks, or even for Sunday dinner, or for a little drive? I never had time for her, yet I had time for others, and anything else I wanted to do. Mamma was lonely, and a change of scenery would have meant so much to her. Or even a meal at my home, but I was too busy. And I had plenty of excuses.

I suppose the only one in our large family who is sleeping is my sister who took Mamma to live with her. I've tried to ease my conscience by telling myself I wasn't really ashamed of her like my older brother was. Or I wasn't cheap, like another sister. I did buy her things (which she never really needed or enjoyed much). But it's too late now. I hope Mamma forgives me. — Can't Sleep.

SHOPPING GUIDE

Gladys Expecting An Eggy Easter

By PENNY SAVER

Gladys and I wheeled by the refrigerator cabinet and, with the robot precision of long practice, filled up on milk, butter, eggs, margarine, cheese, yogurt and so forth.

Then we went on.

Suddenly Gladys screeched to a stop, screeched out a single word "Eggs!" and did a quick about-face. I caught up with her just as she was adding a third carton to her cart and said, "But you have eggs."

"Penny, this is Easter week—remember?"

How could I forget. Easter—the time when all children await the Easter Bunny, that odd rodent who persists year after year in laying colored eggs.

"I take it your children plan on having an Easter egg hunt."

She nodded. "But at least I don't have to color them this year. You see, their grandmother, bless her soul, brought them little egg decorating kits. Really nice, too."

The kits Gladys' mother-in-law bought come in two sizes, 25 cents and 39 cents. You can guess which she chose.

The 25-cent kit consists of six color tablets (which dissolve in vinegar and cold water), appliques, transfers, an egg dipper, and a cart for the bunnies to bring their eggs in.

The 39-cent kits have nine colors, a bunny house, transfers, appliques, 10 pop-out stand-up figures, five big and five small, and an egg dipper.

The appliques and transfers make it easy for the child to turn an egg into a funny face or cover it with a fancy pattern.

The popouts and the cart and house, along with a bit of imagination, can be turned into a centre-piece for an Easter party following an egg hunt. They are made of brightly printed cardboard and are easy to assemble.

Map of Canada

"What I hope is that it will keep them out of my hair Friday and Saturday," said Gladys. "On holidays I need all the peace and quiet I can get."

The label, by the way, indicated that the tablets are "pure food coloring" and non-toxic.

Another mother I know has bought her children a jigsaw puzzle to occupy their spare holiday moments.

Since she is a firm believer in making every moment an intellectual experience, the jigsaw puzzle is intellectual—an historical map of Canada.

Costing $1.98, the puzzle makes up into an 18 by 24-inch picture and must contain at least 400 or 500 pieces. It has little pictures spotted all over it of historically interesting things and, according to the box, a reference chart.

For 98 cents there is a similar map puzzle, this time of Canada as it is today with the provincial crests in the proper places. This puzzle has 400 pieces and makes up into a 22 by 16-inch picture.

"I thought," said my friend, "that after the children have put it together, their father could mount it on a board. Then we could use it as a reference map."

If you would like to know where to find these items, please call 382-3131 between 9 a.m. and 4 p.m.

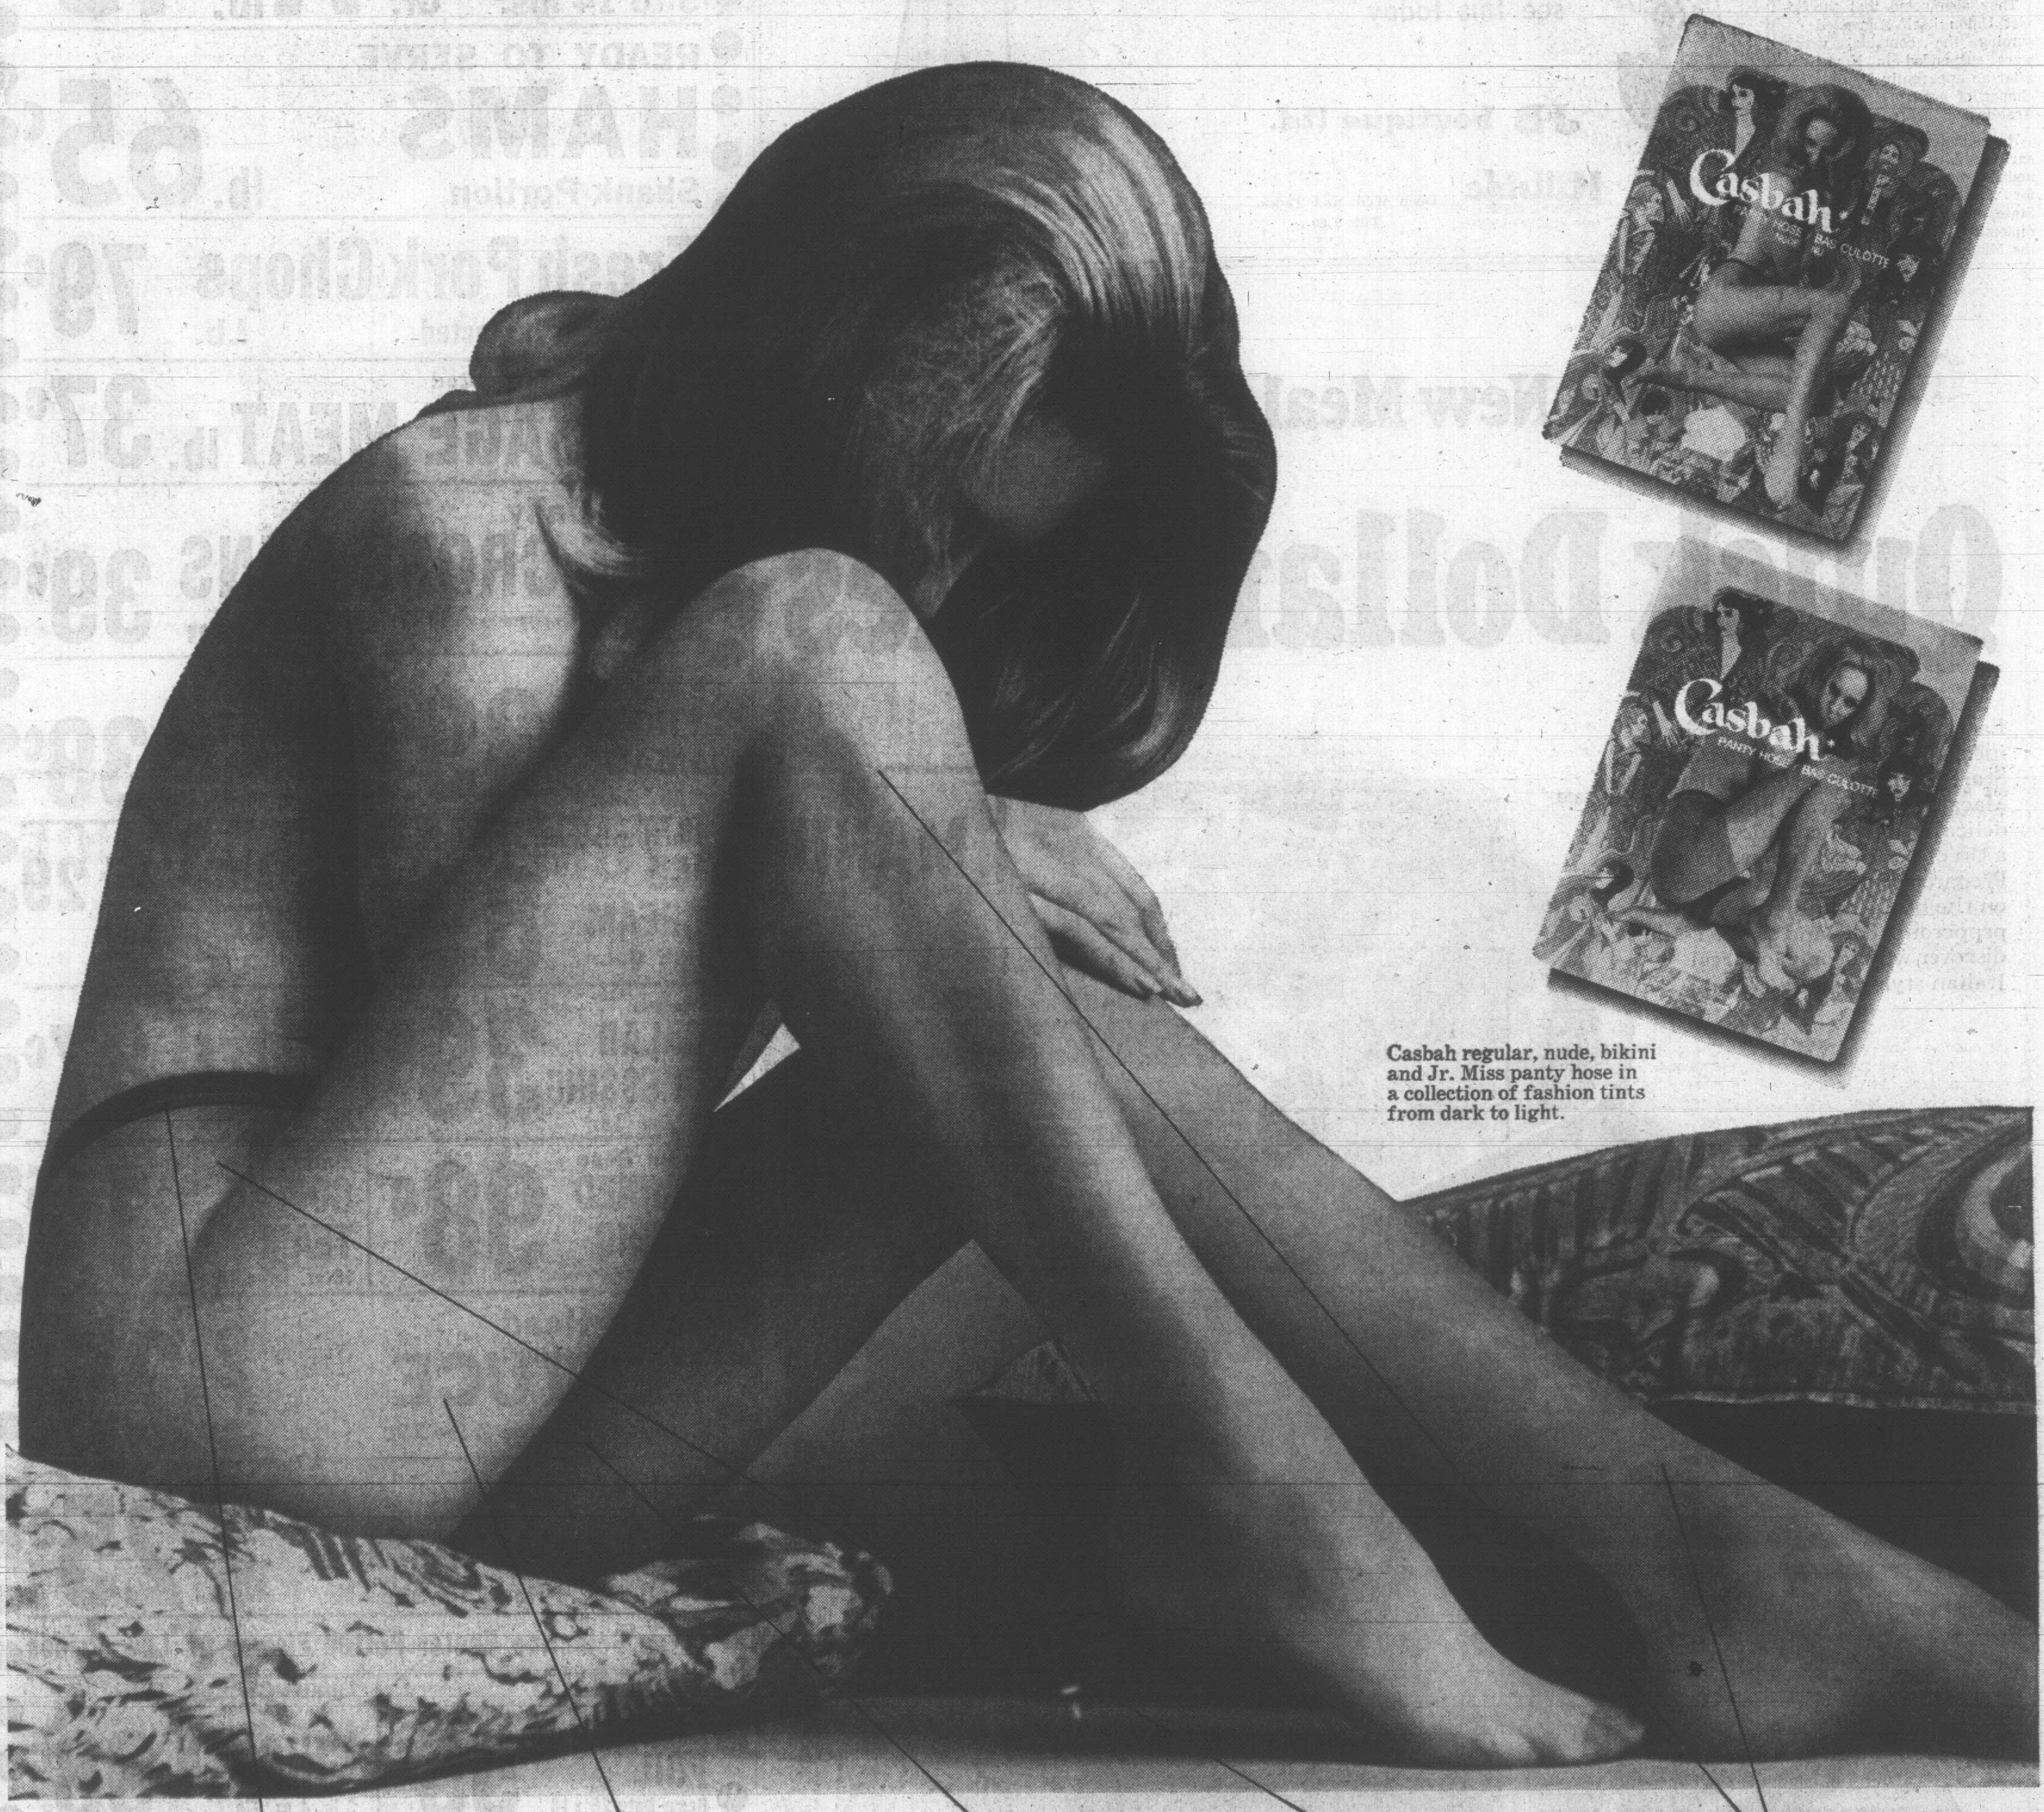
Introducing better panty hose.

Casbah*

You know those problems you usually have with panty hose? We know them, too. So when we designed Casbah, we took the trouble spots out.



Casbah regular, nude, bikini and Jr. Miss panty hose in a collection of fashion tints from dark to light.

① Waistline comfort.

The waistband on Casbah panty hose holds comfortably without digging in. And without slipping down during the day.

② No more panty line worries.

Banish them with Casbah's sheer-to-the-waist panty hose. Yes, they're practical enough for everyday wear because our special nylon is extra-strong. You prefer a regular style? Ours has a panty line that's very short. Or try Bikini Casbah. It's a little nude, but a little covered up, too.

③ Seams that hold.

Reach and bend without a worry. All Casbah panty hose seams are sewn with stretch thread for extra protection against splits and tears.

④ A stay-smooth fit.

To prevent twisting across your hips, Casbah is styled with a proper set-in crotch that's proportioned to size. Your panty hose stay smooth and straight, just the way you put them on.

⑤ No more baggy knees or ankles.

We spin our nylon with an extra little twist, so it stretches better. And also recovers better. That's why Casbah clings to every inch of you. Not a bag, not a sag – not even at your ankles or knees.

Groans Greet Latest Tax Explanation

By JAMES NELSON

MONTREAL (CP) — Some members of the Canadian Tax Foundation found it incredible Tuesday night that Finance Minister Edgar Benson should tell them the government's proposed tax change plan is not designed primarily to raise federal tax revenues.

They groaned aloud when he told about 1,200 persons at their annual banquet that the main purpose of the plan is to bring greater equity to the tax system by reducing taxes on low-income groups and raising them on others.

On Monday, the convention was told by Professor John Bossons of Toronto, now a visiting professor of economics at Yale University, that the white paper proposals released last November would produce more than $800,000,000 in additional tax revenues.

The white paper itself says the increase in the fifth year of the plan's operation will be $630,000,000. And the Ontario government has estimated on the basis of its computer analysis that the increase when the plan is fully in effect will be $1,300,000,000.

Before the minister spoke, the convention also heard from three other professors that the plan might depress the rate of Canada's economic growth slightly, but not seriously.

One of them—R. A. Dobell of the institute for quantitative analysis of social and economic policy at the University of Toronto—said the important factor in assessing the white paper is what the government plans to do with its increased tax take.

Mr. Benson, departing from his prepared speech, told the banquet:

"The white paper proposals were not put in there to increase the revenues of the country."

In later years, tax revenues will go up, "but this is not the purpose of the proposals," Mr. Benson said.

"I'd be the happiest minister of finance there is to find we had too much revenues and could reduce tax rates."

The conference concludes today after another morning round of panel discussions and a closing summary, at which Robert B. Bryce, retiring deputy minister of finance in Ottawa, is to speak.

Big 2 Talks May Resume

WASHINGTON (Reuters) — A meeting today between Soviet Ambassador Anatoly Dobrynin and State Secretary William Rogers could lead to resumption of bilateral talks on the Middle East, U.S. officials said.

The meeting is auspicious, the officials said, because a U.S. decision not to sell about 125 jets to Israel offers a chance to cool off the Middle East arms race.

They also noted that the Soviet Union itself suggested resuming the contacts, which were suspended in November after an apparently fruitless exchange of notes regarding Arab-Israeli peace negotiations.

Rogers told a news conference earlier this week, when he announced the decision on the jets for Israel, that the United States intended to initiate a new diplomatic campaign regarding the Middle East.

U.S. DECISION

Court Orders Hearing On Any Welfare Cuts

By JOHN P. MACKENZIE

WASHINGTON (WP) — The U.S. Supreme Court has ruled that welfare recipients may not be cut off the relief rolls without a hearing.

In a 5-to-3 decision, the court said government concern over limited public funds is legitimate but is far outweighted by the needs of eligible persons for "the very means by which to live" while seeking redress from "the welfare bureaucracy."

EVERY STATE

The decision is expected to force a change in welfare enforcement procedure in nearly every state and major city. Federal welfare regulations scheduled for issuance in July may prove even more sweeping, but the high court's ruling will affect state-funded as well as federally funded programs of aid to the needy.

Most states and cities provide full hearings, when they provide them at all, only after the welfare cutoffs are made, placing the economic burden on the recipient.

Two dissenters, Hugo L. Black and Chief Justice Warren E. Burger, said that was where the burden belongs in view of the immense welfare load society must carry. A third dissenter, Justice Potter Stewart said the question was "a close one" but he found the systems fair in the two cases from New York and California.

NOT FULL BLOWN

The majority, in an opinion by Justice William J. Brennan Jr., said the hearings need not be full-blown trials. But he said they must give the recipient a chance to be heard in person by a responsible official, they must allow a chance to know the adverse evidence and cross-examine hostile witnesses, and they must permit the client to bring a lawyer to the hearing.

DECISION REVERSED

"We do not say that counsel must be provided at the pretermination hearing," said Brennan, prompting Black to argue that eventually the court will be bound to require government-subsidized counsel for such hearings.

The majority upheld the decision of a federal court in New York requiring hearings in New York City cutoff actions and reversed a California court's decision that had sustained the state's procedures. In each case the high court said the welfare beneficiary had been denied his right to due process of law.

Since the due process guarantee applies to the government's taking of "property," Black objected that welfare was merely the government's "promise of charity" in the future, not a personally held possession.

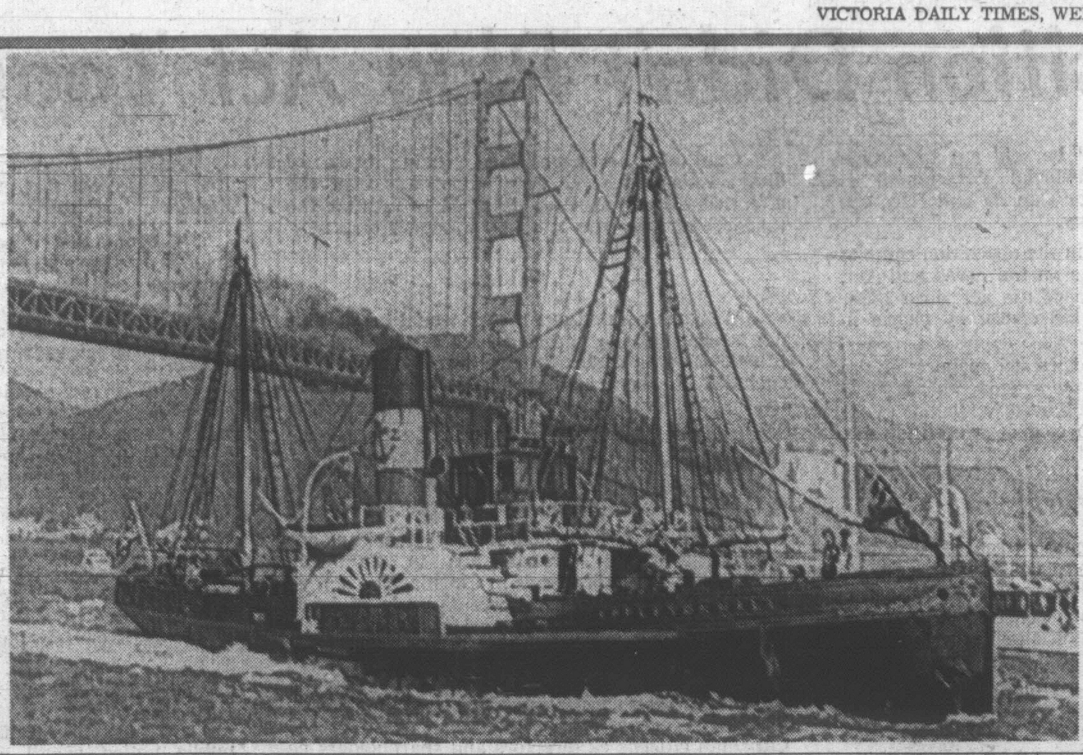
ONE-WAY STREET

To this Brennan replied that it was more "realistic" to treat welfare entitlement as a property right than a gratuity. when much of the nation's wealth takes the form of rights such as business franchises, stock options, professional licences and pension rights, none of which fits the traditional property concept of cash or hard merchandise.

Black complained that the majority ruling was a one-way street for the undeserving persons on the relief rolls, since as a practical matter the nation's welfare departments won't be able to collect for payments that prove unjustified after lengthy administrative and court proceedings.

Ad-libbing from the bench, Black said with fervor that the decision was "nice for those who do not work. They can receive payments from the government, which means those who do work."

He said he was "baffled" that the court should engage in "legislating" when the government is working toward improved methods.



Last Of Her Kind

The steam tug Appleton Hall, which left England six months ago, churns under the Golden Gate bridge and into San Francisco Bay Tuesday.

The 105-foot sidewheel paddle tug is described as the last of her kind in the world and was skippered on her trip from England by Scott Newhall, executive editor of the San Francisco Chronicle.

Opposition Didn't Plug Act 'Loopholes'

British Columbia will be sold out to foreign interests unless the provincial government is prepared to "stand up" for Canada and B.C., the legislature was told Tuesday.

Nationalistic feelings in the opposition came to the forefront in the debate on the new Land Act, the first complete revision of the act since 1888, during discussion of the bill clause by clause in committee.

While the NDP had expressed support for the bill in principle earlier in the session, Tuesday the opposition — especially Robert Williams (Vancouver East) set about to correct what they felt were deficiencies in the act.

●

The result was a long, often repetitive debate as the 108 clauses were considered, and as Williams introduced amendments to 11 sections.

The NDP did get one concession from the government when one suggestion slightly modified, was accepted by Resources Minister Ray Williston.

The NDP challenged the government to support the principle of "Canadian lands for Canadian people" and Liberal Leader Dr. Pat McGeer said if government members are unable to assert the rights of Canadains to their land, they they would also lack courage to defend the land against takeovers by foreign concerns.

One of the oppositions' main areas of disagreement with the government was over the effectiveness of measures designed to prevent the takeover of Canadain lands by foreign interests.

●

Williams pointed out that it would be possible for foreign citizens to incorporate in B.C. and use this device as a means to take over Canadian land excluded to them as individuals. Only Canadian citizens as individuals will be permitted to purchase Crown lands under the act.

Corporations could get around this stumbling block, the opposition claimed, and McGeer pointed out that it only costs $150 to incorporate in B.C.

Williams said that thousands of Americans are being encouraged through ads in California newspapers to acquire lands in Canada. The act, as it stands, also would not prevent resale of lands from private individuals to Americans.

Williams feared that "dummy" American companies could acquire American lands on a substantial scale, so he introduced an amendment that no corporation without a majority of Canadian citizens as directors and shareholders be entitled to a crown grant.

Another amendment would have made all alienations of land under the act subject to review after subsequent sales.

●

Williams also proposed that applicants for crown lands be required to advertise their intentions to apply. The move was supported by Allan Williams (L — West Vancouver-Howe Sound) who said that when dealings were made with crown land, the people should know what is going on.

NDP leader Dave Barrett said it was a "sacred duty" of the government to keep the people informed and every action of government should be made in the public view.

Opposition members also expressed concern at the degree of discretion permitted the lands minister.

Williams said a section of the bill enabling some crown land leaseholders to have an option to purchase was "a major loophole" in the bill defeating the purpose of much of the remainder of the legislation. It leaves too much power in the hands of the minister, he said.

Similarly a provision enabling the cabinet to sell or give land to anyone in the "public interest" was far too broad — "sloppy legislation" — and should be narrowed down to land given to public bodies for public purposes, he said.

Williston subsequently amended the provision to limit it "to a specific public purpose."

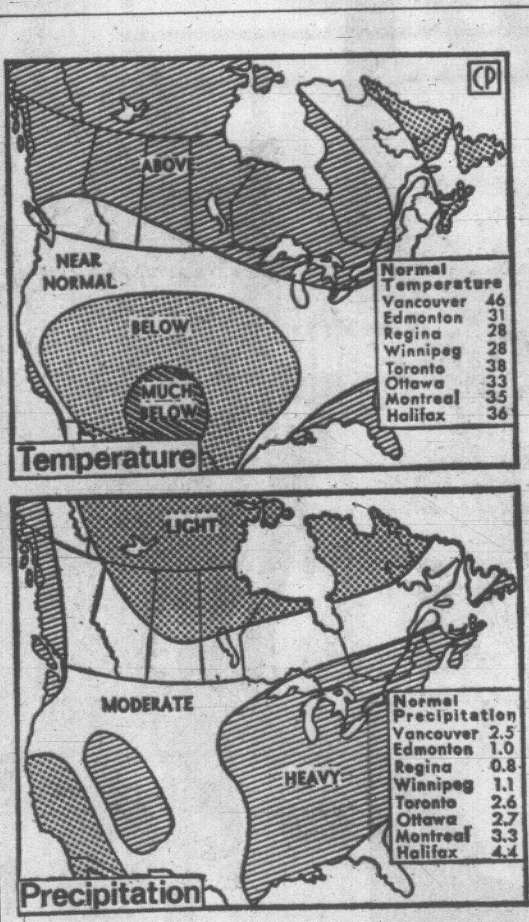
But an effort by Williams to ban trading of parklands by the government was defeated. He said it is time to make clear that parkland is no longer available for "plunder."

●

An attempt to make it mandatory to give public notice of all crown land transfers was rejected by Williston on the grounds it would be impossible to administer.

He said that any time two or more people express interest in the same piece of crown land, there is automatically an auction. But where only one person has expressed interest, the sale or lease should be concluded without notice.

Williston also rejected as unnecessary an amendment that would incorporate the principle that access be ensured where possible through alienated crown land to rivers and lakes. The minister said the department already follows the principle in administrative policy.



MISSING OUT on the above-normal temperature expectations for most of Canada will be the Vancouver Island-lower mainland area if the 30-day outlook portrayed in the weather map is accurate. However, even with near-normal temperatures, this area still can expect to be the warmest part of the country during April — but look out for the showers. (CP Map)

Parkhill Mayor Wants Festival

TORONTO (CP) — The much talked-about Canadian peace festival, first announced by Beatle John Lennon at a news conference here last December, may, once again, have found a home.

John Brower, president of Karma Productions Ltd., promoting the festival planned for July 3-5, said here agreement may be near for a site near Parkhill, a town of about 1,100 about 35 miles northwest of London, Ont.

The festival, called the Toronto Peace Festival Year One AP (After Peace), originally was scheduled to take place at Mosport, a car-racing track about 45 miles east of here. That plan was scuttled when Clarke Township, in which Mosport is located, passed a bylaw restricting use of the track area to motor racing, and was backed up by the Ontario Municipal Board.

Brower, in an interview Monday, said an announcement will be made in the next 10 days as to the exact location of the festival site and "Parkhill seems to be the strongest consideration."

WANTS IT ELSEWHERE

Parkhill Mayor Adrian Ansems, also interviewed Monday, said he favors holding the festival at a farm site in adjoining McGillivray Township, for while "there are going to be problems . . . the benefits are greater."

Reeve George Dixon of McGillivray Township said he feels that "the magnitude of it is much too large for this area."

It has been estimated the festival could attract as many as 250,000 people.

Brower and Mayor Ansems confirmed there had been some discussion of a $50,000 contribution by the festival's promoters toward construction of a proposed $130,000 ice arena in Parkhill.

Brower said the offer was made "as a token of good faith."

In Paris, Beatle Lennon, who earlier severed his connection with the festival, said Monday he and wife Yoko Ono will hold a "super-festival of peace" in Canada in July, that Elvis Presley and Bob Dylan would attend and profits would go to underdeveloped nations.

Brower called the statement "very strange," but said "the door was left wide open" for Lennon to participate in the Parkhill festival.

Brower, 23, said Karma Productions was incorporated last November to promote a peace festival, but the announcement was held off until Lennon's December visit.

Lennon at that time said he would appear at the festival which would be organized for profit by Brower and Ritchie Yorke, a Toronto free-lance pop music writer, and that the performers would be paid, but "we'll get some cream off the top to set up a peace fund."

After the setback at Mosport, Brower said there was a "breakdown in communication" with Lennon.

CANADA MERGES GENEVA OFFICES

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada's permanent mission to the United Nations office in Geneva and the delegation to the disarmament conference committee will be amalgamated under George Ignatieff, disarmament conference representative.

The announcement by the external affairs department Tuesday said the move was "to ensure close co-ordination of their activities and to achieve maximum effectiveness and efficiency."

'Ontario Richest But Pays Less'

OTTAWA (CP)—Ontario, as one of Canada's wealthiest provinces could afford to do much more than it does under the Canada Assistance Plan, Senator David Croll (L—Ontario) said at a meeting of the Senate poverty committee.

He said the country's highest assistance rates are paid by Alberta, not by Ontario.

Senator Croll's comment was made during a discussion with witnesses of the Canadian Association of Social Workers who presented a brief. Senator Croll is committee chairman.

He declined to comment further on Ontario's welfare performance in comparison with other provinces.

Under the Canada Assistance Plan, the federal government contributes about half the amount of provincial assistance payments under several programs.

Duke Furious As Salmon Vanish

By DAVID LANCASHIRE

LONDON (AP) — The Duke of Roxburghe is furious and an underwater crisis is building up between Britain and Denmark because of a tasty fish.

The duke, Scotland's premier baronet, complains that he hooked only nine Atlantic salmon last year instead of the usual 100 or more in the river near his ancestral castle. The government fears that the fish may disappear unless Danish commercial fishermen stop netting salmon on the high seas.

Denmark, angry at the accusations, has rejected a demand by Britain and 10 other countries for a 10-year-ban on salmon trawling. Britain and Denmark have agreed to hold special salmon talks within the next few weeks, however. In May, the 14-nation Northeast Atlantic Fisheries Commission is to discuss ways to save the salmon.

The salmon catch in Canada's Atlantic rivers dropped by 45 per cent in 1968. Last winter in London, 40 tons of salmon reached the market instead of 105 tons in 1963.

The Duke of Roxburghe and other Scottish aristocrats argue their salmon rivers are being ruined by high-seas commercial fishing. Salmon catches in Scotland are down 25 per cent or more.

Statistics vary from year to year and do not prove that the salmon face extinction. But pollution and the damming of rivers have been depleting the Atlantic salmon for a couple of centuries.

Once they spawned all the way from northern Norway to the Mediterranean. They have vanished from France, Denmark, Holland and Portugal. They breed only in the streams in Canada, Norway, Scotland and Ireland.

'We Don't Recruit Abroad'

OTTAWA (CP) — The federal government does not actively recruit immigrants in Caribbean countries because those nations need their skilled manpower, says Immigration Minister Allan MacEachen.

But he told the Commons labor, manpower and immigration committee that the government maintains immigration offices in the Caribbean to show that its policy against discrimination is sincere.

MacEachen was answering a question from Edward Broadbent (NDP—Oshawa-Whitby), who asked whether the government is discussing with developing countries the possibility of restricting the drain of skilled manpower from those nations to Canada.

MacEachen said:

"We don't actively recruit because we realize these countries have a greater need for skilled people than we do.

"But we do have offices there because of the requests of the host governments."

He said that the government tries to convince students who come to Canada from the Caribbean to fulfil their contracts with their own governments and return home after completing their studies.

Broadbent asked whether the government might consider restricting skilled immigration from countries below a certain standard of living.

"We have considered the question and can consider it further," said MacEachen. "In general, my feeling is one of concern about any move to limit mobility of individuals."

In an opening statement on manpower activities, MacEachen indicated the department is concerned about the problem of foreign students seeking summer jobs in Canada and Canadian students seeking summer work outside the country.

The increasing number of students trying to enter Canada and the shortage of jobs for Canadian students had forced the department to take steps to control the flow.

He said 641,000 secondary or post-secondary students had been placed in summer jobs last year and this was expected to increase by 60,000 this year.

School Official Tells Board Libraries Poor

Saanich Peninsula school libraries don't measure up to provincial government requirements set in the early 1960s, let alone today, district superintendent Mort Thorsell told a board meeting Monday.

He said the district has good teachers but is lagging badly in library resources.

The per-pupil book count approaches the standard requirement of 10 in only a few cases.

But that includes paperbacks and encyclopedias, Thorsell added.

Home Recipe Plan Takes Off Ugly Fat

It's simple how quickly one may lose pounds of unsightly fat right in your own home. Make this home recipe yourself. It's easy, no trouble at all and costs little. Just go to your drugstore and ask for Naran. Pour this into a pint bottle and add enough grapefruit juice to fill the bottle. Take two tablespoonsful twice a day as needed and follow the Naran Reducing Plan.

If your first purchase does not show you a simple easy way to lose bulky fat and help regain slender more graceful curves; if reducible pounds and inches of excess fat don't disappear from neck, chin, arms, abdomen, hips, calves and ankles just return the empty bottle for your money back. Follow this easy way endorsed by many who have tried this plan and help bring back alluring curves and graceful slenderness. Note how quickly bloat disappears—how much better you feel. More alive, youthful appearing and active.

Board 'Favors' SFU: Professors

BURNABY (CP) — Six of eight professors suspended last fall for refusing to teach regular classes at Simon Fraser University claim a three-man board set up to hear their appeals is weighted in favor of the administration.

The six—all from the political science, sociology and anthropology department—said 17 candidates they had proposed for chairman of the board were all rejected without reason by SFU president Kenneth Strand.

A SFU spokesman said that under procedures established two years ago, Chief Justice J. O. Wilson of B.C. Supreme Court picked E. E. Palmer, a law professor at the University of Western Ontario, as chairman.

The administration's representative is J. Stefan Dupre, University of Toronto political scientist.

Farm Chief Pushes For Single Market

OTTAWA (CP) — Maintenance of an orderly grain marketing system under the Canadian wheat board is essential for the success of Canada's grain, livetock and poultry industries, national farmers' Union President Roy Atkinson said Tuesday.

Mr. Atkinson told the Commons agriculture committee his organization believes the wheat board should be the sole marketing agency for all Western Canada grain and that all grain sales to commercial feedlots should be subject to the board's price and quota regulations.

He said all violators of the board's regulations should be strictly prosecuted and recommended that penalties be increased.

"Failure of public authorities . . . and farmers to give complete support to the board's operations can only result in continual farm chaos, economic stagnation of rural communities and eventual destruction of any semblance of private enterprise in Canadian agriculture."

Mr. Atkinson was critical of recent illegal movements of grain across provincial boundaries.

COMPARED TO GAS

"If grain could cross provincial borders with impunity against the law, should it not be legal for farmers in Saskatchewan, where the gasoline tax is 19 cents, to bring in gas from Edmonton, where the tax is 15 cents?"

He said Canadian farmers are in "open conflict" with corporate business in a manner similar to that which prevailed 10 years ago.

"In 1960 corporate business said farmers were selling grain to mills in excess of the quota, so they must like it. In 1970 they say farmers are selling grain across provincial borders, so they must like this."

Mr. Atkinson said that although corporate business says grain marketing problems are caused by the wheat board and the farmers' desire to sell outside board regulations, it is actually corporate business which is anxious to operate outside the board.

He said the sale of grain to certain feed mills outside wheat board pricing and quota regulations was legalized 10 years ago as a direct result of pressure from "those business firms who stood to gain."

"The Canadian wheat board and farmers opposed that move, and we now urge the committee not to repeat the same mistake."

SAYS LAWS BROKEN

He contended that federal and provincial governments and the wheat board have failed to require corporate business to abide by existing grain laws.

"Corporations have been permitted to proceed virtually unmolested, while individuals have been charged and penalized for offences."

He noted that if a farmer transports grain illegally across a provincial border, the farmer may be charged with an offence. Why shouldn't the shipper and receiver be charged as well?

"Under questioning by Alf Gleave (NDP—Saskatoon Biggar), a former president of the National Farmers' Union, Mr. Atkinson said his organization has not attempted to lay charges against such companies.

"The National Farmers' Union is not a law enforcement agency. Any prosecutions may be initiated by the wheat board."

Mr. Atkinson said the committee should investigate to determine whether a "conspiracy" exists to destroy the orderly marketing system for some or all grains as a means of eliminating the wheat board.

Research by his organization indicated that grain shipments from the wheat board's designated area to other parts of Canada can be made under the guise of screenings without records being kept or inspections made.

AIDS VIOLATORS

The present situation, he said, is ready-made for any interests which might wish to violate the marketing objectives of the Wheat Board Act.

"In times of stress corporate business may help or hinder any public agency. It appears they have chosen to hinder and disrupt wheat board operations."

Mr. Atkinson criticized earlier testimony by E. J. McWilliam, president of the Canadian Grain Exchange, who recommended that the present marketing system for western barley be changed to a basis similar to that used for U.S. soybeans.

"This proposal is not acceptable to Canadian farmers. If it were accepted, marketing of western barley would be set back to a situation comparable to that which faced wheat marketing in 1935."

In reply to a query from Mr. Gleave, Mr. Atkinson said the attitude of most farmers toward the federal government's wheat acreage reduction scheme is one of "almost total rejection when applied to individual cases."

He said he expects "very little" acreage will be taken out of wheat production as a result of cash incentives provided under the new program.

"It should be noted that much of the land coming out of wheat production was already committed to be taken out of production before the government's plan was announced."

Noise Chases Birds

SCOTLAND NECK, N.C. (AP) has driven away most of the millions of birds that plagued this eastern North Carolina town. Officials hope backbirds, starlings, cowbirds, grackles have made an early start to their northern breeding grounds. Two portable distress call units —amplifying blackbird calls—a helicopter and shotguns were used to frighten 2,000,000 to 3,000,000 birds away.

Copper Spurs Booming Comeback of Congo Economy

By JIM HOAGLAND

KINSHASA, Congo (WP) — "Monsieur, we do not have funny money here now," a Congolese taxi driver said recently with an aggrieved air as a customer haggled over the six dollar fare for a bumpy ten-mile ride from Kinshasa's airport.

There was undoubtedly a lot of self interest ladled into the driver's remark, but it also indicates a growing Congolese pride in an economic recovery that astounds financial experts.

General Joseph D. Mobutu sees this economic progress as perhaps the most important part of his campaign to fuse the 200 or so tribes who inhabit this Central African giant into a nation.

Laughing Stock

The driver seemed as proud as the president that Congolese currency, which was once the laughing stock of Africa and which sold on the black market for 300 to 400 per cent markups, has now stabilized. The increasingly hard-to-find illicit money changers now give only 20 per cent premiums.

President Mobutu introduced the new currency, which is called the zaire and which bears Mobutu's image, in 1967 when he agreed to a strong World Bank suggestion for a 350 per cent devaluation. The Congo, suffering from the aftermath of its Civil War and poor financial management, was nearly bankrupt then.

Franc No, Zaire Si

Mobutu chucked off the old Congolese franc and went back in history for the name zaire (pronounced zah-ear) which is the answer Congolese tribesmen reportedly gave the first white explorers who saw the Congo River and asked how it was called. Zaire is an African word that simply means "river."

The Congolese disdain the ex-French colonies which have kept the French African franc as their currency and whose budgets therefore are tied to France. One zaire is worth two American dollars.

Mobutu, who has begun in the past few weeks to assert that "Operation Zaire" has succeeded, also whips up nationalist fervor by pointing to the Congo's healthy foreign exchange reserves ($236 million compared to almost nothing three years ago) and his liberal investment code, which has brought German, Japanese and American investors sniffing around this country, rich in minerals but devoid of infrastructure.

Experts involved in The Congo's economic recovery credit it to two factors: increasing copper production while copper prices are at an all-time high, and improved budgetary control that has eliminated the inflationary deficit spending of past Congolese governments.

The copper mines of Katanga account for more than 60 per cent of the Congo's export earnings. Other important minerals are gold, tin, diamonds and cobalt (the Congo produces about half of the world's supply).

Nationalized Mines

Mobutu nationalized The Congo's mines in 1967. They had belonged to the Belgian Firms Union Miniere du Haut Congo.

Realizing that lawsuits in Europe could strangle his chances for marketing the copper, Mobutu made a generous settlement with the Belgians a few months ago. About 1500 Belgian technicians are currently running the mines.

This, plus the legislation that gives foreign investors at least a year off from taxes, is attracting renewed attention here, and Mobutu makes the most of it.

He has hoarded the foreign exchange brought in by the mines in a move to increase investor confidence. A half billion in U.S. aid has enabled him to do this and at the same time "keep the country together" in the words of one observer. "The Congo is now at the transition point, where aid can be used to help the country take off," an economist here noted recently.

Sometimes the Congolese seem to get carried away with their own nationalistic bombast. This, at least, seems to be the most reasonable explanation of the frequent and loud assertions being made by Congelese officials that their country became the first in the developing world to join the Group of Ten last month.

One of Thirty

In fact, The Congo was one of about 30 countries given extra quotas by the International Monetary Fund when the special Drawing Rights System was put into effect.

This prestige move and vote of confidence in The Congo (which, because of its solid reserve position, is unlikely to need the extra rights) has somehow been translated with considerable chest puffing out as membership in "Les Dix."

The Congolese economic pride is also tempered by the realization that they still face major hurdles in economic development. The outlook, as one foreign expert describes it, is "fair with a few clouds."

The major problem is the lack of tansport networks across The Congo, which is larger than Texas and Alaska combined but which has fewer miles of paved roads than Rhode Island, and which has only 25 miles of sea coast.

The Congo needs to double its current production of more than 300,000 metric tons of copper a year to retain its six per cent share of the world market, over the next decade, according to economists here.

The mines have the capacity to do this, but no one is sure how the increase will be brought out of Katango to the sea.

The Congo River is one of the world's highest and longest, but is not navigable south of Kinshasa. An expensive and inefficient 1500 miles rail-water-road system is currently used to ship about half of the copper to the port of Matadi.

The other half goes out along the British-owned Benguela Railway through Portuguese Angola to the Port of Lobito. This link is vulnerable both to sabotage by guerrillas fighting the Portuguese (and who do not get along with Mobutu) and Mobutu's relations with the Portuguese.

Transport Studies

The United States, the Common Market's Development Fund and IMF are all considering studies for new transport links for The Congo, either along the river or via a new railway. The cost — likely to be over $250 million fo r either system — looks prohibitive thus far.

Transport cost the Congolese an important deal recently when a friendly government offered to buy the surplus corn and manioc crops that are rotting in the Congolese interior.

"Fine," a high ranking Congolese official reportedly told the ambassador who made the offer. "Go ahead and get it." When the ambassador gently suggested that perhaps the Congolese could bring the produce to the port, the Congolese official looked surprised. "We have no way of bringing it in from the bush," he said. The deal fell through.

Finally, there are the enormous social problems of the Congo which Mobutu has not yet begun to deal with effectively. Inflation, while not as bad as it was after the 1967 devaluation just about doubled prices, is still a concern to a population that earns about 100 dollars per capita per year.

Corruption still flourishes and hampers economic gains. A young high school graduate says he would have to pay 10 to 20 dollars to get a job.

Saanich Cool To Architects

A confrontation between building designers and professional architects, with legal overtones, ended in a tie Tuesday night at the Saanich municipal planning committee meeting.

But the battle will continue at a meeting next month when it is discussed again — this time with municipal solicitor D. A. M. Patterson present.

During the one-hour discussion, attended by 20 designers and architects:

- Development engineer Joseph Barber-Starkey recommended no action be taken to enforce the Architectural Act of B.C.;
- The development engineer may pass plans to a design panel of all groups for structures beyond single-family houses with the panel having power only to recommend;
- Patterson said councils don't have power over design for aesthetic reasons, only for safety and health, and that the Architectural Institute of B.C. can lay charges if there are infractions of the Act;
- Institute lawyer Kenneth Meredith said the institute is not asking Saancih to enforce the Act but to observe it;
- Meredith said that in his opinion, if a municipality disregards the Act, there is an "injunctive remedy" against the transgressor and the person permitting it.

Asked what he meant by observing the Act, he said by not accepting plans and not recognizing plans of those not qualified to submit them.

218-1 — We have

'We Have Qualified Designers'

The committee was told that the Act lists a variety of structures where an architect is required as a designer, including buildings of $50,000 or more. This would include three-storey frame apartments.

For the builders and designers, Frank Krieger of Victoria Home Builders Association said "we feel we have qualified designers," did not object to architects on large buildings but was concerned about costs in smaller buildings. He favored a design panel for anything from four-plex up.

The committee was told that the issue began from a reflection of council's concern over design and advice from architects that Saanich is not enforcing the Architectural Act.

Dave Hambleton, president of the Vancouver Island chapter of the Architectural Institute of B.C., said "some building inspectors in this area" asked architects to take action because of concern over non-architect designed buildings.

No names were mentioned and Mayor Hugh Curtis said no building inspector had ever told him this. Later he described Hambleton's comments as shameful.

"Let the institute lay a charge if there is an infraction, as the solicitor suggests," Curtis said.

"We are being dragged into something that is not our business."

Institute president W. R. Rhone said design panels have proved a valuable tool to improve the environment.

He cited Vancouver, which has a charter permitting refusal of building approval on the basis of design. This was different from municipalities under the Municipal Act, he added.

Hambleton said Oak Bay has set up a design panel in co-operation with the institute.

The committee finally tabled the issue for more discussion at another meeting when the municipal solicitor will attend.

STANDS BY DENSITY PLAN

Saanich municipal planning committee agreed Tuesday night to stand by population density plans approved by council last year for forthcoming sewerage expansion.

The expansion, which will cost $8 million for the municipality's share of regional sewerage costs plus local lateral lines, is designed for a population of 225,000 in one-third of Saanich.

At a meeting of another committee earlier this month, densities were queried in connection with interest by some developers in middle and low-income housing projects on the outskirts of the sewerage expansion area.

●

Municipal Engineer Neville Life said if a larger area or greater density was planned, the costs would be greater.

"We have allowed for as much as it is fair to pay for," he said. "We have an adequate population safety valve."

As an example, he said the population in one existing sewered area is 27,000 to 28,000 while sewerage installations allowed for 64,000.

The present questions only came up, he said, because of a special temporary housing fund in Ottawa and cheaper land costs further out in Saanich.

●

With an $8 million price tag on new sewers, he asked if it is reasonable to double that so there is no re-design work in 100 years instead of the planned 50 years.

Planner Tom Loney said a population density of 18 persons per acre was planned over a large area with a certain reserve capacity. Sewer capacity calculations were based on projections of densities.

Generally, these densities decrease moving outwards. Flexibilities existed, but not to an unlimited point.

A density of 18 persons per acre, he said, is equivalent to something more than over-all duplex density, adding this was "purely illustrative."

'Rows of Boxes With Door Holes'

A housing development planned for McKenzie Avenue was labelled a "misrepresentation" Tuesday night in a report by Saanich planner Tom Loney to the municipal planning committee.

The first plan, presented to a rezoning public hearing, called for a 21-unit townhouse project at 1741 McKenzie in a brick-faced court facing the street, he said.

Plans now in for development plan approval show "unrelieved rows of boxes with holes punched" for doors and windows for a 20-unit project, he said.

Loney said the planning department is not trying to single out this particular application, by R. Gilmour Construction Ltd.

But, he said, "in our view it's a misrepresentation in that a high quality of design is promised but not produced."

He commented that "this sort of thing happens. We have no suggestions.

With minor adjustments, the plans submitted for development plan approval from the municipality meet regulations and there is no alternative but to give it this approval, he said.

Replying to questions, Loney said he did not believe that plans can be included in the rezoning bylaw but he agreed to see the municipal solicitor about this.

The committee agreed that the chairman, Ald. Alan Newberry, solicitor D. A. M. Patterson and Loney meet the firm.

All-Nude Show Inoffensive . . . Dull

By MARY CAMPBELL

NEW YORK (AP) — Grin and Bare It, which opened this week at the Belasco Theatre, is Broadway's first all-nude show. It is inoffensive and dull. Verbally, it is propaganda for nudism and a comedy based on one joke, which seldom is a strong enough base to sustain an entire play, no matter how you dress it.

The joke is that a young man from Boston visits his girl-friend's home in South California not knowing she and her family are nudists.

If you haven't seen nudity on the stage previously, and no New York play reviewer is in that category, the play could interest you twice. You will be able to share the young Bostonian's shock when naked people begin joining him in the living room. And when he decides he's in Rome and he'll try doing as the Roman's do, and strips, you can sympathize with his embarrassment.

The rest of the time you're a captive of a lengthy collection of arguments in favor of nudism by the eight assembled nudists and a few arguments for modesty by the disassembled Bostonian. All that propaganda just is boring.

The play isn't sexy and doesn't contain any dirty words. It isn't meant to be salacious, proposing as it does that nudity is a healthy and natural family way of life. You're laughing at a non-nudist's embarrassment — when you're laughing. Except for a maid who occasionally walks through and flips up a transparent white frilled apron, you're not laughing at nakedness.

This was written by Tom Cushing in 1929, and was adapted by Ken McGuire. For the last three summers it has been performed by members of a nudist camp in New Jersey.

Earlier in the evening, Postcards, a one-act play by James Prideaux, was seen. Prideaux's plays usually have people filling time in apparently meaningless ways. Postcards isn't one of his better efforts.

The aging man and woman in it, who are dressed, have been writing 20 fan-type postcards a week to famous persons, for 30 years, and throwing them out a window supposing that somebody will address and mail them. Their hope is that maybe one card will arrive at a recipient's "moment of self-doubt and despondency" and give him strength to carry on.

Lost Count Of His Plays

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Edward Everett Horton is 84 today — alert, vigorous and he says "good another 20 years, easily."

Retire? "Never. An actor retires only when there's no further interest in his work. Fortunately, it seems, life begins at 84."

Brooklyn-born, the nearly six-foot comedian with the juttery mannerisms and anxious face went on the stage 60 years ago. Since 1920, he has made more than 100 movies but has lost count of his plays.

CHEERS, TEARS FOR KING

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — A documentary film on the life and work of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr. brought cheers and tears from hometown audiences and produced bomb threats and demonstrations at some other theatres in the United States.

The movie, entitled King: A Filmed Record . . . Montgomery to Memphis, was presented Tuesday in simultaneous showings at more than 1,000 public theatres in the United States, Canada and Europe.

In Atlanta, where King lived and helped found the non-violent civil rights movement, the film played to highly responsive, sellout audiences in 11 theatres —including three added to meet a surge of last-minute ticket demands.

A smoke bomb was thrown into a theatre during a showing in Boise, Idaho, and a handful of pickets marched outside, saying they did not agree with King's civil rights campaign methods.

In Pittsburgh and Cincinnati, bomb threats were made to theatres showing the film. Other fake bomb threats were received in New York City, Washington, D.C., St. Louis and Macon, Ga.

Cable TV Contradicts Canadian Content

OTTAWA (CP) — CFPL radio and television of London, Ont., suggested today that federal policy on cable TV conflicts with Canadian broadcasting goals and called for co-ordinated development.

"Unless there is some relief through carefully-designed policies to guide the development of cable TV, there would appear to be no way to arrest the downward spiral of declining audience" for regular Canadian TV, CFPL Broadcasting Ltd. told the special Senate committee on mass media.

"More audience declines will ultimately bring about serious decreases in revenue, which will lead to a reduction in the level of program service."

CFPL's views, submitted in advance of a committee appearance today, were presented against a background of examination of federal broadcasting regulations, including proposals by the Canadian Radio-Television Commission to require increased Canadian program content.

CFPL AM and FM radio and television are linked in ownership with the London Free Press under publisher-broadcaster W. J. Blackburn. Mr. Blackburn and executives of his companies appeared before the Senate committee Jan. 21, when the main subjects were the newspaper, corporate structure and cross-media ownership.

FACE TOUGH PROBLEM

The broadcasting submission said Canadian TV stations near the U.S. border face "a worrisome, paradoxical situation"—how to fulfill its Canadian programming obligations against a free flow of competing U.S. programs distributed by federally-authorized cable systems.

Can CFPL-TV, competing against seven cable-carried U.S. channels, continue to fulfill its obligations to promote Canadianism and attract a viable audience as a CBC affiliate required to provide its "balanced service of information, enlightenment and entertainment for people of different ages, interests and tastes covering the whole range of programming in fair proportion?"

"One must ask whether government policy regarding cable TV has been contrary to the spirit and intent of the Broadcasting Act," CFPL said. The act requires broadcasters to promote Canadianism.

The submission said a CRTC study showed London has the highest penetration by cable TV of any Canadian city, with 80 per cent of the city's homes wired to systems that carry in all seven U.S. and three Canadian TV channels, five FM radio programs and a TV program channel provided by a cable operator.

While viewers in homes without cable service watched U.S. TV stations only 2.3 per cent of the time, those with cable watched U.S. programs more than half their viewing time.

SERVE RURAL AREAS

CFPL-TV, with substantial audiences in cableless rural areas, has been able to remain viable by promotion and "ingenuity in our programming" in time periods when it is not required to carry CBC network shows.

"Some of the CBC network programming has not fared so well. This is to be expected since much of it is designed for specific 'minority' audiences."

CFPL raised a similar point about its requirement to carry 26 hours a week of CBC radio programs on its AM station as the CBC's London affiliate.

Many of the CBC radio programs lack general audience appeal, being purposely designed for minority-taste groups, CFPL said.

So CFPL negotiated a switch that reduced CBC broadcasts on the AM station to about 17 hours a week from 26 and brought 36½ hours of CBC shows to its FM station.

Continuation of present CRTC policies to extend cable services to rural areas and require cable companies to produce their own programs could intensify competition for viewers and lead to demands for cable commercials, adding competition for advertising revenue, CFPL said.

Worst-Seller Book List Released

OTTAWA (CP) — Auditor-General Maxwell Henderson Tuesday published the federal worst-seller list in his annual report. Up front again was Flora of Manitoba.

Flora, which is about plants, not some Winnipeg society belle, is selling like wheat. A total of 133 copies of 1,283 printed was sold in four years.

The book was published by the National Museums of Canada, costs $6.50, and is on sale at the Queen's Printer's shops across Canada.

Other worst-sellers to March 31, 1969:

- The Queen's Choice (A Story of Canada's Capital). Only 473 copies have been ordered by sales outlets since November, 1967. The Queen's Printer had 5,433 or $42,000 worth in stock last March.
- Fishes of the Atlantic Coast of Canada. Of 4,800 copies printed January, 1967, about 3,700 were unsold last March.
- Rideau Hall, an Illustrated History of Government House, Ottawa. Last March 7,000 copies remained unsold, at $12 each, of a 1967 press run of 8,000.
- In 1967, the government bought 1,600 sets of slides of Canada's Parliament, for sale to tourists on Parliament Hill. Only 100 sets had been sold by last March.

Oscar-less Cary Grant To Get One

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Notes and comment on the Hollywood scene—

One of the first persons to congratulate Dyan Cannon on her Academy Award nomination was Cary Grant, her former husband. That was before he knew that the Academy was going to vote him a special Oscar for his long and distinguished, but Oscarless, career.

The word is out that Grant's onetime co-star, Grace Kelly, will be coming to the Music Centre on April 7 to present the award to him. With Richard Burton and Elizabeth Taylor also in attendance, the 42nd awards should be among the most stellar in history. . . .

So far it appears that virtually all acting nominees will be present. But one of last year's winners won't be there: Katherine Hepburn, who is playing Coco in New York. She never comes anyway . . .

BURTONS IN MACBETH

During his visit here, Richard Burton disclosed that he and his wife are planning to do a film Macbeth after they make The Defector. While waiting for both movie deals, he is writing a few pages of a proposed book every morning. Burton is an excellent writer, as he has proved with a few magazine articles . . .

The incidental music in the Idiot's Delight revival at the Music Centre is credited in the program to John Lemmon III. He is, of course, the same fellow who stars in the show, Jack Lemmon has dabbled in jazz since his Harvard days and has rarely been able to display his musical skill. In the show, which is expertly staged by Garson Kanin, Lemmon sings, plays the piano and does some fancy hoofing . . . .

There has been much talk about whether the Motion Picture Academy would want to give the best picture award to an X-rated film, Midnight Cowboy. It's not generally known that the releasing company, United Artists, voluntarily took an X, figuring that it wasn't meant to be seen by children under any circumstances.

Midnight Cowboy would probably have been given an R, meaning it could have been seen by children if accompanied by adults.

THE CHINA STORY
ONE FOURTH OF HUMANITY

This unique, colour film opens with dramatic sequences of the student rebellion of 1935. Featuring the only pictures ever taken of the Red Army's historic Long March and a marathon interview with Mao Tse Tung, The China Story was assembled from the private collection of Edgar Snow, distinguished journalist. The film covers thirty years of turbulent Chinese history.

8 CARDS OF THANKS

We wish to extend our heartfelt thanks to all who so kindly assisted and for the words of sympathy and beautiful floral offerings extended at the death of our beloved sister, Ida Elizabeth Crews.

Mrs. Emily Mold
Mrs. Gertrude Rice
Mrs. Amy Ross

Sincere thanks and deepest gratitude to the many who gave us so much assistance, through these last sorrowful months. Special thanks to the doctors and staff of Chemainus Hospital and Dr. J. C. Donald and staff of Royal Jubilee Hospital, Victoria. To all our many friends who visited Einar in the hospital. To Einar's nephew and dear friends who acted as pall-bearers and to Rev. Hooper for his comforting words. To all who sen flowers to the service and to the house and for the many cards and comforting letters we received. To the Chemainus logging division and the boom division of MacMillan Bloedel, the Canadian Legion, Br. 191, the Sons of Norway Lodge, Duncan. Thank you one and all. — Judy Dahl and family.

We wish to thank our many friends for their kindness, words of sympathy, and floral tributes. We would like to thank the Brothers and Sisters of the Church of The Latter Day Saints for the lovely words and service at the Chapel, also for their kind help in our time of need. We would like to give special thanks to the many Doctors, nurses and staff at the Royal Jubilee Hospital who gave so much time, care, and comfort to our loved one, Mrs. Vera Davidson. — Mr. Geo Davidson, Mrs. O. Gracia and family.

9 IN MEMORIAM

DAYTON—In loving memory of our mother, Margaret Ann Dayton, who left us four years ago today.
—Ever remembered by her daughters, Marguerite and Doreen.

McAULAY—In loving memory of a dear wife and mother, Elizabeth Reid, who passed away March 25, 1967.

The dearest mother and noblest friend,
One of the best whom God could lend;
Absent the face we loved so dear,
Silent the voice we loved to hear,
Deep in our hearts her memory is kept,
To love and to cherish and never forget.
—Fondly remembered by Margaret and Dad.

9 IN MEMORIAM

FERNSTROM—In loving memory of our dear Father, Father-in-Law and Grandfather, who passed away suddenly on March 25, 1969.

A wonderful father laid to rest,
For each of us he did his best.
His place on earth no one can fill,
We miss you Dad and always will.
Although we smile and make no fuss,
No one misses you more than us.
What we would give if we could say,
"Hello Dad" in the same old way.
To hear your voice to see you smile,
To sit with you and chat awhile.
You left suddenly your thoughts unknown,
But you left a memory we are proud to own.
—Ever remembered and sadly missed by daughters, Helen and Ethel, sons, Clarey and Tommy, daughters and sons-in-law, Kay, Celine, Jim, Eddie and grandchildren.

Tonight's Top Television Shows

ENGLEBERT HUMPERDINCK. 7:30 p.m., Channel 8. Sergio Mendez and Brasil '66, musical comedy star Joel Grey, comedienne Jo Ann Worley and singer Lana Cantrell are Engel's guests. Songs include Wandering Star, Easy to be Hard, With a Little Help from My Friends and Morris was Nice.

★ ★ ★

SPECIAL. 8 p.m., Channels 2 and 6. Wild Africa — Something New is the second of two documentaries on African wildlife. The emphasis is on today's Africa and cameras take you right into the field where researchers do their most significant work.

★ ★ ★

THE VIRGINIAN. 7:30, Channel 5. "Long Ride Home." (Repeat) An attractive tale about the relationship between a man who calls himself a trail bum (Leslie Nielsen), and an 18-year-old youngster named Jim Horn (Tim Matheson) he has practically reared. How the two of them live their roving life together as a team, how they happen on the Shiloh Ranch, and how the paths of such a pair would come asunder, adds up to a believable and absorbing story.

★ ★ ★

THE COURTSHIP OF EDDIE'S FATHER. 7 p.m., Channel 6; 8 p.m., Channel 4. "The Littlest Kidnapper." (Repeat) Cute show. Eddie takes it into his head that Mrs. Livingston (Miyoshi Umeki) should have a little boy of her own and coaxes an Oriental classmate into coming home with him. Since the lad won't disclose who he is or where he lives, many problems are presented, until the fact that his parents are separated brings on some homey and sentimental philosophizing.

★ ★ ★

ROOM 222. 8:30 p.m., Channel 4. "Richie's Story." (Repeat). The series premiere episode and a good one from the start. Lloyd Haynes registers immediately as a definite personality in the role of a black teacher who cares about his students, one and all. The plot this time deals with a young black student who falsifies some information in order to attend classes in a high school out of his district. Haynes finds out and goes to bat for the bright kid who really wants the best education he can get, and their scenes ring true.

NET JOURNAL. 8:30 p.m., Channel 9 "Trial — The City and County of Denver vs. Lauren R. Watson." Defendant Lauren R. Watson is on the witness stand and his testimony refutes much of what Police Officer Cantwell had said earlier. Clearly, they can't both be telling the truth, and you'll be increasingly absorbed as this historic TV documentary unfolds, leading toward the verdict and payoff tomorrow. Producer Robert Fresco and his editors have done a remarkable job condensing the six hours of testimony each day down to the 90-minutes of the telecast. (Black and White).

MEDICAL CENTER. 9 p.m., Channel 12. Another temperamental clash sparks the hour when Doc Gannon squares off against angry father Carl Betz. Tonight, Gannon has a Tartar in Betz who brings Joe before the medical board. With his forceful manner, Betz adds a flash of life to the show and manages to capture some sympathy along the way.

★ ★ ★

MUSIC HALL. 9 p.m., Channel 5. The show is heavy on skits tonight, what with Phil Silvers and Paul Lynde fussing over their co-hosting jobs; playing status-seeking business tycoons engaged in a running battle getting each other on the phone; portraying two incompetent fight managers letting heavyweight champion Joe Frazier slip through their fingers, etc. But that's not all. There's more to come when Phil Silvers meets Barbara Feldon in a supermarket, Stiller and Meara do a talking duet, and everyone gets into the act for a takeoff on "They Shoot Horses, Don't They."

★ ★ ★

HAWAII FIVE-O. 10 p.m., Channel 12. (Repeat) Mel Goldberg's taut story about G.I. brides dying suddenly after collecting insurance, has hero McGarrett off and running in good style. The episode moves at a brisk pace with the 5-O chief trying to pin down an Army Sergeant and a sexy dance hall hostess. Underling Danny Williams (James MacArthur) sees action impersonating an Army corporal making a play for the dance hall queen, and he, like the boss, seldom cracks a smile in fun-loving Honolulu. Cast of Harry Guardino, Barbara Luna and Barbara Nichols deserves mention too.

★ ★ ★

DRAMA SPECIAL. 9 p.m., Channels 2 and 6. The Siegfried Idyll recreates 19th centruy composer Richard Wagner's passionate affair with Cosima von Bulow, his mistress of eight years, mother of his four children and wife of his best friend.

TONIGHT'S MOVIES

5:30: Channel 12: Captain Lightfoot (1955 Adventure), Barbara Rush, Jeff Morrow. Beautifully filmed period adventure about rebellion in Old Ireland of the 1880's.

8:30: Channel 8: Say One For Me (1959 Musical), Bing Crosby, Debbie Reynolds. Crosby fans might enjoy this one about a show business parish, a chorous girl and a night club manager.

9:00: Channel 7: 40 Pounds of Trouble (1962 Comedy). Tony Curtis, Phil Silvers, Suzanne Plesehette. A Damon Runyon tale about a child used as security for a gambling debt.

11:30: Channel 7: Target Unknown (1951 Drama), Mark Stevens, Alex Nicol. A group of lyers forced down in German-occupied France attempt to escape.

11:40: Channel 2: Sister Kenny (1946 Drama), Rosalind Russell, Alexander Knox, Dean Jagger. Frequently stirring drama, excellently acted, about a nurse and her fight against infantile paralysis.

12:00: Channel 6: Say One For Me (1959 Musical), see above.

12:00 Channel 8: They Who Dare (1955 English War Drama), Dirk Bogarde, Akim Tamiroff. Well-made, frequently exciting World War II drama.

1:05: Channel 5: The Gun that Won the West (1955 Western), Dennis Morgan, Richard Denning. Cavalry Scouts tangle with the Sioux and Cheyenne Indians in this mediocre western.

Plugs Urged For Hijack Law Gaps

MONTREAL (CP) — The legal committee of the International Civil Aviation Organization today recommended proposals to fill what it says are gaps in international law affecting hijackers and to increase the dollar liability of airlines to passengers.

A draft treaty released at a news conference contains provisions on the prosecution and "severe punishment" of hijackers and calls for greater co-operation in extraditing hijackers.

The legal committee also suggested in a separate document that airlines be liable up to $100,000 for injury or death to passengers.

Such liability would even include so-called acts of God, and represent an increase from the $16,800 (U.S.) agreed to in 1955 by the 119-member ICAO.

The ICAO, an agency of the United Nations, is a technical group through which governments co-operate in establishing standards and procedures for the safety, economic efficiency and progress of civil aviation.

Annual Parade Of Costly Errors

By GERARD McNEIL

OTTAWA (CP) — Another unsmiling volume in Auditor-General Maxwell Henderson's harrowing tales of how taxes are spent by the government was tabled in the Commons Tuesday.

The eagle-eyed Mr. Henderson tells of $180,000,000 in tariff remissions to auto manufacturers, cheques to fictitious old-age pensioners, and costly lapses in liaison between government departments.

He also says that the government, by freezing his own staff at 239, has acted in a way "wholly inconsistent with the intent and wishes of Parliament."

His staff should be raised to 250 by March 31 and another 40 positions created after that to cope with a growing government, he says.

WILL BE TWO VOLUMES

Mr. Henderson says a second volume in his 1968-69 fiscal report on financial transactions will be necessary because of the staff shortage. It will deal with departmental operating activities and special audits and studies.

The first volume rips, in the usual way, into the foibles and failings of governmental control of a budget that has doubled in seven years to more than $12,000,000,000.

Mr. Henderson says inadequate liaison between the new manpower centres and unemployment insurance offices may have cost the unemployment insurance fund $3,000,000.

A routine check of one regional office disclosed frauds on old-age pension cheques involving $800,000. The money had gone to fictitious persons and others who didn't qualify.

LIST OTHERS

Elsewhere, the auditor-general found that:

—A squadron leader at Comox, B.C., ordered a pilot to fly a jet full out in a 500-foot pass to salute the RCAF Jan. 31, 1968. The result was at least $7,100 in damages, mostly from broken glass, but no charges were placed.

—Penitentiary officers pay five cents an hour to prison labor to have brakes relined for $1.76, or suits made for $16.76, including cost of material. The labor cost is less than the taxpayer pays the prisoner for the work.

—Thousands of federal employees at subsidized meals. Servicemen pay as low as $46 a month for meals that cost $101. And in some messes, the staff is greater than the number being served.

HOME GARDEN

Planning That Instant Layout

By HILDA BEASTALL.

A practical possibility for today's impatient gardener is the instant garden. After all, we are pampered with everything else on an instant basis, from instant meals to instant music.

Hilda

As with these services, the instant garden requires that someone must do the ground work in preparation for the instant effect.

With garden preparation, a decision has to be made as to the type of plants desired, but my suggestion for the most instant of all gardens I can visualize is to plant a rhododendron-azalea garden.

This sets the type of soil preparation to be done before planting, since these are acid-soil plants, requiring a humusy, peaty mixture over good drainage for winter safety.

The instant effect is obtained because the bold glossy foliage of the rhodos is evident together with well budded flower trusses at time of purchase. And azaleas with their buds on leafless stems all add up to a furnished look to a garden as soon as planted.

Although no sharp line exists between these shrubs today, there is enough difference between foliage habits and times of blooming to furnish a small garden, yet the associated types of plants to thrive in the same conditions will add diversity of form and thus add interest.

Included are heaths and heathers, the spring ones already budded, summer ones with new growth started; the lovely evergreen pierises with scarlet new leaves ready to unfurl; the somewhat similar but evn hardier photinias; and kalmia.

Quiet different in habit but making excellent color contrast of foliage and flowers, are spring flowering Cytisus praecox and C. kewensis, both cream colored brooms of good habit.

Before jumping into this instant garden project get some advice on your specific garden conditions from someone who knows rhododendrons, for the variety available is enormous. Some must have full sun in our climate in order to bloom well, others with very large leaves like to be in dappled sun and shade.

Some are evergreen with their handsome leaves contributing their quota of interest to the winter garden; others have leaves which color brilliantly in fall before they drop.

Time of blooming varies too from those which bloom in warm sheltered gardens early in the year, to the June blooming beauties for summer.

But as an instant garden, I believe a wonderful job can be done with these lovely plants.

KARPIN ON BRIDGE

By FRED L. KARPIN

Although World Championship play is basically a contest involving a clash of skills, the element of luck frequently comes to the fore to determine the outcome. Such was the case in the deal diagrammed today. It came up in the 1969 World Championships, in the match between China and the United States.

North-South vulnerable. East deals.

NORTH
♠A 9 8
♡Q 9 7
◇9 7 2

◇J 10 8
♣A K

The bidding:

East	South	West	North
Pass	1♣	1♠	Dbl.
Pass	2 NT	Pass	3 NT
Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: King of ♡.

China was holding the North-South cards. South's opening club bid was artificial, showing a hand containing 16 or more high-card points. North's double of West's one spade overcall was also artificial, and announced 5-8 high card points and no five-card suit. South's subsequent jump to two no-trump indicated 20 points. North, with a figurative shrug of the shoulders, then carried on to game in no-trump.

West opened the diamond king, and the defenders cashed four diamond tricks That was the end of the line for them, for with the spade finesse being successful, South brought home nine tricks.

South was lucky in that, first, the opponents were not able to cash five diamond tricks, And, secondly, he made a lucky decision when he concealed his heart suit. A four heart contract would have been defeated, except if West chose to open a low spade away from his king.

When the deal was replayed, with the United States holding the North-South cards, this was the bidding sequence:

East	South	West	North
Pass	1 H	1 S	Pass
Pass	Double	Pass	2 H
Pass	Pass	Pass

South might well have bid three hearts over North's two-heart call, but he felt that if North had a worthless hand the three heart contract might be in jeopardy.

And so it turned out that the Chinese team won this deal by bidding a game in one room, and holding their opponents to a part-score in the other room. Would you not agree that luck played an important part in their victory?

FLASHBACK ON CANADA

Pair of Disasters Solved Each Other

By BOB BOWMAN

Parliament at Ottawa has faced many crises since 1867, and March 25, 1885, was one of the most difficult. The CPR was almost bankrupt. George Stephen and Donald A. Smith had borrowed $650,000 and signed a five-months note for $1,000,000 to keep the company going for a few weeks. If the CPR crashed, Sir John A. Macdonald's government would probably go with it.

At the same time the telegraph line from the west was humming with reports that the Metis and Indians were ready to rebel, and were threatening the North West Mounted Police post at Fort Carlton. The Canadian militia was being mobilized and the commanding officer, Major-General F. Middleton, was already on his way to Winnipeg on the patched-up CPR rails.

Yet Sir John A. Macdonald was able to use the two disasters to solve each other. He used the railway to defend the west from the rebellion, and he used the rebellion to persuade Parliament to provide enough money to save the railway.

The Winnipeg militia began to move towards Batoche on March 25. One of its officers was Sir John A. Macdonald's son, Hugh, who later became premier of Manitoba. As the Winnipeg militia stopped at the railway stations along the line, crowds cheered and bands played "Auld Lang Syne" and "The Girl I Left Behind Me".

Military leaders were more concerned about the Indians than they were about the Metis. It was known that Louis Riel's assistant, Gabriel Dumont, was trying to incite the Indians to go on the warpath thoughout the prairies, and the slaughter could be terrible.

The great missionaries, Father Lacombe and Reverend George McDougall, were already talking to the Blackfoot and Cree tribes in Alberta and were successful in persuading them not to join the rebellion, although Edmonton was in great danger until troops arrived from Calgary.

Sam was busy on his front lawn when I dropped in for a visit. "Trying to smarten it up," he told me. "I'll dig up a one yard strip all the way round, and have flowers instead."

"Still some lawn, you mean?" I commented. "And square like before?" "That's right," Sam nodded. "I'll get just three hundred square feet for flowers."

What size lawn would that leave?

Failure of Vision During Childhood

By DR. WALTER ALVAREZ

Many a parent has been shocked on learning that a child two years old is using mainly one eye to see, because the other is not working well. Some eye specialists explain the condition, called amblyopia, by saying that one eye has become lazy during the early years, and has left the other eye to do most of the work.

As a result, the nerves that run from the lazy type to the brain, and especially those nerves that come from the central part of the eye the ones that give us our "central vision" and are essential for close vision, such as in reading—fail to develop completely.

If left uncorrected, the tendency to loss of vision tends to become worse and worse, although there is never complete loss of vision. Sometimes the unused eye may turn inward or outward. Always, a good ophthalmologist should be consulted immediately.

★ ★ ★

Even in the most of the untreated cases, the outer edges of the retina (the seeing membrane in the back of the eye) retain fairly normal vision; but unfortunately, without the so-called binocular vision (vision in which both eyes are used) the child will lose his perception of depth. Then he will not be able to reach out quickly to touch a spot; he will have to feel around for it.

In the treatment of children with amblyopia, the good eye is covered with an eye patch so that the lazy one is forced to do all the seeing. If caught in time and treated immediately, the disease can be halted, and the eye will get back enough function so that it can work well in unison with the other eye.

A sauna bath is now a popular fad which, as most people doubtless know, came from Finland. I read that there people go naked into a room containing a stove which gets the air very hot. After a while, the person may go suddenly into the cold, such as a snow bank or a river or a swimming pool or into a cold shower. The person may perhaps be better for profuse sweating.

From what I can learn from reading, the many enthusiastic claims made for these supposed health-giving baths are not proven. The big difference between a sauna and an old Turkish bath seems to be that the air in a sauna room is very dry, while in the steam bath it is very moist.

Experts tell me that no one can tell a person how long he should stay in a sauna bath, but it had better not be more than 15 minutes; the person had better get out when he gets uncomfortable. The danger is that the heat can cause the body temperature to rise, and some physicians think that the would-be bather would do well to be examined to make sure that he is in good enough health to stand the over-heating. It is a good idea to have windows which will permit attendants to watch the bathers at all times.

★ ★ ★

People who have saunas in their homes should know that the temperature should not go above 150 degrees Fahrenheit, and the humidity had better stay under 20 per cent, and there should be some provision for ventilation of the room.

Study Favors Colored Workers

LONDON — Colored immigrants have brought Britain more economic gains than losses, according to an independent study by the aurotative National Institute for Economic and Social Research. It will be published in May.

The findings of this impartial inquiry, concerned primarily with the accountancy and economics of immigration, and not with social and political tensions, strike a calmer note in the arguments about race.

The authors of the report are two economists, Mrs. K. Jones and A. D. Smith, who have spend the last two years evaluating the part played by immigrants in industry and the public services. Their findings amount to a balance sheet for postwar immigration, in which labor costs are weighed against the contribution immigrants have made to the expansion of the economy.

Probably the most important economic advantage for Britain is in social and public services. Many hospital and transport departments would not be able to meet public needs without immigrants.

In their survey of industries generally, the authors conclude that the contribution toward increasing real income per capita in Britain is small, though almost certainly favorable. Immigrants have provided for many industries unskilled labor of a kind that British labor is unwilling or unsuited to provide. Firms also find that immigrant workers are much more mobile and eager to move to new jobs,and less disposed to apply restrictive practices.

WORK NIGHTS

Many firms have also been able to take maximum economic advantage of investment in new plant and machinery, and thereby to increase productivity and efficiency, because of the greater willingness of immigrants to work night shifts. This is particularly true, for instance, with the woollen industry.

In its analysis of the cost of immigrants—in particular on the social services—the report concludes that the demands of the immigrants are, in total, less than those of the native population at the present time, though no doubt the pattern will change as immigrants become more closely adapted to the social and economic life of the community.

It's a Nose-to-Nose Affair For Haida, White Playmate

By PAT DUFOUR

When it's a matter of whale sex it takes a whale to know the difference.

Haida, the star killer whale at Sealand of the Pacific in Oak Bay seems sure the white killer whale that joined him Tuesday is the future bride he's been promised.

He's just about convinced the experts.

A Sealand official reported today:

NUZZLING UP

"He spends most of the time chasing her and nuzzling up. He won't leave her alone but ignores the other one, who just swims around alone. He probably knows more than we do."

Sealand president Bob Wright and a crew of experts brought the white whale and another to Sealand Tuesday from their pens at Pedder Bay.

FINE WHALE PAD

It was the D-Day that Wright had been waiting for since Sealand captured the five-whale pod near Race Rocks March 1.

First came the "dry run" in which the white killer whale's fifteen-foot-four-inch companion was netted, hauled aboard the 60-foot seiner May S and taken the 17 miles to Oak Bay Marina.

Within half an hour of arriving a huge crane had lifted him from the deck of the fish boat and into the pool. May S steamed back to Pedder Bay.

Then came the time for nerves as we drove back to Pedder Bay for the whale that the world has been waiting to see.

Wright, obviously taut, talked with Dr. Roberta Hartman, veterinarian from the marine aquarium in Vancouver. Dr. Alan Hoey, Sealand's veterinarian, remained silent for the most part.

SUPERVISE TRANSFER

Also in the car was Bill Cameron and his son John. They had flown down from Pender Harbor to supervise the transfer.

For Bill, a commercial fisherman, the catching of the white whale would be almost old hat because he has captured 21 whales of his own.

And, as he quietly warned: "You have to keep cool, if there's one member on the team that get's excited you're in trouble."

By the time we reached May S everything was in readiness. Divers stood by. Few spoke except Cameron who issued orders in quiet but authoritative tones.

BIG BULL

In one pen swam Charlie Chin, the large bull in the pod.

The arena of testing was the other. Int it swam the white whale and two large cows who seemed to know that they were to lose her. They swam protectively around the small white one.

The nets were spread. There was one anxious second when it seemed that the white one would join her elders as they dove to the other side. She didn't—the net held and the careful process began of placing her in the special sling that would hold her until she reached Sealand.

BLOOD SAMPLES

To those that watched—as well as those that worked—it seemed that time stood sill. Actually, it was a bare 20 minutes' lapse from the time she was netted and secured on the stern of the seiner.

First, blood samples were taken, to be rushed by car to

IRISH SWEEPSTAKES WINNERS

Big Prizes to 3 in Vancouver

TIMES NEWS SEVRICES

Two Vancouver area women — an old-age pensioner recovering from a broken hip and the wife of a hospitalized mill hand — each won $130,000 Irish Sweepstakes first prizes today.

Only other British Columbian to share in the big money also was a Vancouver woman, Mrs. Lewis Botto, who picked up $52,000 second prize with a ticket on Prince de Galles.

The horse winning the race was New Chapter and its victory sent first prizes to six Canadians, four in Ontario as well as 70-year-old Mrs. Mona Kerhoven of Vancouver and Mrs. Douglas Warren of Pitt Meadows.

Mrs. Kerkhoven, said she has been in bed for the past three months with a broken hip.

"I'm so shaken, don't ask me any more questions. Don't talk to me any more. I don't want to say anything more," she said.

She said her ticket was a gift from a friend who will share in her prize.

Mrs. Warren, the mother of four, said her husband, who is employed by a forest products mill in Hammond, 35 miles east of here, is due to be released from hospital today.

"We'll have to wait until he comes home to figure out what we're going to do."

One of her first projects, Mrs. Warren said, will be to buy a car for her oldest daughter.

Mrs. Botto had this reaction to her win: "I'm surprised, very much surprised. Quite happy."

Her husand works for a hardware store, and is due to retire in a year. They have 11 grandchildren.

The winners included Salange Laurin, a 49-year-old spinster who has worked in the laundry room of the Chataeu Laurier hotel in Ottawa for 28 years. She said she had no special plans for the money.

Other Ontario winners named by an unofficial source in Montreal, were: Mary Sullivan, Woodstock, Ont., Paul Johns, Toronto, and Mrs. Wilfred Rousselle, R.R. II, Ont.

Ticket holders who also won $52,000 were: Mike Cughman, Hamilton; West Tait, Regina, and Iris Torfason, Thunder Bay, Ont.

Those with tickets worth $26,000 on third-place Brookway were: J. B. McDowell, Kenora; Mrs. J. Schoales, Prescott, Ont.; D. H. Curtis, Calgary; Joe Popoff, Saskatoon; M. Campbell, Winnipeg; and Ron Gaudet, Lakewood.

Fire Bombs Hurled At Montreal Mail

Three Buildings Attacked

MONTREAL (CP) — Three Molotov cocktails were hurled into postal substations Tuesday in violence apparently connected with a labor dispute simmering since Feb. 3.

There were no injuries.

Four bags of fourth-class mail were burned when one of the gasoline-filled bottles was tossed into a suburban Pointe Claire substation at about 8 p.m. while 30 employees were at work.

Two other Montreal substations were struck by the Molotov cocktails at about midnight.

Police were holding a suspect.

The incidents came in the midst of a dispute between mail truck drivers and the post office which has slowed mail delivery in the Montreal area for more than six weeks. Mail delivery Tuesday continued at least one day behind schedule as the drivers continued delaying tactics.

The drivers are protesting the expected loss of their jobs when the contract held by their employer, G. Lapalme Inc., expires March 31. The contract is to be split between five companies.

SAYS ANTI-UNION

The Confederation of National Trade Unions, with which the drivers' union is affiliated, has charged that splitting the contract is an attempt to break the union. It also argues that drivers, even if they sign on with the new trucking companies, will lose seniority.

H. Carl Goldenberg, a Montreal lawyer with long experience in labor disputes, was appointed last week by Prime Minister Trudeau to mediate the postal dispute.

Meanwhile, the Letter Carriers' Union of Canada announced today that it is asking members to stay home next Monday, Easter Monday, unless the post office changes its present position on work scheduling.

The union said its representatives have been meeting with post office authorities for more than 10 days without reaching agreement for the Easter Monday work program. The day is one of the statutory holidays set out in the union's last contract.

MLAs Hit 'High' Car Premiums

By BRUCE YEMEN

The Social Credit majority on the legislative insurance committee stepped cautiously on the toes of the automobile insurance industry Tuesday with a call for further inquiry into the cost of automobile insurance.

The New Democrat minority kicked the industry's shins with a call for a government-run automobile insurance scheme.

In a majority report tabled in the legislature the Socreds headed by committee chairman Herb Capozzi (SC—Vancouver Centre) recommended:

● A government automobile insurance board should be set up to investigate car insurance premiums in view of "possible reductions" that might be made;

● The industry should justify its price structure before the board and would require the board's approval for any further price changes;

● The board should study "the cost and ramifications of various proposals" in which the government's compulsory insurance might be taken out of the industry's hands.

The implied threat of "perform or else" in that recommendation was not spelled out but it is an apparent reference to a section of the current insurance act which would permit the government to take over the automobile insurance sales.

DISMAYED

The committee also said it was "dismayed" to learn how little the insurance industry is doing to exert pressure on automobile makers to build safer cars and to encourage defensive driving courses with reduced premiums for graduates of the training.

In another area, it recommended against a proposed ban on law suits for vehicle property damage in excess of $250. The proposal is already part of the government's insurance legislation passed last year but has never been proclaimed.

The ban was regarded initially as a means by which savings in car insurance could be made and drivers could be made more responsible because they would have to insure themselves over the $250 limit.

The report said these advantages might well be gained but expressed concern that ill-feeling among drivers could increase if access to courts were limited.

BENEFIT CUT

On another issue, the committee recommended that the government's compulsory automatic no-fault accident benefits coverage for injuries should not apply to passengers on public-passenger-vehicles.

But the death benefit coverage under the plan, passed last year by the legislature and currently in effect, should continue to apply.

The recommendation follows concern expressed by bus companies that spurious passenger injury claims could be a major problem under the plan which makes automatic payments of 50 a week for housewives and higher for employed persons.

The report of the committee was issued after six weeks of hearings. Included among the Socred members were Education Minister Donald Brothers and Minister Without Portfolio Grace McCarthy. NDP members were Alex Macdonald (NDP — Vancouver East), Bill Hartley (NDP—Yale-Lillooet) and Dennis Cocke (NDP—New Westminster).

The sole Liberal member, Garde Gardom (Vancouver—Point Grey), issued his own report opposing a government-run scheme.

BANK OF AMERICA CUTS INTEREST RATE

Times News Services

NEW YORK — The Bank of America, world's largest commercial bank, today reduced its prime interest rate to 8 per cent from 8½ per cent, following the lead of Irving Trust Co. and triggering a major stock market gain on the United States exchanges.

The Dow Jones index on Wall Street reacted wildly, soaring almost 17 points to 790.59 by 2:30 p.m. See also Page 6.

Irving Trust, twelfth largest U.S. commercial bank announced its reduction this morning. The prime rate is that which banks charge their largest, most credit-worthy business clients. Most other business rates are scaled upward from the prime rate.

The prime lending rate for Canadian chartered banks has been 8½ per cent since last summer.

Bombers Face Death Penalty

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Nixon asked Congress today to increase penalties — even to the death penalty—and to extend federal jurisdiction to deal with the rash of bombings by "potential murderers."

The president proposed extending and strengthening laws involving the transportation and use of explosives in the wake of what he called an alarming increase in criminal bombings and threats in recent months.

Schools and public buildings have had to be evacuated, property has been destroyed and lives lost, Nixon said.

"Clearly many of these bombings have been the work of political fanatics, many of them young criminals posturing as romantic revolutionaries. They must be dealt with as the potential murderers they are."

HEADS FOR CONGRESS

Nixon issued the statement in connection with his request for strengthened laws and the justice department was to send the legislation to Capital Hill today.

Present law under certain circumstances make it a federal crime to transport explosives across state lines.

Nixon proposed:

● Making it a federal crime to use explosives to damage or destroy any building, vehicles or property owned by the federal government or involving any business engaged in interstate commerce or any federal property or property of private businesses engaged in interstate commerce.

● Possession, without written authorization, for any explosive in a federal building or one leased to the federal government would be a federal crime.

● Incendiary devices would be included in the category of "explosives" to bring such devices under anti-bombing provisions of the law.

● The individual engaged in transport or use of explosives in violation of these provisions would be subject to the death penalty if a fatality occurs.

Airlines Grounded; Mail Strike Fades

Times News Services

Air traffic controllers crippled airline service around the United States today with a stay-at-home "sick and tired" slowdown and the federal government decided to go to court to force them back to work.

With airline service severely curtailed as the heavy-traffic Easter weekend was about to begin, it was learned that transportation secretary John A. Volpe — the controllers' boss — directed that a court injunction be filed to halt what he regards as an illegal strike.

It was the second time in a week that federal employees defied warnings against a strike and took to the streets. Most postal workers were back but failed to respond directly to a court order to do so.

Encouraged by the fast-crumbling mail strike, Postmaster-General Winton Blount called postal union leaders in today to start negotiating a pay raise.

Blount said the 22,000 troops helping sort mail in New York City will remain on the job for the time being.

10 of 48 Drug Suspects Appear in Court Here

Ten persons appeared in Victoria court this morning charged with trafficking in various illicit drugs, including heroin. It was the result of a four-month undercover operation by RCMP.

The ten represent the first of a total of 48 warrants issued on the Island Tuesday, all involving trafficking in either heoin, hashish, marijuana, LSD or mescaline. In the Victoria area, 26 warrants for adults have been issued and four for juveniles.

Sub-Inspector H. W. Hall, acting officer in charge of the Victoria RCMP subdivision, said Tuesday afternoon the roundup was the result of two young members of the force working in an undercover capacity for the past four months.

Thirty-two persons were in custody this morning leaving 16 warrants outstanding.

He added that it was the first time heroin trafficking had been uncovered on the island and agents indicated the use of the drug is on the increase.

The names and addresses are as stated in police records.

John M. Caird, about 40, of 23 Pandora, appeared charged with trafficking in heroin Feb. 10 and was remanded to April 1 for election. Bail was set at $7,500, the highest figure of the ten because of the nature of the offence, Judge William Ostler said.

Two more warrants for heroin trafficking are to appear in Nanaimo.

John Spink, 23, of 17 Boyd, was charged with trafficking in marijuana Feb. 4 and was remanded to March 31 for election. Bail was set at $1,500.

Walter E. Hamilton, 26, of 1250 Bay, was charged with trafficking in marijuana and was remanded to March 31 for election. Bail was set at $2,500.

More Inspectors Promised Up-Island

Health Minister Ralph Loffmark promised action today to meet a shortage of health inspectors in the Central Vancouver Island Union Board of Health.

"We will tackle the problem forthwith to find ways and means to get you health inspectors," he told a health board delegation headed by Port Alberni Ald. George KcKnight.

"We'll work on one inspector and maybe two."

The health board currently has four inspectors for a population of 103,500 compared with, for example, five inspectors in South Okanagan with a population of 72,399. The board wants another two inspectors.

Loffmark said a government health bill was "pulled" Tuesday night because of "a most unseemly attack by the Liberals."

The bill, he said, was designed to give the health minister power to redraw health board boundaries so isolated areas could be included and to levy charges for inspection of potential or actual industrial polluters and land subdividers.

There was no thought of charging a doctor or patient for a diptheria swab and the general area of preventive medicine.

Cowichan-Malahat MLA Robert Strachan said that "unfortunately" the bill didn't say that and left it wide open.

"That's right," noted Loffmark.

He gave no indication that a re-drawn bill will be submitted to the legislature before the current session ends.

"The only thing I'm sure of is we go ahead with the regionalization of health services in Victoria," he said.

(Under this, the Greater Victoria Metropolitan Board of Health would disappear and become a function of the Capital Regional District board).

Loffmark also said it is unfair for public money to be spent on inspection and monitoring of potential or actual industrial pollution and land subdivision. These charges should be against property.

The delegation agreed with him on that.

B.C. BRIEFS

Union Office Damaged By Explosion

FRASER LAKE (CP) — An explosion Tuesday heavily damaged a cafe and the office of the local steelworkers' union in a shopping centre here, 420 miles north of Vancouver.

Police said they believe explosives were planted in the cafe. There was no fire after the blast and no injuries were reported.

Last summer, a drugstore here was damaged by a similar explosion.

Town Expands

QUESNEL (CP) — A 434-acre area, the Two Mile Flat industrial area, has been incorporated into the town of Quesnel, enlarging the town to more than 3,100 acres. The new area includes several lumber mills, houses and small businesses.

Strike Settled

KITIMAT (UPI) — Operations at the Eurocan Pulp and Paper plant here resumed Tuesday following settlement of an eight-month strike by 40 loggers.

A spokesman for the International Woodworkers of America (IWA) said the loggers had accepted an offer of $25 a month house allowance, three camphouse starting bonuses of $100 each and 10-cent an hour wage increase for tradesmen.

The strike began in September last year after the union alleged the company was misusing contractors on the site.

Kobierski was charged with trafficking in hashish and bail was set at $1,500 while Dasso was charged with trafficking in marijuana. Bail at $1,000.

Western Highwaymen

Delegates from the highways departments of the four western provinces were welcomed to Victoria Tuesday by Highways Minister Wesley Black and Mayor Courtney Haddock.

More than 160 delegates and their wives are attending the 23rd annual group conference of the Western Association of Canadian Highway Officials, which started Tuesday at the Empress Hotel.

At the conference they will discuss highways administration, construction, equipment, safety and bridge erection.

Black assured them that they would find nothing wrong with British Columbia's hospitality.

"As a matter of fact," he said, "you stubble-jumpers from the prairies might even learn something from the B.C. highways department."

SOLUTION ASKED

Haddock expressed the hope that they might come up with the solution to increased congestion in the downtown area without hurting retail business.

Guest speaker at the conference's opening was Ian S. Ross, of consulting engineering firm of Swan and Wooster which planned the Roberts Bank superport.

He spoke of a tremendous need for the development of harbor and port facilities in Canada because of the general increase in shipping and in particular the use of "supertankers" and other vessels in excess of 200,000 tons.

Ross described development of the Roberts Bank and said it is vital if Canada is to compete with the U.S., Australia and Japan for expanding markets in the Pacific.

Purchasing Managers

Purchasing managers from throughout the Pacific northwestern region will attend their 30th annual conference and products show in the Empress Hotel April 10 and 11.

Among highlights of the program will be a panel discussion on industry and Canada's white paper tax proposals, with a paper by accountant Roy E. Burrell, of Vancouver, and a speech on the Impact of Labor Negotiations, by M. A. Pierotti, of Burrard Dry Dock Ltd., Vancouver.

General conference chairman will be Frank Dunn, purchasing manager for Andrew Sheret Ltd., of Victoria.

Between 350 and 400 agents are expected, representing the B.C. branch of Purchasing Management Association of Canada, the National Association of Purchasing Managers, and Pacific Northwest Public Purchasing Association.

Other speakers will include John Dickinson, president of PMAC and Harold Bloom, president of NAPM: W. A. Small, managing director of PMAC, and panelists, A. M. Twigg, West Vancouver; H. W. Eister, Tacoma; P. Elsing, Eastern Washington State College, and Wayne Rodman, Portland.

Realtor Fined

KAMLOOPS (CP) — Gordon Van, of Chase, has been fined $2,500 after pleading guilty to five charges of failing to report a total of $105,021.16 in income between 1962 and 1965.

In default of the fine, the realtor was sentenced to three months on each charge, to be served concurrently.

. . . WHITE WHALE

the Royal Jubilee Hospital for testing. The findings would be ready almost as soon as the fish boat's invaluable cargo had arrived at her destination.

The two veterinarians worked over her, administering antibotics and examining her carefully.

A bucket-brigade kept the whale doused during the two-hour run. Her whimperings eased as the anti-stress injections took effect.

From the time she came aboard, every breath the whale took was carefully recorded.

Seland's animal trainer Graeme Ellis talked to her. She calmed again. He would stand by her every minute of her first night at Sealand.

At 6:30 p.m. May S nudged in alongside Sealand where a crowd of onlookers were gathered to witness the final act.

Then it was that Wright took over command.

His biggest fear was that the white whale would head for the net in the centre of the pen that separated Haida from the newcomers.

"During her time at Pedder Bay the white whale has shown no fear of nets. Would she become entangled in this one and harm herself?

The sling inched over the centre of the pool. Three divers stood at the ready by its side, two men atop the structure. Two other divers were on the alert, one at each side of the pool.

FREED FROM NET

The white whale dove—she swam—and seconds later headed, rostrom (head) first for the dividing net. Divers freed her from it.

Twice more she headed for the net before she settled down to play with the other member of her pod.

As Hoey said, "Just like a brother and sister who have been parted for a while."

Then the centre net was taken away and Haida was able to join in the fun.

Haida may still have to ask the experts for some assistance with his new playmate.

While the white whale was aboard May S a tape measure recorded her length as 12 feet 8 inches.

By taking the square root of her length, multiplying it by her girth and dividing it by 1276, Dr. Hoey was able to estimate her weight as 1,521 pounds.

. . . CARS

In a minority report issued outside the legislature by the three New Democrat committee members, the possibility of significant savings in insurance premiums without a publicly operated insurance plan was ruled out.

AGREED ONCE

The New Democrats agreed on one point with the Socreds who also said there could be no "significant" savings until safer cars and safer drivers are created.

But the Socreds listed four ways in which some savings might be made:

- ● Use of investment income earned by premiums paid in advance to benefit policy-holders instead of shareholders, for a total premium reduction of four or five per cent;
- ● Lowering the estimated disability period during which automatic injury payments must be made could cut about 10 per cent from the cost of the accident benefits coverage, which was estimated at $22 by the insurance industry.
- ● Decrease the portion of the insurance premium spent on administrative expenses from 33 cents to 31 cents for car insurance generally. It could be further decreased to about 25 cents for the compulsory $50,000 liability policy which the government currently requires.
- ● Nab the 5 to 10 per cent of drivers currently uncovered by the compulsory policy by requiring proof of insurance before purchasing licence plates. This would cut the cost of the compulsory package by a further 5 to 10 per cent.

NO TOTAL

The committee's report didn't total the "possible" savings into one figure.

It also noted that while there appears to be a "certain conformity" in automobile insurance rates there is "a variance as a result of competition."

The industry has been criticized by New Democrats who charge price-fixing, particularly in the $22 price charged by many companies for the accident benefits coverage.

In their minority report, the three New Democrats said the present system of private automobile insurance is "wasteful, costly and inefficient."

"The primary responsibility of this committee was to determine whether automobile insurance premiums are commensurate with the risks being assumed. Our answer to that question is an unequivocal 'No'," the New Democrats said.

"The committee has dealt with the small change of premium reductions, but we believe that significant savings to the people of the province can't be achieved without a public plan of automobile accident compensation."

GARDOM

In his report, Gardom said the government could serve better in a "directional regulatory capacity as opposed to total participation" in car insurance.

The committee was initially expected to study whether the law suit limitation should go into effect but an outcry over the $22 cost of the accident benefits scheme led to the increased scope, covering cost of insurance.

The automobile insurance board recommended by the committee was provided for in the legislation passed last year but, like the law suit limitation, was not proclaimed when compulsory insurance began Jan. 1, this year. The board would have the power to enter the car insurance business if the government so desired.

Industry spokesmen generally opposed the law suit limitation as a theoretically good idea which might indeed encourage drivers to be more careful but which could leave unfortunate drivers who get rammed with no hope of recovering damages unless they carry expensive collision coverage.

Schools Open to Oldsters To Avoid Taxpayer Revolt

The Greater Victoria School Board could be faced with its first referendum defeats if it doesn't find a way to reach elderly ratepayers, the board's new community information officer told a Lions Club meeting Tuesday.

Bill Stavdal said recent defeats of referendums in Nanaimo, West Vancouver and North Peace River occurred because boards were "out of touch" with ratepayers.

Stavdal said the same thing could happen in a large district like Greater Victoria which has a school population of 32,000.

One of the big problems faced by school boards in the Capital Region, he said, is that a growing number of ratepayers are in the retired category and come from some other parts of the country.

In Victoria the incidence of retired people is twice the national rate.

As a group they tend to oppose school construction referendums because they have nothing to gain by approving them.

At the same time, for parents with young families — those with the most at stake in education decisions — it's becoming increasingly difficult to raise money to buy their own home.

So most of them rent the place they live in. In effect, they're disenfranchised because they don't qualify as voters on education money bylaws.

Part of the solution, Stavdal said, is to involve the elderly by offering evening courses and activities that reflect their interests.

EVALUATION

Encouraging community use of school facilities is another way, he said, and the board's decision two years ago to slash rental rates on classrooms and gyms has resulted in some schools operating at capacity during evenings now.

Some Lions Club members wanted to know what is being done about a system of teacher performance evaluation.

Teachers currently are rated by the department of education on a system that combines years of experience with university education.

As one questioner said, members of other professions are evaluated on the basis of the number of clients they have. Couldn't it be the same in the schools?

Another Lion said some teachers still say the best thing about their job is the months of July and August.

Stavdal replied leadership of the B.C. Teachers' Federation and the Greater Victoria Teachers' Association would probably agree members should be evaluated according to teaching ability — something that isn't necessarily measured by years of experience or university degrees.

He said rank-and-file — "the ones who don't come out to the meetings" — would oppose a move to evaluation by performance.

The issue is due to come up for discussion at next week's annual BCTF meeting in Vancouver.

Land Limit May Apply To Cordova

Saanich municipal planning committee decided Tuesday night to let full council decide whether a recommendation that the five-acre subdivision minimum be extended into Cordova Bay.

Also passed on to council is a request from M. C. Grant, 4866 Lochside, to subdivide a 4.06-acre property.

During discussion, committee chairman Ald. Alan Newberry said the medical health officer is prepared to say Cordova Bay is a potential pollution hazard.

There already are pollution problems, said Newberry, but he couldn't understand why these are not checked out by the medical health people.

Ald. William Campbell said the five-acre minimum should not apply in Cordova Bay. It was one of the few non-sewered areas where land percolates for septic tanks.

He preferred this to sewering and disposal at sea, but Ald. Edith Gunning pointed out council has made no decision on a Cordova Bay sewage outfall and she had strong reservations.

Ald. Leslie Passmore said it is not reasonable to open up land outside the to-be-sewered area which will provide enough land for 20 years building.

Autorama 70 Has Lots of Va-roommm!

Organizers of the 13th annual Victoria Autorama readily admit the show isn't as big as other shows in the Pacific Northwest.

But what Autorama 70 lacks in size is made up in quality of displays and entertainment, say members of the sponsoring Victoria Quartermilers Club.

It opens at the Esquimalt Sports Centre at 6 p.m. Thursday, then runs from 10 a.m. to 11 p.m. Friday and Saturday.

Custom cars from B.C., Alberta, Washington, Oregon and California will be displayed.

1970 MODELS

Five local dealers will exhibit their 1970 wares in a separate display in the nearby curling rink.

Featured out-of-town dragsters are two machines from Los Angeles, Roland Leong's "Hawaiian" Dodge Charger, winner of the 1970 Winter Nationals, and Chuck Poole's "Chuckwagon."

Also from Los Angeles will be July Playmate of the Month Nancy McNeil, who will present awards to winning exhibits and draw the winning ticket in a car raffle Saturday night.

Singer Eleanor Collins and a five-piece band will perform nightly at 8 and 10 p.m.

MANHATTAN TO SAIL UNDER $6.5M BOND

OTTAWA (CP) — Humble Oil Ltd. has been asked to post a $6,500,000 bond in case its super-tanker Manhattan causes any pollution in its second voyage into Arctic waters, the commons was told Tuesday.

Gerard Loiselle, parliamentary secretary to Transport Minister Don Jamieson, said the oil company has agreed to obey 24 regulations the federal government has imposed on the Manhattan.

The Weather and You

By CARL RIBLET JR.

If you live in an area where floods often appear, you are one of those who may be affected more than usual by weather cycles, because floods do seem to appear in cycles. That's why scientists would like to know more about ancient weather.

Records were not kept back in the early days of this civilization, or at least nobody has been able to find weather records of 300 years ago. So the scientists have to look at the trees to attempt to learn whether there is danger this year or next year or 10 years from now of a "once-in-a-hundred-years" flood.

The long-ago periods of good and bad weather can be traced in the tree rings. The scientists study the tree rings and then tie in their findings to modern weather history over the past 100 years. Thus they are able with some degree of accuracy to learn what years are likely to be flood years.

Radar Bases Again Attacked

From Reuters-AP

Israeli jet aircraft attacked Egyptian radar stations and artillery and anti-aircraft batteries in the Suez canal area twice today, shooting down four Egyptian MiG-21s which tried to intercept them, the Israeli command announced.

The four Egyptian interceptors were shot down in a series of dogfights when they tangled with the Israeli raiders which had attacked targets in the central and south sectors of the canal, a spokesman said.

Compulsion May Be Necessary

TORONTO (CP) — Senator Maurice Lamontagne says he is afraid "compulsion will have to be used" in some measure to help curb Canada's inflation.

The Liberal senator said "it would be wonderful if voluntary controls could work effectively."

"Unfortunately, I do not think that they will, at least in the long run. How could we expect self-restraint to work in a situation of collective irresponsibility?

"I am afraid compulsion will have to be used in some form and in some areas to curb the power of bigness in business and in labor unions."

Speaking to the annual shareholders meeting of Canadian Corporate Management Co. Ltd., Senator Lamontagne said Canada should "concentrate on the direct approach to combat structural inflation."

"In order to achieve this goal under present circumstances, we should have easier and cheaper money, abandon the idea of consumer credit restrictions and eliminate the surplus contemplated in the recent budget, through selective tax cuts."

MARKET SUMMARIES

New York Zips Ahead

Sparked by a reduction in prime interest rates by several United States financial institutions prices on North American stock markets scored major advances in heavey trading today.

By noon at New York the Dow Jones industrial index had soared 20.33 points to 794.09.

A reduction by Irving Trust Co. of New York in its lending rate to eight per cent from 8½ touched off a round of similiar cuts by others including the Bank of America.

Markets at Toronto, Montreal and Vancouver responded to the spectacular rise on Wall Street.

AT TORONTO, volum by 2 was 2,458,000 shares compared with 1,586,000 at the same time Tuesday.

Advances outnumbered gains 349 to 138 with 236 issues unchanged.

Seaway rose to 14¾ on 307,700 shares. The stock gained 2⅛ to 9⅞ on 285,262 shares Tuesday M. A. Levy said Wednesday that "the Levy family interests had acquired a controlling position" in Seaway. Last week, Argus Inc. of South Carolina said it plannd to offer $7.59 cash a share for 27 per cent of Seaway's 1,600,000 outstanding shares.

AT NEW YORK the advance ranged through major groups with motors, drugs, and savings and loans particularly strong.

Prices among the most-active issues included Fairchild Camera, up 2⅜ to 75⅞; Westinghouse Electric, up 1¾ to 67; RCA, up ¾ to 31⅛; Litton Industries, off ½ to 24⅞; National Steel, up ¾ to 40¾; and Telex, up ½ to126½.

AT MONTREAL the stock market followed Wall Street upward in heavy trading today.

Canadian International Power gained 2 to 33, Canadian Pacific Railway 1¼ to 66½, Velcro Industries 1 to 27 and Industrial Acceptance ⅜ to 14⅝.

In senior mines and oils, Denison was up 1¼ to 38½, Falconbridge 1 to 177½ and Hudson Bay Mining and Smelting ¾ to 85, all in extremely light tradingn. Rio Algom advanced ⅜ to 20.

Commodore Business Machines, on the Canadian Stock Exchange, moved ahead ¾ to 6⅞ and Seaway Multi Corp. 1¾ to 12½.

AT LONDON, the New York stock rally and some encouraging company news sent stock prices upward here today.

EMI, Beechams and Rank had gains of up to 3s, while smaller rises were seen in ICI, Bats and Unilever.

Dollar stocks were generally firm.

In Canadians, Dome, Gulf, Canadian Husky, Hiram Walkerf, Canadian Pacific, Consolidated Bathurst and Power Corp. advanced. Syracuse and Hudson's Bay Oil and Gas moved lower against the trend. Banks were quiet.

AT VANCOUVER, prices were high and trading moderate today on the stock exchange. Estimated volume to 11:30 a.m. was 1,428,720 shares.

Leading industrial was Driver Development, down .05 at .90, on a turnover of 11,300 shares. Northwest Life Financial slipped .05 to $4.50 and Captain International rose .25 to $5.25.

United Bata Resources, off .05 at $2.85, led the oils on a volume of 27,600. Canarctic rose .06 to .96 while Plains Petroleum slipped .02 to .40.

Leading mine on a trade of 105,000 shares was Kopan Development, up .01½ at .21. Sasino Silver climbed .70 to $3.35 and Brenmac gained .05 to .87.

Turner Valley Oil Seeks Acquisitions

CALGARY (CP) — Turner Valley Oil Co. Ltd. of Calgary, one of Alberta's pioneer oil firms, announced that it will ask shareholders to approve acquisition of two groups of companies.

Turner Valley, established in 1914 and one of the first firms listed on the Calgary Stock Exchange, seeks to resume activity in oil and gas exploration after several years of partial dormancy, secretary-treasurer A. P. Haines said in an interview.

The company proposed purchase of Gaffney Cline Associates of London, England and the Sterling Group, oil and gas property managers of Calgary and Billings, Mont.

Gaffney Cline are exploration and development consultants and data processors operating in London, Trinidad and Tobago, Sinapore and Indonesia.

Turner Valley has informed the Calgary Stock Exchange it plans an extraordinary shareholders meeting to seek approval to increase the capitalization of the company from 1,000,000 to 1,500,000 common shares and to 1,500,000 from 500,000 class A non-voting shares.

On approval of the increased capitalization, shareholders will be asked to approve an issue of rights enabling shareholders to buy one class A voting share for each three common shares held at a price to be determined.

Turner Valley proposes to offer the vendors of Gaffney Cline and the Sterling group 915,000 unissued common shares at 10 cents a share.

$8 Million Loan To Jamaica Phone

OTTAWA (CP) — An $8,000,000 loan to the Jamaica Telephone Co. Ltd. in Kingston has been announced by the federal Export Development Corp.

The loan, the corporation's first to a buyer in Jamaica, covers the cost of purchasing switching equipment and related services from Canada. Northern Electric Co. Ltd. of Montreal will supply the equipment and services, including training of personnel. Repayment will be made over 10 years after two years' grace.

Canadian Industrial

Canadian Industrial Gas and Oil Ltd. had net earnings of $8,238,000 or 41 cents a share in 1969 compared with $8,196,000 or 41 cents a share in 1968.

Revenue was $33,828,000 compared with $29,616,000 in 1968.

Crude oil and gas liquids production averaged 8,200 barrels a day, down 98 barrels due primarily to the natural decline in crude oil production from the Calgary-based company's Saskatchewan properties and a reduced allowable in the Joarcam field of Alberta.

Natural gas production increased eight per cent to an average of 88,300,000,000 cubic feet a day, while sulphur production from gas processing plants increased to 10,810 from 10,390 long tons.

TODAY'S GRAIN PRICES

WINNIPEG (CP) — Trading was generally light in all commodities with some aggressive buying in rapeseed and flax at the close of the Winnipeg Grain Exchange today.

Rapeseed and flax saw some exporter buying but the volume was down.

There was moderate buying in oats and barley for eastern feeders and rye drew some miller and shipper buying.

Confirmation was received overnight of the sale of 1,800,000 bushels of No. 3 Northern to Bulgaria. Export loadings of Canadian wheat included 896,000 bushels to China and 28,000 to Peru.

Lakehead prices for Class Two and IGA wheat were unchanged.

CHICAGO (AP) — Grain futures closed on an irregular tone on the Board of Trade today after trading in a very narrow price range.

Soybeans, which had lost more than a cent in early dealings, rallied late in the session. Soybean oil bulled ahead some 40 points. Meal futures fell back around $1.25. Trade in the major pits was light, in a typical pre-holiday session.

There was little outside incentive for any wide movement of grain futures prices. The weather influenced some early buying of wheat. Rye futures were irregular in slow trade. Commercial buying and short covering was a factor in a one-cent advance in oats.

Housing Flourish Pushes Onward

New construction starts in Greater Victoria last month rose 54.3 per cent over February 1969, continuing the gains registered in January when the capital city led the province.

Central Mortgage and Housing Corp. statistics show 145 unit starts, up 51 from February last year, and bringing the total this year to 670 units, or 132.6 per cent higher than the 288 starts in the first two months of 1969.

New dwelling construction for the rest of the province generally was off, in Vancouver by 38 per cent, which was in contrast to the 1969 situation registering a 123.2 per cent gain.

COMPLETIONS

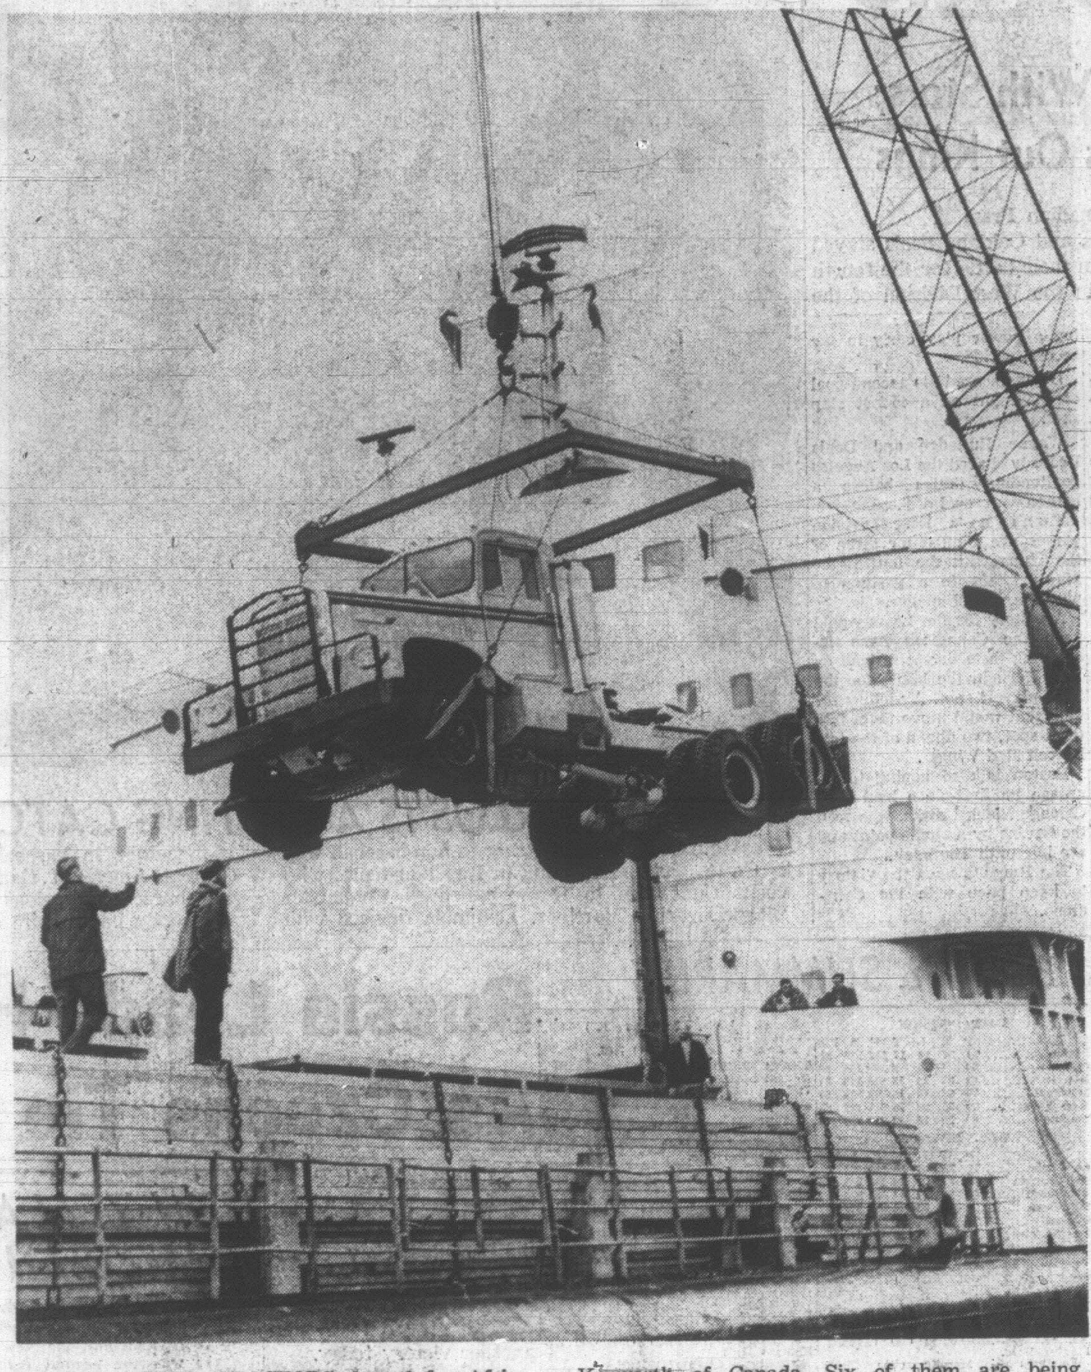
The provincial decline was 35.2 per cent, from 1,814 units a year ago to 1,177 units last month, CMHC reported.

Largely due to Victoria, the January totals showed a provincial gain in housing starts.

Victoria completions in February were up 59.3 per cent to 559 units, reflecting record starts in the latter part of last year. Current inventory of new units under construction is 2,329 for a 111.2 per cent gain.

Both Vancouver and Victoria areas have larger inventories of unoccupied dwellings, for Victoria the largest figure since December, 1966.

There were a total 502 units unoccupied here in February, compared with 435 a year ago, of which 340 were rental units, an increase of 60.



GIANT TRUCK TRACTORS bound for Africa were hoisted aboard freighter Floridaland at Ogden Point this morning. Heavy haul units are worth $30,000 each and were built in Burnaby by Kenworth of Canada. Six of them are being delivered to Lusaka via Durban. Tractor swinging from cables here weighs almost nine tons. (Irving Strickland Photo)

NDP Pair Walks Out On Public Accounts Meet

Two New Democrats walked out of a public accounts committee meeting today charging an "incredible" breach of the rules by chairman George Mussallem (SC—Dewdney).

Opposition Leader Dave Barrett and Gordon Dowding (NDP—Burnaby - Edmonds) said the meeting was begun in secret without a motion being made — a violation of parliamentary rules.

"What is involved here," said Barrett, "is the adoption of an attitude by this committee reflecting the government's attitude that they can do what they want with rules . . . and that the system of scrutiny of how the public's money is being spent is being subverted."

Dowding said Mussallem admitted he had broken the rules and that he asked for the committee to approve his ruling anyway.

Mussallem said later that he had asked to be "excused" for any error he might have made and said a motion to go in camera was subsequently made.

The meeting ended at 10:20 without considering a request from Liberal Leader Pat McGeer that Liquor Control Board accounts be subjected to closer scrutiny by the committee.

Mussallem said the only reason that the matter wasn't dealt with was that McGeer failed to show.

He denied he had decided in advance to rule McGeer's motion out of order and said McGeer could have asked that the meeting be open for his request if he had been there.

The committee apparently went on to decide that it had found the public accounts of the government "in order".

City Hall Miffed As Report Urges Service Fee Cut

Victoria city officials remained unimpressed this morning with a $3,000 report recommending the city slash service charges to other municipalities.

Ald. Leslie Passmore, Saanich, was particularly unimpressed with an error in addition on Page 4 of the five-page statement prepared for the Greater Victoria Intermunicipal Committee by Thorne, Gunn, Helliwell and Christensen, chartered accountants.

Listed under the "library" sub-title the figures are recorded: assessed value of land $7,756 and debt charges $18,912 for a total of $26,768.

"It doesn't add up," noted Passmore.

The total should be $26,668.

But if the $100 error in addition perturbed Passmore, the proposed reduction of service charges by 50 per cent worried city officials more.

City treasurer James Bramley said he was still a little lost as to what the report was trying to say.

He said he would have preferred the report, ordered last year after other municipalities indicated disenchantment with Victoria's service charges, to be more specific.

And he told the committee that having paid $3,000 for the report "you should find out from the firm that prepared it what other suggestions they might have."

The firm had no specific suggestions as to how service charges could be reduced. It merely states that most of them could be cut by 50 per cent.

The city accounting staff handles bookkeeping, payroll, purchasing and billing services for all municipalities involved in intermunicipal cost-sharing formulas.

'Fair Recovery' Listed

The accounting firm lists what it terms "a fair recovery of Victoria's average cost of providing administrative services," which would cut the service charge bill from $76,106 to $32,000.

Listing the various areas of saving, the firm states that charges for services to the library should be $14,600 as compared with the $33,688 charged last year.

The prosecutor's office, $2,600 as compared with $7,119 in 1969, the provincial court $5,500 as against the latest annual charge of $11,725.

Jail charges last year totalled $5,878 when $2,000 would have been a closer to the mark, the report states.

But while listing what it feels would be fair charges the report gives no indication as to where the saving could be made.

William Hooson, assistant to the city manager, said he was concerned that while the report arbitrarily slashes costs by 50 per cent "it gives no basis for the reduction."

It is only in recent years that service charges for the various agencies overlapping municipal boundaries have been assessed on a district basis.

For more than 20 years prior to that Victoria picked up the entire cost of operation for the library.

The Intermunicipal committee agreed that more information was required before it could make a decision.

It tabled the report pending further information from the authors.

Engineers Protest High Wire

The Vancouver Island branch of the Engineering Institute of Canada urged today that B.C. Hydro reconsider its planned high-voltage overhead transmission line in suburban Victoria.

Branch chairman P. W. E. Campbell said the 75-foot-high steel poles along four miles of Interurban Road and Burnside Road in Saanich and the city "will create an accumulation of standards and conductors much higher than surrounding homes and other poles.

"The additional clutter caused will dominate the view for many blocks each side of the alignment."

'BEAUTY SPOT'

"With the awakened public demand for high-quality environment it seems peculiar that, today, an overhead transmission line had been chosen to cross a potential beauty spot and a residential area," he said.

"If, however, the costs of burying the whole line are truly prohibitive, then placing underground that part which passes through the residential section would at least cut down the disruption of local values, in every sense."

Meanwhile, 450 signatures have been gathered on petitions opposing the 132,000-volt overhead line.

LIBRARY BOARD WON'T MEET LABOR

'We Will Not Be Dictated To'

The Greater Victoria Library Board Tuesday flatly rejected a request from the Victoria Labor Council for a meeting to discuss proposed library changes.

It also refused a similar request from the Friends of the Greater Victoria Library Society.

"I have said publicly that we will not be dictated to by associations," said board chairman Arthur Cuthbert, and Esquimalt alderman. He did not feel it was any business of the labor council to discuss changes proposed in a management consultants' study of library operations.

APPALLED

The board decided to proceed quickly with the changes.

Labor council president Jack Groves said he was appalled at the stand taken by the board and would seek meetings with Mayor Courtney Haddock to discuss the situation.

"We are going to complain bitterly about this," he said. "And if we get no response we may hold public meetings."

Other citizens in letters to the board protested the proposed changes, especially with regard to children's books being merged with the general circulation.

One letter was signed by 56 students from S. J. Willis Junior Secondary and another by 35 persons unhappy about the changes.

OFFENDED

Some board members were offended because people challenged their decisions to make the changes.

"What we need is a new building — that is the answer," said one board member. "We can't do anything about that. It's up to council."

Ald. Alan Newberry refused to concede that the changes, such as placing young people's books with adults, would result in a lessened service.

Brian Tobin said citizens had a perfect right to express their views and to criticize the proposed library changes.

"It shows they are interested," he said. "I would say there would be something the matter if there was no interest shown in the proposed changes."

FORUM TONIGHT

A Victoria Bar Association panel of four lawyers will answer questions from the stage of the McPherson Playhouse starting at 8:30 tonight.

Written questions from the audience will be answered by lawyers T. P. O'Grady, Alan Patterson, Edward Pollard and Donald Farquar.

Lloyd McKenzie, QC, will be moderator.

This fifth annual legal forum is sponsored by the Times and CJVI.

Reserve tickets have all been taken, but seats not taken are available to the general public.

Chamber Turned Down In Tourist Fund Bid

The Greater Victoria Intermunicipal Committee Tuesday recommended a $27,000 grant to the YW-YMCA in lieu of taxes.

But it emphatically rejected a request from the Victoria Chamber of Commerce for "$2,500 for the promotion of the area."

Mayor Courtney Haddock was the lone defender of the C of C grant saying "we may be destroying a good thing here for a small amount."

In the past Haddock has urged that a full study be made of tourist grants to ascertain whether there is overlap in various promotion programs.

GALLERY SHORT

In total the committee agreed to recommend to individual councils the sharing of grants totalling $136,000 to 19 district organizations.

The $27,000 to the YMCA was the largest individual grant.

Victoria Art Gallery was granted $12,000 some $6,000 short of the $18,000 it claims it must raise if it is to stay in operation.

In 1969 the gallery showed a deficit of $8,700. In the past losses have been met from reserve funds but these have been depleted.

The first grant recommended was for $10,600 but Esquimalt Mayor Art Young suggested an increase to an even $12,000.

REJECT SIDE

On the reject side of the grant file were: the Victoria Horticultural Society; the Capital Region Safety Council; the Canadian Paraplegic Association; the John Howard Society; the Greater Victoria Counselling Centre; the Victoria Minor Hockey Association; the Navy League of Canada; the Martime Museum and the Big Brothers of B.C.

On the receiving end if individual councils agree with committee recommendations, will be: Goodwill Enterprises, $15,000; the VON, $15,474; Queen Alexandra Solarium, $8,553; Cool-Aid $6,500 for two projects; Victoria Symphony Society, $7,783; Bastion Theatre, $9,645; Victoria Boys' Club, $8,300; Boy Scouts, $725; Girl Guides, $453.

The Sara Spencer Foundation, $3,774; St. Vincent de Paul Society, $300; Canadian Red Cross, $2,500; Greater Victoria Community Action Group, $200; Greater Victoria Association for the Retarded, $1,800; G. R. Pearkes Clinic, $12,000 and St. John Ambulance, $3,000.

BURN-IN IGNORES CHIEF'S WARNING

Burning of Hydro bills on the lawn of the Legislative Buildings at 2 p.m. today appeared likely to go ahead despite a warning from Fire Chief Eric Simmons.

Elaine Olszewski, vice-president of the Victoria Low Income Group which planned to protest the April 1 hike in bus fares and Hydro rates, said Simmons phoned her to explain the law.

"But I told him we were going ahead with it anyway," Mrs. Olszewski said.

"I said if I found I was going to be put in jail I would have to take the consequences—it is this important that we get our point across."

The chief said he would not issue a fire permit to the demonstrators and said normally anyone who contravened the fire bylaw would be summonsed to appear in court.

A FEW WEEKS AGO, I told you about the plight of some of this area's cerebral palsy victims. A few are in the late teens. Others are young adults. All are confined to wheelchairs in their parents' homes.

These extreme cases are beyond clinical help. But their days could be made less lonely and monotonous than they are, and I'm glad to report that a committee of interested Victorians is working to make their lot easier.

What's contemplated is a day-care centre to which they can be transported. They will have the company of others who share their situation — an easement to them, and no less so to their parents.

One of the chief obstacles to the plan was lack of quarters suitable to their needs. An offer from the Boy's Club of Victoria through executive director Bob Boettger has solved that problem.

"As far as we're concerned," Boettger says, our community-supported building is available to them for a centre. There will be no problem in getting the wheelchairs in and out, and they'll have the use of our facilities until 3 p.m. each afternoon."

Committee chairman Mrs. Genevieve Ali of Greater Victoria Community Council tells me that a bus specially equipped to handle wheelchairs will be available.

That leaves one problem remaining — to find volunteers whose work would include reading aloud and playing records for young people who can't help themselves. If interested, call Mrs. Ali, days, at 386-8364.

A VICTORIAN IN GOOD standing ran into an all-too-familiar series of irritations the other day. He lost no time in running them through his typewriter.

"Here," he announces, "is a brief report on the frustrations of a Saanich resident who was foolish enough to heed the urgings of Victoria merchants to "Shop Downtown."

"He made the mistake of choosing a Wednesday afternoon, in blissful ignorance of the fact that shopping "Downtown" on Wednesdays has its limitations."

He had four stores on his shopping list. Three rebuffed his attempt to spend in them by signs indicating they were closed for the afternoon.

The fourth displayed no sign, "but the doors were locked, the implication apparently being, 'go away. You ought to know that we don't condescend to do business on Wednesday'."

The baulked spender from Saanich finishes up with a query that city centre merchants might do well to ponder:

"Why shop downtown when you can get better service elsewhere?"

WE HAVE AMONG US A rueful fellow whose wife decided several weeks ago that she had smoked her last cigarette. She swore off, and, much harder, made her good resolution stick.

Her husband admired her fortitude. Finally he decided that if she could make the break, so could he. Without fuss or fanfare, he smoked a final butt clear down to his finger nails, then set himself to sweat out the withdrawal. As an aid and a reminder in times of stress, he lettered this exhortation to himself on the palm of his left hand:

"JOAN DID IT!"

All went well for most of a week. When trying situations developed at work or in the home, he would cast a quick glance at his palm and find his will bolstered by that three-word message.

He was renewing the magic words one morning when his wife happened to look over his shoulder. He explained. She considered. Then she said, "If you were murdered or something, how would that 'Joan did it!' look to the police?"

Shaken, he scrubbed the words away. The next of life's little crises caught him with empty palm — and a cigarette machine all too handy!

IN REMINISCENT MOOD, The Mutual Life Assurance Company of Canada recalls some of its early policies in a hundredth anniversary review.

Those policies, the company notes, "were all beautifully handwritten by expert penmen.

"They contained restrictive clauses: permission was required from the company to travel beyond certain defined boundaries, and a permit was required for 'seafaring, river or lake navigation'."

Policy holders of 1870 were further warned that they would do well to steer clear of death by duelling, or at the hands of justice.

Let either occur, and the beneficiaries needn't expect a nickel.

Seals Stay Point Away In Playoff-Spot Battle

Play to Tie With Stars; Plante Shuts Out Kings

By The Canadian Press

Minnesota North Stars and Oakland Seals stayed on the treadmill Tuesday in their battle for the fourth and final playoff berth in the West Division of the National Hockey League.

The teams battled to a 2-2 tie that left the North Stars a single point ahead of the Seals with six games remaining for each club in the regular 76-game schedule.

In the only other game of the night, veteran goaltender Jacques Plante registered the 73rd shutout of his career and the fifth of the season as St. Louis Blues downed Los Angeles Kings 4-0.

The game meant little to either club. St. Louis leads the West Division with 80 points, 22 ahead of second-place Philadelphia Flyers and Los Angeles trails the division with 32 points, 19 less than Oakland Seals.

Tonight, regular action continues in both divisions with Toronto Maple Leafs playing the Canadiens at Montreal, Boston Bruins at New York against the Rangers, Philadelphia Flyers visiting Oakland, and the North Stars at Pittsburgh against the Penguins.

GOALIE CAUGHT OUT

Mike Laughton ruined the North Stars chances of increasing their points lead when he beat an out-of-position Cesare Maniago at 11:12 of the final period before the crowd of 14,871 at Minneapolis.

Maniago had come out of the net to stop Gary Jarrett and the shot bounced off the goal post and onto Laughton's stick.

The defeat was the sixth in a row for the Kings and dropped Los Angeles within one game of the NHL record of 51 losses in a season, which was established by Chicago Black Hawks during the 1953-54 season.

The Kings now have lost 50 games and have five remaining.

TWO TALLY TWICE

Gary Sabourin and Norm Dennis scored two goals each, with Plante also getting an assist on the first Dennis goal during a power play early in the second period.

Dennis scored his second goal of the night on a 45-foot slap shot.

Wayne Rutledge and Denis DeJordy shared the Los Angeles goaltending duties before a hometown crowd of 6,850.

Tonight's East Division games are a must for three of the clubs with the fourth—the Maple Leafs—in a position to play the role of spoiler.

A victory for the Leafs would keep the Canadiens from increasing their two-point lead on New York in the battle for the final playoff spot. A victory for Montreal would move them into third spot, two ahead of the idle Detroit Red Wings.

Boston is also hoping to increase its first-place lead over Chicago Black Hawks, who trail the Bruins by a single point and are idle until Thursday.

The Rangers need the victory to keep pace with the Canadiens.

It seems inconceivable, but the National Hockey League playoff fight may be boiled down to one simple question: Can Boston win on the road in the east?

With only six points separating the top five teams in the most unbelievable race in history, it is no delusion that the leaders may be in the biggest danger of all.

Boston Bruins lead by one point over Chicago going into tonight's game at New York, and the fact that the Bruins haven't won a game in the NHL east on the road all season long, must put them squarely to the test. And there is nothing fanciful about this possibility because, of the Bruins' final six games, four are away from home.

On the other hand, as coach Billy Reay of the Black Hawks implied a week ago, the Bruins may be the power of all the eastern clubs.

Certainly they have been hovering around the top all season, and now are enjoying their new surroundings — first place.

And then they have Bobby Orr.

Here is a guy who puts out all the time, not just one game in three, which is the usual credit given to an average star. Here is the first defenceman in history to win the NHL scoring title. It was thought at the beginning that he would tail off, as others had done in similar circumstances, that the league "would catch up with him", as the saying goes, and that he would be great, but not completely "Super". Not yet. However, this was a bad case of misplaced values. The fellow can do everything. He's already done it, and holds the league record for assists, too.

* * *

Meanwhile, Coach Harry Sinden of the Bruins isn't about to get lighthearted over the chances of finishing first. He put it all in perspective the other night on the radio when he said: "Two games can turn it all around."

However, neither did he appear to be unduly worried. He suggested that the club had improved tremendously in the past month, particularly on defence. This had been a Bruin weakness, he readily admitted, but now he felt the team had tightened up considerably.

In a Toronto interview, Billy Reay of the Hawks put it differently, but with the same Bruin flavor.

"The goalkeeping may have been questionable but when it's good, it's great," Reay said, referring to Ed Johnston's recent back-to-back shutouts. Then he implied that to him Gerry Cheevrs had played the better of the two against the Hawks, and that he couldn't understand the inconsistency of these two fine players.

There are other reasons why the Bruins are in first place even though they terrified only the west while piling up their points.

They do have a tremendous home record, having lost only three games, have the best power-play lineup in hockey, and the highest scoring and most explosive team in the league, east or west.

* * *

Besides Orr, and Phil Esposito, which constitutes the most feared one-two punch in the league, the Bruins also have two others in the top ten. Johnny McKenzie and Johnny Bucyk are two veterans who are enjoying fine seasons. The lineup is deep in firepower, ever made the more awesome by the presence of Orr. With him the attack is that much more formidable. Which is probably why Sinden is not particularly unhappy with the results, and feels that first place rightfully belongs to the Bruins for the first time since 1940-41.

The unbelievers will state the Bruins were every bit as good last year, but blew it all when they had an excellent chance at the Stanley Cup. And by the same token they have yet to prove themselves under pressure this year.

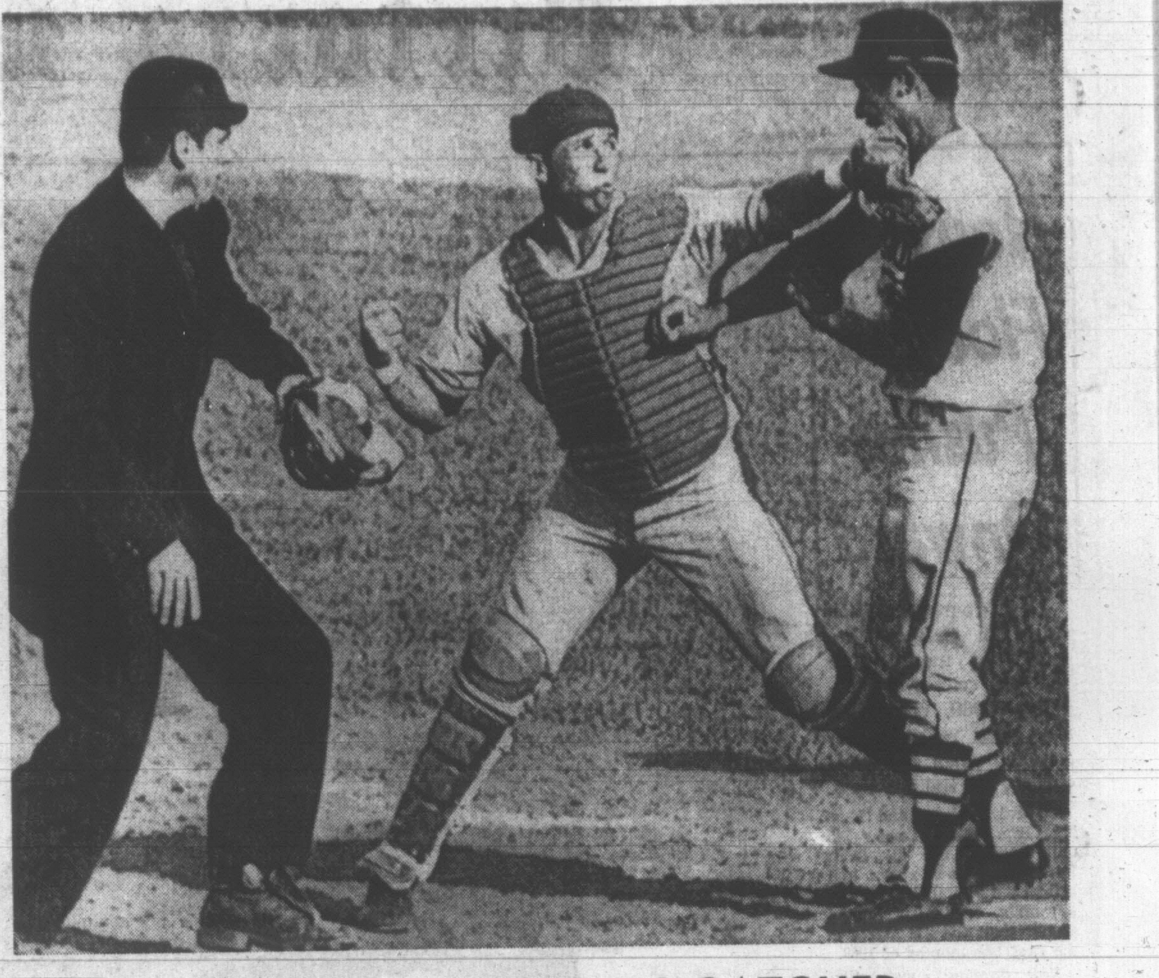
There is ample cause for this disrespect, because that loss last week to Minnsota cut deeply into the Bruin pride. It was a margin they desperately needed, and still may wish they had. For in those other three playoff games on the road, after tonight, the Bruins face Detroit, Montreal and Toronto.

These chores are not simple ones. Detroit and Montreal have designs on first place as well; and if not first place, then a playoff position of significance. In Toronto, the Bruins haven't won in three seasons.

At home they will get to show off their playoff potential against the same Red Wings, and the Maple Leafs. They will need to.

This is not to suggest that there is a suspicion of a major letdown coming for the Bruins. Rather there is the thought only that until the Boston goaltending becomes consistent, the Bruins won't really be at their best.

Which they will have to be in the next six games, starting tonight. For that matter so will New York. The Rangers, to survive, must keep that Boston record intact. Stay tuned.



CARLOS IS A HITTING CATCHER

Playing part of hitting catcher in non-baseball way is Carlos Ortiz of Dominican Republic team, who cocks right arm to throw punch at Columbian player Evaristo Martinez. Columbia finished with 10-0 victory in baseball game that was part of Central American Games in Panama. Neither player received serious damage in scuffle, which apparently has umpire confused. Russia Leads Hockey As Czechs Tie Swedes

STOCKHOLM (CP) — Russia has taken a one-point lead over Sweden in the world hockey championships with only three games to play, and is strongly favored to gain another victory today.

The powerful Russians downed East Germany 7-1 Tuesday while Sweden, which had been tied with the world champions for the lead, fought to a 2-2 standoff with Czechoslovakia. Finland beat Poland 4-0 in the other match.

The champions today meet last-place Poland, which has yet to win a game

After seven games for each team, the Soviet Union leads with 12 points from six victories and a single loss. The Swedes, the only team to beat the Russians, have 11 points, the Czechs nine and Finland eight.

STERNER INJURED

Should the Swedes avenge their earlier defeat by the Finns when they met again Thursday and the Russians repeat last week's victory over Czechoslovakia on Friday—two results that are widely expected here—the championship will be decided in the last match of the tournament next Monday between Sweden and Russia.

Czechoslovakia dominated the play for much of Tuesday's crucial game with Sweden.

The game ended with three players in the penalty box and Swedish skipper Ulf Sterner—also penalized—being carried to the dressing room on a stretcher after a brief free-for-all in the last seconds.

In another development Tuesday, the International Ice Hockey Federation decided to ask Olympic authorities to let winter sports-governing bodies make up their own minds about who is an amateur and who is a professional.

The federation, meeting in Stockholm, approved a resolution which, if accepted by the International Olympic Committee in May, would almost certainly mean that Canadian professionals would be able to take part in the annual world hockey championships.

NEW ZEALANDERS WHIP CANADIAN RUGBY SIDE

TOKYO (Reuters) — British Columbia's representative rugby team touring Japan was overwhelmed 41-6 by the New

More than half the New Zealanders' points were scored

It was the second defeat for the Canadians in four matches on their tour — they won the other two. They will play one more game before leaving for home.

More than half the New Zealanders' points were scored by Gerald Kember, who converted all his team's seven trys, including one he scored himself, and kicked two penalty goals for a personal total of 23 points. The Canadians scored a try and a dropped goal.

Totems Gain Edge In Playoff Fight

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Seattle Totems Tuesday gained a two-point toe-hold in their see-sawing battle against idle Phoenix for fourth place in the Western Hockey League, claiming a 4-1 victory over hosting Denver Spurs.

But tonight, while Seattle remains idle, the Roadrunners have a chance to get back in the running for the last playoff berth as they meet last-place Salt Lake City at home.

Seattle went to a 3-0 second-period lead before 2,281 Denver fans and added another in the third in reply to Denver's lone tally. The win closed its series with Denver, giving Seattle a 9-2-1 record over the Spurs.

In Tuesday's only other game, Salt Lake Golden Eagles edged visiting San Diego Gulls 4-3 before 8,200 fans.

Bob Courcy got two of Seattle's goals—the first and last of the game—while John Hanna and Chuck Homes scored singles. Denver's only goal was scored in the final period by Rick Sentes.

Salt Lake's victory didn't do much to alter the standings and losing San Diego still holds an eight-point lead in third place over Seattle.

Majors End Ball Testing

NEW YORK (AP) — Major league baseball is discontinuing for the balance of the spring training season its experiment with a five-per-cent more resilient baseball, commissioner Bowie Kuhn has announced.

The data collected now will be assessed and will be released when the results have been fully tabulated, Kuhn said.

Flood's Day To Come Soon

NEW YORK (AP) — Curt Flood, challenging baseball's reserve clause in a federal law suit, will have his day in court in the near future, possibly next month.

Judge Irvin Ben Cooper, who three weeks ago refused Flood's request for a temporary injunction against the reserve system, granted the outfielder's application for an early trial Tuesday.

Following arguments in Judge Cooper's chamber at Federal Court, he ruled in favor of Flood and adjourned the pretrial conference until next Tuesday, when he may set the trial date.

LIONS ELATED

COST IS $700,000

Artificial Turf Approved

VANCOUVER (CP) — City council Tuesday approved installation of artificial turf at Empire Stadium — in time for British Columbia Lions' first home game of the year.

"I'm elated," said Lions' general manager Denny Veitch after council authorized the job, expected to cost about $700,000. It will be the first such installation in Canada.

Surfacing of the field, and laying of an artificial surface on an athletic track ringing the field, is to begin immediately, with completion scheduled for June 30. The Western Football conference Lions play their first game here against Edmonton Eskimos on July 6.

Veitch called it the greatest step forward in Canadian pro football in years: "Artificial turf will reduce injuries by at least 25 per cent," he said. "And it will improve the standard of viewing performance by 100 per cent."

Total cost will be about $200,000 less than anticipated. There was no immediate word on which artificial playing surface will be used, Tartan or Astroturf. Work is to start immediately on laying the subsurface, nine inches of crushed limestone, topped with three inches of asphalt. That will be followed by porous matting ⅝ of an inch thick, and the playing surface.

Cougars Miss Spots On First All-Stars

Although Victoria failed to place any players on the first all-star team of the B.C. Junior Hockey League, three of the Cougars were chosen for runner-up honors.

Goalkeeper Ed Forslund, defenceman Gerry Bond and left-winger Bruce Cowick were named to the second team by voting of the seven team coaches.

Vernon Essos, who edged Cougars for both league and playoff championships, placed two players on the all-star team — defenceman Bob Mayer, who also received most-valuable-player laurels, and left-winger Wayne Dye, the scoring champion.

NAMED TOP ROOKIE

John Senkpiel of Kamloops Rockets was chosen rookie-of-the-year and the all-star right-winger.

Goalkeeper Lionel Trudell of Vancouver Centennials, defenceman Dwayne Pentland of Penticton Broncos and centre Marv Ferg of Kamloops completed the all-star lineup.

Other players collecting second-team berths were defenceman Bob Salo of Vancouver as well as centre Don Manson and right-winger Lawrence Quechuck of Vernon.

Odie Lowe of Vernon was named coach-of-the-year and Ron Matthews of Vancouver was runner-up.

Red Wings Drub Essos

WEYBURN, Sask. — Cheered by approximately 1,500 hometown fans, Weyburn Red Wings rebounded from two losses in Vernon to crush Essos 9-1 Tuesday and earn their first victory in the best-of-seven Western quarter-final of the Memorial Cup competition.

B.C. Junior League-champion Vernon leads the series 2-1 after 12-4 and 3-2 victories.

Weyburn led 3-0 after the first period and 4-1 going into the final 20 minutes as John Price tagged the lone Vernon goal.

Next game will be played Thursday in Weyburn. Winner of this series advances to a Western Canada semi-final against the Alberta champions.

Access for Skiers

Sno-Birds Ski Club officials have announced that their Green Mountain facilities will be operating from Friday until April 5 for those with a long Easter holiday.

Access will be allowed only after 5 p.m. on working days due to logging operations in the area, but there will be unlimited access Friday, Saturday, Sunday and Monday, and on the following weekend.

A special package deal is available for the five days from March 29 to April 3. Further information is available by telephoning Betty Wambolt at 592-0737.

HOOP CLUB FAILS . . . . . . TO LURE LANIER

Two Million Bid Wasn't Enough

NEW YORK (AP) — The president of the New York Nets of the American Basketball Association indicated Tuesday his club has lost Bob Lanier to Detroit Pistons, despite an offer by the Nets of more than $2,000,000.

"I've given up chasing him," said Roy Boe, whose Nets made the six-foot-11 St. Bonaventure All-American their first-round pick in the ABA college draft, just as did the Pistons in Monday's rival National Basketball Association draft.

"We can't go any greater than this package," Boe said.

Boe said his offer of more than $2,000,000 for five years, along with fringe benefits, and the cash outlay the first year are far greater than any offer ever made to an athlete in any sport.

It's a Nose-to-Nose Affair For Haida, White Playmate

By PAT DUFOUR

When it's a matter of whale sex it takes a whale to know the difference.

Haida, the star killer whale at Sealand of the Pacific in Oak Bay seems sure the white killer whale that joined him Tuesday is the future bride he's been promised.

He's just about convinced the experts.

A Sealand official reported today:

NUZZLING UP

"He spends most of the time chasing her and nuzzling up. He won't leave her alone but ignores the other one, who just swims around alone. He probably knows more than we do."

Sealand president Bob Wright and a crew of experts brought the white whale and another to Sealand Tuesday from their pens at Pedder Bay.

FINE WHALE PAD

It was the D-Day that Wright had been waiting for since Sealand captured the five-whale pod near Race Rocks March 1.

First came the "dry run" in which the white killer whale's fifteen-foot-four-inch companion was netted, hauled aboard the 60-foot seiner May S and taken the 17 miles to Oak Bay Marina.

Within half an hour of arriving a huge crane had lifted him from the deck of the fish boat and into the pool. May S steamed back to Pedder Bay.

Then came the time for nerves as we drove back to Pedder Bay for the whale that the world has been waiting to see.

Wright, obviously taut, talked with Dr. Roberta Hartman, veterinarian from the marine aquarium in Vancouver. Dr. Alan Hoey, Sealand's veterinarian, remained silent for the most part.

SUPERVISE TRANSFER

Also in the car was Bill Cameron and his son John. They had flown down from Pender Harbor to supervise the transfer.

For Bill, a commercial fisherman, the catching of the white whale would be almost old hat because he has captured 21 whales of his own.

And, as he quietly warned: "You have to keep cool, if there's one member on the team that gets excited you're in trouble."

By the time we reached May S everything was in readiness. Divers stood by. Few spoke except Cameron who issued orders in quiet but authoritative tones.

BIG BULL

In one pen swam Charlie Chin, the large bull in the pod.

The arena of testing was the other. In it swam the white whale and two large cows who seemed to know that they were to lose her. They swam protectively around the small white one.

The nets were spread. There was one anxious second when it seemed that the white one would join her elders as they dove to the other side. She didn't—the net held and the careful process began of placing her in the special sling that would hold her until she reached Sealand.

BLOOD SAMPLES

To those that watched—as well as those that worked—it seemed that time stood still. Actually, it was a bare 20 minutes' lapse from the time she was netted and secured on the stern of the seiner.

First, blood samples were taken, to be rushed by car to

Fire Bombs Hurled At Montreal Mail

Three Buildings Attacked

MONTREAL (CP) — Three Molotov cocktails were hurled into postal substations Tuesday in violence apparently connected with a labor dispute simmering since Feb. 3.

There were no injuries.

Four bags of fourth-class mail were burned when one of the gasoline-filled bottles was tossed into a suburban Pointe Claire substation at about 8 p.m. while 30 employees were at work.

Two other Montreal substations were struck by the Molotov cocktails at about midnight.

Police were holding a suspect.

The incidents came in the midst of a dispute between mail truck drivers and the post office which has slowed mail delivery in the Montreal area for more than six weeks. Mail delivery Tuesday continued at least one day behind schedule as the drivers continued delaying tactics.

The drivers are protesting the expected loss of their jobs when the contract held by their employer, G. Lapalme Inc., expires March 31. The contract is to be split between five companies.

SAYS ANTI-UNION

The Confederation of National Trade Unions, with which the drivers' union is affiliated, has charged that splitting the contract is an attempt to break the union. It also argues that drivers, even if they sign on with the new trucking companies, will lose seniority.

H. Carl Goldenberg, a Montreal lawyer with long experience in labor disputes, was appointed last week by Prime Minister Trudeau to mediate the postal dispute.

Meanwhile, the Letter Carriers' Union of Canada announced today that it is asking members to stay home next Monday, Easter Monday, unless the post office changes its present position on work scheduling.

The union said its representatives have been meeting with post office authorities for more than 10 days without reaching agreement for the Easter Monday work program. The day is one of the statutory holidays set out in the union's last contract.

MLAs Hit 'High' Car Premiums

By BRUCE YEMEN

The Social Credit majority on the legislative insurance committee stepped cautiously on the toes of the automobile insurance industry Tuesday with a call for further inquiry into the cost of automobile insurance.

The New Democrat minority kicked the industry's shins with a call for a government-run automobile insurance scheme.

In a majority report tabled in the legislature the Socreds, headed by committee chairman Herb Capozzi (SC—Vancouver Centre) recommended:

- A government automobile insurance board should be set up to investigate car insurance premiums in view of "possible reductions" that might be made;
- The industry should justify its price structure before the board and would require the board's approval for any further price changes;
- The board should study "the cost and ramifications of various proposals" in which the government's compulsory insurance might be taken out of the industry's hands.

The implied threat of "perform or else" in that recommendation was not spelled out but it is an apparent reference to a section of the current Insurance Act which would permit the government to take over the automobile insurance sales.

DISMAYED

The committee also said it was "dismayed" to learn how little the insurance industry is doing to exert pressure on automobile makers to build safer cars and to encourage defensive driving courses with reduced premiums for graduates of the training.

In another area, it recommended against a proposed ban on law suits for vehicle property damage in excess of $250. The proposal is already part of the government's insurance legislation passed last year but has never been proclaimed.

The ban was regarded initially as a means by which savings in car insurance could be made and drivers could be made more responsible because they would have to insure themselves over the $250 limit.

The report said these advantages might well be gained but expressed concern that ill-feeling among drivers could increase if access to courts were limited.

BENEFIT CUT

On another issue, the committee recommended that the government's compulsory automatic no-fault accident benefits coverage for injuries should not apply to passengers on public-passenger-vehicles.

But the death benefit coverage under the plan, passed last year by the legislature and currently in effect, should continue to apply.

The recommendation follows concern expressed by bus companies that spurious passenger injury claims could be a major problem under the plan which makes automatic payments of $50 a week for housewives and higher for employed persons.

The report of the committee was issued after six weeks of hearings. Included among the Socred members were Education Minister Donald Brothers and Minister Without Portfolio Grace McCarthy. NDP members were Alex Macdonald (NDP — Vancouver East), Bill Hartley (NDP—Yale-Lillooet) and Dennis Cocke (NDP—New Westminster).

The sole Liberal member, Garde Gardom (Vancouver—Point Grey), issued his own report opposing a government-run scheme.

BANK OF AMERICA CUTS INTEREST RATE

Times News Services

NEW YORK — The Bank of America, world's largest commercial bank, today reduced its prime interest rate to 8 per cent from 8½ per cent, following the lead of Irving Trust Co. and triggering a major stock market gain on the United States exchanges.

The Dow Jones index on Wall Street reacted wildly, soaring over 16 points to 790.13 at the close. See also Page 6.

Irving Trust, twelfth largest U.S. commercial bank announced its reduction this morning. The prime rate is that which banks charge their largest, most credit-worthy business clients. Most other business rates are scaled upward from the prime rate.

The prime lending rate for Canadian chartered banks has been 8½ per cent since last summer.

Bombers Face Death Penalty

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Nixon asked Congress today to increase penalties — even to the death penalty—and to extend federal jurisdiction to deal with the rash of bombings by "potential murderers."

The president proposed extending and strengthening laws involving the transportation and use of explosives in the wake of what he called an alarming increase in criminal bombings and threats in recent months.

Schools and public buildings have had to be evacuated, property has been destroyed and lives lost, Nixon said.

"Clearly many of these bombings have been the work of political fanatics, many of them young criminals posturing as romantic revolutionaries. They must be dealt with as the potential murderers they are."

HEADS FOR CONGRESS

Nixon issued the statement in connection with his request for strengthened laws and the justice department was to send the legislation to Capital Hill today.

Present law under certain circumstances make it a federal crime to transport explosives across state lines.

Nixon proposed:

- Making it a federal crime to use explosives to damage or destroy any building, vehicles or property owned by the federal government or involving any business engaged in interstate commerce or any federal property or property of private businesses engaged in interstate commerce.
- Possession, without written authorization, for any explosive in a federal building or one leased to the federal government would be a federal crime.
- Incendiary devices would be included in the category of "explosives" to bring such devices under anti-bombing provisions of the law.
- The individual engaged in transport or use of explosives in violation of these provisions would be subject to the death penalty if a fatality occurs.

Airlines Grounded; Mail Strike Ends

Times News Services

Air traffic controllers crippled airline service around the United States today with a stay-at-home "sick and tired" slowdown and the federal government decided to go to court to force them back to work.

With airline service severely curtailed as the heavy-traffic Easter weekend was about to begin, it was learned that transportation secretary John A. Volpe — the controllers' boss — directed that a court injunction be filed to halt what he regards as an illegal strike.

It was the second time in a week that federal employees defied warnings against a strike and took to the streets.

Striking mailmen in New York voted to accept wage hike agreement between postal union leaders and the government and agreed to return to work immediately.

The eight-day-old strike which originated in New York also ended there following a back-to-work movement by strikers in a dozen other states. Some 13,500 regular sailors, marines and national guardsmen assigned to New York Post Offices were expected to be withdrawn by the end of the day.

10 of 48 Drug Suspects Appear in Court Here

Ten persons appeared in Victoria court this morning charged with trafficking in various illicit drugs, including heroin. It was the result of a four-month undercover operation by RCMP.

The ten represent the first of a total of 48 warrants issued on the Island Tuesday, all involving trafficking in either heroin, hashish, marijuana, LSD or mescaline. In the Victoria area, 26 warrants for adults have been issued and four for juveniles.

Sub-Inspector H. W. Hall, acting officer in charge of the Victoria RCMP subdivision, said Tuesday afternoon the roundup was the result of two young members of the force working in an undercover capacity for the past four months.

Thirty-two persons were in custody this morning leaving 16 warrants outstanding.

The names and addresses are as stated in police

Three on Mainland Win in Sweepstakes

Times News Services

Two Vancouver area women — an old-age pensioner recovering from a broken hip and the wife of a hospitalized mill hand — each won $130,000 Irish Sweepstakes first prizes today.

Only other British Columbian to share in the big money also was a Vancouver woman, Mrs. Lewis Botto, who picked up $52,000 second prize with a ticket on Prince de Galles.

The horse winning the race was New Chapter and its victory sent first prizes to six Canadians, four in Ontario as well as 70-year-old Mrs. Mona Kerkhoven of Vancouver and Mrs. Douglas Warren of Pitt Meadows.

The winners included Salange Laurin, a 49-year-old spinster who has worked in the laundry room of the Chataeu Laurier hotel in Ottawa for 28 years. She said she had no special plans for the money.

Other Ontario winners named by an unofficial source in Montreal, were: Mary Sullivan, Woodstock, Ont., Paul Johns, Toronto, and Mrs. Wilfred Rousselle, R.R. II. Ont.

Ticket holders who also won $52,000 were: Mike Cughman, Hamilton; Wes Tait, Regina, and Iris Torfason, Thunder Bay, Ont.

Those with tickets worth $26,000 on third-place Brookway were: J. B. McDowell, Kenora; Mrs. J. Schoales, Prescott, Ont.; D. H. Curtis, Calgary; Joe Popoff, Saskatoon; M. Campbell, Winnipeg; and Ron Gaudet, Lakewood.

Mrs. Kerkhoven, said she has been in bed for the past three months with a broken hip.

"I'm so shaken, don't ask me any more questions. Don't talk to me any more. I don't want to say anything more," she said.

She said her ticket was a gift from a friend who will share in her prize.

Mrs. Warren, the mother of four, said her husband, who is employed by a forest products mill in Hammond, 35 miles east of here, is due to be released from hospital today.

"We'll have to wait until he comes home to figure out what we're going to do."

One of her first projects, Mrs. Warren said, will be to buy a car for her oldest daughter.

Mrs. Botto had this reaction to her win: "I'm surprised, very much surprised. Quite happy."

Her husand works for a hardware store, and is due to retire in a year. They have 11 grandchildren.

records.

John M. Caird, about 40, of 23 Pandora, appeared charged with trafficking in heroin Feb. 10 and was remanded to April 1 for election. Bail was set at $7,500, the highest figure of the ten because of the nature of the charge, Judge William Ostler said.

Two more charged with heroin trafficking are to appear in Nanaimo.

John Spink, 23, of 17 Boyd, was charged with trafficking in marijuana Feb. 4 and was remanded to March 31 for election. Bail was set at $1,500.

Walter E. Hamilton, 26, of 1250 Bay, was charged with trafficking in marijuana and was remanded to March 31 for election. Bail was set at $2,500.

Robin M. Storkey, 19, of 3315 Henderson, trafficking in hashish Dec. 5, 1969 and remanded to March 31 for election. Bail was set at $1,000.

David K. Brauner, 18, of 615 Seaforth, trafficking in LSD and was remanded to March 31 for election. Bail at $750.

John Reym, 26, of Campbell River, trafficking in LSD Feb. 20 and was remanded to March 31 for election. Bail at $1,000.

Frederick T. Stoba, 18, of 1827 Ruby, trafficking in marijuana Feb. 7 and, remanded to March 31 for election. Bail at $2,500.

Anna Kosyra, 18, of 1250 Bay, trafficking in marijuana Jan. 2, remanded to March 31 for election. Bail at $1,000.

Michael Coutinho, 20, of 2524 Cedar Hill Road, trafficking in LSD Nov. 20 and trafficking in hashish Nov. 27, remanded to April 1 for election.

He was already facing a charge of trafficking in hashish March 13 and bail for all the offences was set at $5,000.

Harely Hughes, 18, of Comox, pleaded guilty to trafficking in hashish Jan. 15 and was remanded to April 3 for pre-sentence report.

Lee Daniel Kobierski, 19, of 15 Quincy and Carol Lucille Dasso, 23, of 17 Boyd appeared Tuesday afternoon and both were remanded to March 31 for election.

Kobierski was charged with trafficking in hashish and bail was set at $1,500 while Dasso was charged with trafficking in marijuana. Bail at $1,000.

QUESNEL (CP) — A 434-acre area, the Two Mile Flat industrial area, has been incorporated into the town of Quesnel, enlarging the town to more than 1,100 acres.

MANHATTAN TO SAIL UNDER $6.5M BOND

OTTAWA (CP) — Humble Oil Ltd. has been asked to post a $6,500,000 bond in case its supertanker Manhattan causes any pollution in its second voyage into Arctic waters, the commons was told Tuesday.

Gerard Loiselle, parliamentary secretary to Transport Minister Don Jamieson, said the oil company has agreed to obey 24 regulations the federal government has imposed on the Manhattan.

Western Highwaymen

Delegates from the highways departments of the four western provinces were welcomed to Victoria Tuesday by Highways Minister Wesley Black and Mayor Courtney Haddock.

More than 160 delegates and their wives are attending the 23rd annual group conference of the Western Association of Canadian Highway Officials, which started Tuesday at the Empress Hotel.

At the conference they will discuss highways administration, construction, equipment, safety and bridge erection.

Black assured them that they would find nothing wrong with British Columbia's hospitality.

"As a matter of fact," he said, "you stubble-jumpers from the prairies might even learn something from the B.C. highways department."

SOLUTION ASKED

Haddock expressed the hope that they might come up with the solution to increased congestion in the downtown area without hurting retail business.

Guest speaker at the conference's opening was Ian S. Ross, of consulting engineering firm of Swan and Wooster which planned the Roberts Bank superport.

He spoke of a tremendous need for the development of harbor and port facilities in Canada because of the general increase in shipping and in particular the use of "supertankers" and other vessels in excess of 200,000 tons.

Ross described development of the Roberts Bank and said it is vital if Canada is to compete with the U.S., Australia and Japan for expanding markets in the Pacific.

Purchasing Managers

Purchasing managers from throughout the Pacific northwestern region will attend their 30th annual conference and products show in the Empress Hotel April 10 and 11.

Among highlights of the program will be a panel discussion on industry and Canada's white paper tax proposals, with a paper by accountant Roy E. Burrell, of Vancouver, and a speech on the Impact of Labor Negotiations, by M. A. Pierotti, of Burrard Dry Dock Ltd., Vancouver.

General conference chairman will be Frank Dunn, purchasing manager for Andrew Sheret Ltd., of Victoria.

Between 350 and 400 agents are expected, representing the B.C. branch of Purchasing Management Association of Canada, the National Association of Purchasing Managers, and Pacific Northwest Public Purchasing Association.

Other speakers will include John Dickinson, president of PMAC and Harold Bloom, president of NAPM: W. A. Small, managing director of PMAC, and panelists, A. M. Twigg, West Vancouver; H. W. Eister, Tacoma; P. Elsing, Eastern Washington State College, and Wayne Rodman, Portland.

Realtor Fined

KAMLOOPS (CP) — Gordon Van, of Chase, has been fined $2,500 after pleading guilty to five charges of failing to report a total of $105,021.16 in income between 1962 and 1965.

In default of the fine, the realtor was sentenced to three months on each charge, to be served concurrently.

. . . WHITE WHALE

the Royal Jubilee Hospital for testing. The findings would be ready almost as soon as the fish boat's invaluable cargo had arrived at her destination.

The two veterinarians worked over her, administering antibotics and examining her carefully.

A bucket-brigade kept the whale doused during the two-hour run. Her whimperings eased as the anti-stress injections took effect.

From the time she came aboard, every breath the whale took was carefully recorded.

Sealand animal trainer Graeme Ellis talked to her. She calmed again. He would stand by her every minute of her first night at Sealand.

At 6:30 p.m. May S nudged in alongside Sealand where a crowd of onlookers were gathered to witness the final act.

Then it was that Wright took over command.

His biggest fear was that the white whale would head for the net in the centre of the pen that separated Haida from the newcomers.

During her time at Pedder Bay the white whale has shown no fear of nets. Would she become entangled in this one and harm herself?

The sling inched over the centre of the pool. Three divers stood at the ready by its side, two men atop the structure. Two other divers were on the alert, one at each side of the pool.

FREED FROM NET

The white whale dove—she swam—and seconds later headed, rostrom (head) first for the dividing net. Divers freed her from it.

Twice more she headed for the net before she settled down to play with the other member of her pod.

As Hoey said, "Just like a brother and sister who have been parted for a while."

Then the centre net was taken away and Haida was able to join in the fun.

Haida may still have to ask the experts for some assistance with his new playmate.

While the white whale was aboard May S a tape measure recorded her length as 12 feet 8 inches.

By taking the square root of her length, multiplying it by her girth and dividing it by 1276, Dr. Hoey was able to estimate her weight as 1,521 pounds.

. . . CARS

In a minority report issued outside the legislature by the three New Democrat committee members, the possibility of significant savings in insurance premiums without a publicly operated insurance plan was ruled out.

AGREED ONCE

The New Democrats agreed on one point with the Socreds who also said there could be no "significant" savings until safer cars and safer drivers are created.

But the Socreds listed four ways in which some savings might be made:

- Use of investment income earned by premiums paid in advance to benefit policy-holders instead of shareholders, for a total premium reduction of four or five per cent;
- Lowering the estimated disability period during which automatic injury payments must be made could cut about 10 per cent from the cost of the accident benefits coverage, which was estimated at $22 by the insurance industry.
- Decrease the portion of the insurance premium spent on administrative expenses from 33 cents to 31 cents for car insurance generally. It could be further decreased to about 25 cents for the compulsory $50,000 liability policy which the government currently requires.
- Nab the 5 to 10 per cent of drivers currently uncovered by the compulsory policy by requiring proof of insurance before purchasing licence plates. This would cut the cost of the compulsory package by a further 5 to 10 per cent.

NO TOTAL

The committee's report didn't total the "possible" savings into one figure.

It also noted that while there appears to be a "certain conformity" in automobile insurance rates there is "a variance as a result of competition."

The industry has been criticized by New Democrats who charge price-fixing, particularly in the $22 price charged by many companies for the accident benefits coverage.

In their minority report, the three New Democrats said the present system of private automobile insurance is "wasteful, costly and inefficient."

"The primary responsibility of this committee was to determine whether automobile insurance premiums are commensurate with the risks being assumed. Our answer to that question is an unequivocal 'No'," the New Democrats said.

"The committee has dealt with the small change of premium reductions, but we believe that significant savings to the people of the province can't be achieved without a public plan of automobile accident compensation."

GARDOM

In his report, Gardom said the government could serve better in a "directional regulatory capacity as opposed to total participation" in car insurance.

The committee was initially expected to study whether the law suit limitation should go into effect but an outcry over the $22 cost of the accident benefits scheme led to the increased scope, covering cost of insurance.

The automobile insurance board recommended by the committee was provided for in the legislation passed last year but, like the law suit limitation, was not proclaimed when compulsory insurance began Jan. 1, this year. The board would have the power to enter the car insurance business if the government so desired.

Industry spokesmen generally opposed the law suit limitation as a theoretically good idea which might indeed encourage drivers to be more careful but which could leave unfortunate drivers who get rammed with no hope of recovering damages unless they carry expensive collision coverage.

Autorama 70 Has Lots of Va-roommm!

Organizers of the 13th annual Victoria Autorama readily admit the show isn't as big as other shows in the Pacific Northwest.

But what Autorama 70 lacks in size is made up in quality of displays and entertainment, say members of the sponsoring Victoria Quartermilers Club.

It opens at the Esquimalt Sports Centre at 6 p.m. Thursday, then runs from 10 a.m. to 11 p.m. Friday and Saturday.

Custom cars from B.C., Alberta, Washington, Oregon and California will be displayed.

1970 MODELS

Five local dealers will exhibit their 1970 wares in a separate display in the nearby curling rink.

Featured out-of-town dragsters are two machines from Los Angeles, Roland Leong's "Hawaiian" Dodge Charger, winner of the 1970 Winter Nationals, and Chuck Poole's "Chuckwagon."

Also from Los Angeles will be July Playmate of the Month Nancy McNeil, who will present awards to winning exhibits and draw the winning ticket in a car raffle Saturday night.

Singer Eleanor Collins and a five-piece band will perform nightly at 8 and 10 p.m.

Schools Open to Oldsters To Avoid Taxpayer Revolt

The Greater Victoria School Board could be faced with its first referendum defeats if it doesn't find a way to reach elderly ratepayers, the board's new community information officer told a Lions Club meeting Tuesday.

Bill Stavdal said recent defeats of referendums in Nanaimo, West Vancouver and North Peace River occurred because boards were "out of touch" with ratepayers.

Stavdal said the same thing could happen in a large district like Greater Victoria which has a school population of 32,000.

One of the big problems faced by school boards in the Capital Region, he said, is that a growing number of ratepayers are in the retired category and come from some other parts of the country.

In Victoria the incidence of retired people is twice the national rate.

As a group they tend to oppose school construction referendums because they have nothing to gain by approving them.

At the same time, for parents with young families — those with the most at stake in education decisions — it's becoming increasingly difficult to raise money to buy their own home.

So most of them rent the place they live in. In effect, they're disenfranchised because they don't qualify as voters on education money bylaws.

Part of the solution, Stavdal said, is to involve the elderly by offering evening courses and activities that reflect their interests.

EVALUATION

Encouraging community use of school facilities is another way, he said, and the board's decision two years ago to slash rental rates on classrooms and gyms has resulted in some schools operating at capacity during evenings now.

Some Lions Club members wanted to know what is being done about a system of teacher performance evaluation.

Teachers currently are rated by the department of education on a system that combines years of experience with university education.

As one questioner said, members of other professions are evaluated on the basis of the number of clients they have. Couldn't it be the same in the schools?

Another Lion said some teachers still say the best thing about their job is the months of July and August.

Stavdal replied leadership of the B.C. Teachers' Federation and the Greater Victoria Teachers' Association would probably agree members should be evaluated according to teaching ability — something that isn't necessarily measured by years of experience or university degrees.

He said rank-and-file — "the ones who don't come out to the meetings" — would oppose a move to evaluation by performance.

The issue is due to come up for discussion at next week's annual BCTF meeting in Vancouver.

Land Limit May Apply To Cordova

Saanich municipal planning committee decided Tuesday night to let full council decide whether a recommendation that the five-acre subdivision minimum be extended into Cordova Bay.

Also passed on to council is a request from M. C. Grant, 4866 Lochside, to subdivide a 4.06-acre property.

During discussion, committee chairman Ald. Alan Newberry said the medical health officer is prepared to say Cordova Bay is a potential pollution hazard.

There already are pollution problems, said Newberry, but he couldn't understand why these are not checked out by the medical health people.

Ald. William Campbell said the five-acre minimum should not apply in Cordova Bay. It was one of the few non-sewered areas where land percolates for septic tanks.

He preferred this to sewering and disposal at sea, but Ald. Edith Gunning pointed out council has made no decision on a Cordova Bay sewage outfall and she had strong reservations.

Ald. Leslie Passmore said it is not reasonable to open up land outside the to-be-sewered area which will provide enough land for 20 years building.

WEATHER SYNOPSIS

The next Pacific cold front in the current series crossed B.C. today giving generally sunny skies over the province on Thursday except for the north coast where cloud from the following disturbance will cross the Charlottes in the morning with rain beginning near noon.

The Weather and You

By CARL RIBLET JR.

If you live in an area where floods often appear, you are one of those who may be affected more than usual by weather cycles, because floods do seem to appear in cycles. That's why scientists would like to know more about ancient weather.

Records were not kept back in the early days of this civilization, or at least nobody has been able to find weather records of 300 years ago. So the scientists have to look at the trees to attempt to learn whether there is danger this year or next year or 10 years from now of a "once-in-a-hundred-years" flood.

The long-ago periods of good and bad weather can be traced in the tree rings. The scientists study the tree rings and then tie in their findings to modern weather history over the past 100 years. Thus they are able with some degree of accuracy to learn what years are likely to be flood years.

Radar Bases Again Attacked

From Reuters-AP

Israeli jet aircraft attacked Egyptian radar stations and artillery and anti-aircraft batteries in the Suez canal area twice today, shooting down four Egyptian MiG-21s which tried to intercept them, the Israeli command announced.

The four Egyptian interceptors were shot down in a series of dogfights when they tangled with the Israeli raiders which had attacked targets in the central and south sectors of the canal, a spokesman said.

MARKET SUMMARIES

New York Zips Ahead

Sparked by a reduction in prime interest rates by several United States financial institutions prices on North American stock markets scored major advances in heavey trading today.

By noon at New York the Dow Jones industrial index had soared 20.33 points to 794.09. It finished the day at 790.13, up 16.37 points.

A reduction by Irving Trust Co. of New York in its lending rate to eight per cent from 8½ touched off a round of similiar cuts by others including the Bank of America.

Markets at Toronto, Montreal and Vancouver responded to the spectacular rise on Wall Street.

AT TORONTO, in industrials, Levy rose 3 to 17, Seaway 2⅞ to 12¾, GMC 2¾ to 80½, Chrysler 2⅝ to 32 and Inco 1 to 49¼.

Electrohome dropped 1⅝ to 28, Du Pont 1⅛ to 22 and Canadian Imperial Bank ⅛ to 21½.

Pine Point gained 1¼ to 33⅛ and Denison 1⅛ to 38½. Endako slipped ¾ to 12¾.

Central-Del Rio advanced ⅝ to 12½ and Scurry ¾ to 28⅝.

AT NEW YORK the advance ranged through major groups with motors, drugs, and savings and loans particularly strong.

Prices among the most-active issues included Fairchild Camera, up 2⅝ to 75⅞; Westinghouse Electric, up 1¾ to 67; RCA, up ¾ to 31⅛; Litton Industries, off ½ to 24⅞; National Steel, up ¾ to 40¾; and Telex, up ½ to 126½.

AT MONTREAL the stock market followed Wall Street upward in heavy trading today.

Canadian International Power gained 2½ to 33, Canadian Pacific Railway 1¼ to 66½, Velcro Industries 1 to 27 and Industrial Acceptance ⅝ to 14⅝.

In senior mines and oils, Denison was up 1¼ to 38½, Falconbridge 1 to 177½ and Hudson Bay Mining and Smelting ¾ to 85, all in extremely light trading. Rio Algom advanced ⅝ to 20

Commodore Business Machines, on the Canadian Stock Exchange, moved ahead ¾ to 6⅞ and Seaway Multi Corp. 1¾ to 12½.

AT LONDON, the New York stock rally and some encouraging company news sent stock prices upward here today.

EMI, Beechams and Rank had gains of up to 3s, while smaller rises were seen in ICI, Bats and Unilever.

Dollar stocks were generally firm.

In Canadians, Dome, Gulf, Canadian Husky, Hiram Walker, Canadian Pacific, Consolidated Bathurst and Power Corp. advanced. Syracuse and Hudson's Bay Oil and Gas moved lower against the trend. Banks were quiet.

AT VANCOUVER, prices were high and trading moderate today on the stock exchange. Estimated volume to 11:30 a.m. was 1,428,720 shares.

Leading industrial was Driver Development, down .05 at .90, on a turnover of 11,300 shares. Northwest Life Financial slipped .05 to $4.50 and Captain International rose .25 to $5.25.

United Bata Resources, off .05 at $2.85, led the oils on a volume of 27,600. Canarctic rose .06 to .96 while Plains Petroleum slipped .02 to .40.

Leading mine on a trade of 105,000 shares was Kopan Development, up .01½ at .21. Casino Silver climbed .70 to $3.35 and Brenmac gained .05 to .87.

TODAY'S GRAIN PRICES

WINNIPEG (CP) — Trading was generally light in all commodities with some aggressive buying in rapeseed and flax at the close of the Winnipeg Grain Exchange today.

Rapeseed and flax saw some exporter buying but the volume was down.

There was moderate buying in oats and barley for eastern feeders and rye drew some miller and shipper buying.

Confirmation was received overnight of the sale of 1,800,000 bushels of No. 3 Northern to Bulgaria. Export loadings of Canadian wheat included 896,000 bushels to China and 28,000 to Peru.

Lakehead prices for Class Two and IGA wheat were unchanged.

CHICAGO (AP) — Grain futures closed on an irregular tone on the Board of Trade today after trading in a very narrow price range.

Soybeans, which had lost more than a cent in early dealings, rallied late in the session. Soybean oil bulled ahead some 40 points. Meal futures fell back around $1.25. Trade in the major pits was light, in a typical pre-holiday session.

There was little outside incentive for any wide movement of grain futures prices. The weather influenced some early buying of wheat. Rye futures were irregular in slow trade. Commercial buying and short covering was a factor in a one-cent advance in oats.

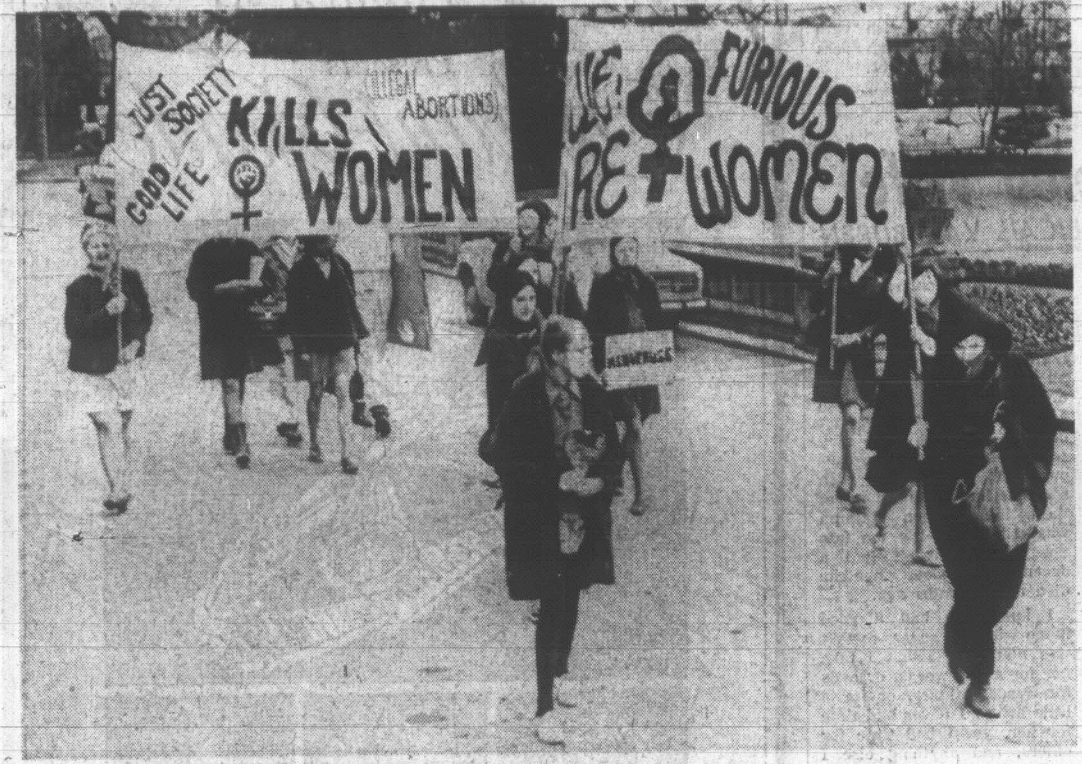
Caucus Marches for Abortion Rights



Vancouver Women's Caucus members parade in front of the legislative buildings this morning to protest what they term the province's evasion of responsibility on the matter of therapeutic abortions. (Irving Strickland Photo)

Members of the Vancouver Women's Caucus staged a play on the steps of the legislative buildings today to outline what they thought about Canada's abortion laws.

The pantomime was short and direct — hospital abortion committees are unjust and unsympathetic.

The 13 women and one man from Vancouver, some of the women dressed in maternity smocks, hospital coats and faces painted stark white, spent this morning conducting their "guerrilla theatre" and marching around the legislature grounds.

Banners read We Are Furious Women, Abortion Is our Right, and The Just Society Kills Women.

The caucus was trying to force a meeting with Health Minister Ralph Loffmark to discuss therapeutic abortions, spokesmen said Tuesday.

Following the pantomime, caucus members went directly to Loffmark's office where they were told an open meeting would be held this afternoon at 1:30 p.m. to discuss their demands.

Spokesman Betsy Meadley said that "Loffmark is evading his responsibility as health minister . . . when he refuses to see that the women of British Columbia receive therapeutic abortions as is their right under Section 237 of the Criminal Code of Canada."

The British North America Act places health and welfare under the jurisdiction of the provinces, said Miss Meadley.

Another caucus representative, Dodie Weppler, said letters and telegrams had been sent to Loffmark requesting a meeting. A reply was received from one of the telegrams turning down the request.

The two women also attempted to make an appointment with Loffmark in person Tuesday but were told, by Loffmark, he would not have the time to see them, the women said.

A March 10 letter from the caucus to Loffmark asked "that additional facilities for birth control information, pregnancy testing, therapeutic abortion, maternity care, sterilization and vasectomy be set up in the same physical structures or the extentions of hospitals and-or clinics, and that these facilities be publicly funded and committee-controlled."

The women also said Attorney-General Leslie Peterson "should see that B.C. women have their legal rights."

The Vancouver group plans to distribute leaflets at the legislative buildings, Victoria hospitals and shopping centres.

The provincial action precedes a planned car caravan across Canada to end with Mother's Day demonstrations in Ottawa May 10.

NEW FLIGHT SERVICE

Just What the Busy Executive Ordered

Bright orange pants suit with a tunic top, and a variety of colored Orlon shirts is part of the non-uniform to be worn by stewardesses on CP Air trans-continental flights. Stewardesses, like Kathy Philp, back in her former home town to model the outfits at the Empress, are so enthusiastic about the non-uniforms and the individual look, some have asked to be transferred from overseas to domestic flights. (Irving Strickland Photo.)

Surveys and questionnaires come up with some astonishing facts, such as what the busy executive wants most when he travels by air across Canada.

CP Air made the survey and, in a demonstration in Victoria Tuesday of the results of their findings, Exhibit A was stewardess Kathy Philp.

Kathy, a former Victorian, modelled CP Air's new non-uniform, which will change with the seasons and changing styles.

Starting April 1, Kathy and her colleagues will be wearing vinyl maxi-coats, brass-buttoned and belted, over-pants suits with tunic vests and Orlon shirts.

Kathy, speaking for other stewardesses on the transcontinental executive flights, said the non-uniforms are extremely popular.

The maxi is the best thing yet for the tarmac at Winnipeg in mid-winter, and the bright orange pant-suit of wrinkle free wool is comfortable, convenient, and "much easier than a mini-skirt for a stewardess who has to do a lot of bending during the flight."

The non-uniform is just part of the new service provided for CP Air's passengers on the executive flight service.

Local sales representative Jim Mutch and CP public relations director Jim McKeachie from Vancouver explained some of the innovations which the survey indicated would be appreciated.

These include copies of the latest stock market quotations as well as executive toys, aimed to please the business men and women who make up 80 per cent of CP Air's regular season passengers.

For the really busy executive, who hasn't time to admire stewardesses or read Play Boy or play with instant insanity blocks between gourmet meals, the airline will provide hand-size cassette tape recorders to dictate letters and memos.

On arrival the conscientious executive will hand the cassette in to be transcribed and the notes will be sent to their destination.

Reading material will include more intellectual magazines and hard-cover books, "But what happens when you arrive at your destination half way through a book, I'm not sure," McKeachie said.

The new passenger pampering approach comes into effect April 1 when CP Air service is increased from five to seven transcontinental flights a day each way.

CAC Names Speakers For Forum on Food

Focus on Food will be the subject of a second forum arranged by the Consumers Association of Canada.

Moderator of the panel at the meeting, to be held Wed. April 8 in the conference room of the Ewing Building, will be A. L. Cartier, co-ordinator of adult education, department of education.

Panelists will be Norma Morris, nutritionist; Lois Smith, consultant for the department of corporate and consumer affairs from Vancouver; E. L. Devlin, regional director, federal food and drug directorate, Vancouver, and H. S. Drew, manager, Woodward's.

The purpose of the forum will be to study facets of present day food marketing, purchasing, protection of standards, advertising and packaging.

PORT MORESBY, New Guinea (AP) — The local government council has limited bride prices in New Guinea to $2,240, presumably because some grooms have complained of being overcharged. Where dollars are scarce, this can be paid in tinned food, mother of pearl, pigs and dogs' teeth.
